BEATTIE TELLS OF WIFE'S DEATH

Sticks to His Story That She Was Killed in Auto by a Highwayman.

GRILLED BY PROSECUTOR

Forced to Admit Continued Interest in Buelah Binford—Prosecution to Call Her.

CONTRADICTS COUSIN PAUL

Denies Story That He Had Relative Purchase the Gun—Home Life Happy, He Says.

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE, Va., Sept. 4.—Through six hours of strain, in a crowded and stuffy courtroom, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife, battled for his life to-day. Evening shadows alone interrupted a vigorous cross-examination by the Commonwealth, Judge Watson ending the ordeal by adjourning court to an earlier hour than usual to-morrow—9:15 A. M.—when Prosecutor L. O. Wendenburg will continue his rapid-fire of questions.

A lone figure was young Beattie in the crowd that surrounded him on all sides, even windows and trees commanding the courtroom being thick with staring faces. The prisoner sat for hours, his manner cool and collected, unfolding the sordid details of his relations with Beulah Binford, the girl for whom the prosecution alleges Beattie killed his bride of a year. And he told in full his version of the attack by the alleged highwayman and the ride to the Owen home with the lifeless body of his wife in the machine beside him.

By request of the prosecution Beattie stood up to full length and donned the bloodstained coat that he wore the night of the murder and attempted to explain why blood had not flecked certain parts of the garment if his wife's body touched him in the way he described.

The clothes of the dead woman had been burned just before the arrest of Beattie, and as more than once there was occasion to refer to them Prosecutor Wendenburg exclaimed: "I wish to God we had them here!"

Beattie a Calm Witness.

It was a day of extreme solemnity in the courtroom. The accused man sat in an armchair, his head often resting on one hand while with the other he rubbed a knotted handkerchief over his pale and perspiring face. In the bar sat his brother Douglas and his white-haired father, the latter at times covering his wrinkled face with a fan as some details were recited by the son. But when the end of the day came the father, as usual, bent over the prisoner affectionately and kissed him.

Beattie answered questions readily in an even voice and without emotion. Except for the nervous fingering of his handkerchief and the characteristic vibration of the muscles in his cheeks, he sat like a school boy, expressionless, as he glibly narrated the story of the crime. In no essential did his version of the affair to-day differ from that which he gave at the Coroner's inquest, or that to which the defense through its witnesses hitherto has clung. The direct examination lasted only two and a half hours, while the cross-examination had proceeded three and a half hours when court adjourned for the day.

The prosecution in its cross-examination gave particular attention to two points in the previous testimony of the prisoner. If the accused had on the night of the murder a light fastened to the rear of the machine why could he not see the fleeing highwayman to the rear of the car; for if the prisoner had grappled with the assassin and succeeded in wresting the shotgun from him, failing to the ground at the same time upon the sudden release of the weapon from the highwayman's hands, why did the highwayman flee with Beattie at his feet on the ground?

These questions the prisoner evaded in his testimony, but to-morrow the prosecution will hammer away at them anew.

Disputes Cousin's Story.

Denial after denial came from the lips of the prisoner as Prosecutor Wendenburg questioned him concerning the alleged purchase of a shotgun for him by his cousin, Paul Beattie, on the Saturday before the murder, and the testimony of Paul as to the confession in which Henry is alleged to have exclaimed: "I wish to God I hadn't done it! I wouldn't do it again for a million dollars."

Beattie disclaimed any connection with the purchase of the gun and knowledge of the transfer of any gun by Paul to him, declaring that he never saw the shotgun until the night it was raised by the highwayman on the Midlothian Turnpike. He admitted little of Paul's testimony concerning his meetings with him. He said he was with his cousin only on the Saturady night before the murder, and merely carried him home in his car from the Beattie store in South Richmond.

He emphatically denied that he had been with Paul at any time within the week or fortnight previous, and on this declaration the prosecution to-morrow will linger particularly, as to-night Detective Scherer declared that four witnesses were to be produced who saw Henry and Paul together also on the Thursday night before the murder.

That it was his wife who suggested the hide on the Midlothian Turnpike after they were nearing the Owen home on their return from the drugstore, where they went to get a prescription filled, was the statement of the prisoner as to the occasion for the ill-fated ride, but when on cross-examination Prosecutor Wendenburg asked the accused if he would have taken his wife riding even if she had not suggested "the spin," Beattie admitted that his "mind was not made up at the time."

To Call Beulah Binford.

The influence of Beulah Binford on the case was conspicuous throughout the day. Counsel for the defense twitted the prosecution for not putting the girl on the witness stand since the State had subpoenaed her. Attorney Harry H. Smith, Jr., of the defense said he never had had an opportunity of even speaking with her, as she was kept incommunicado in jail, whereat Judge Watson in surprise declared the defense would have every opportunity to confer with the girl. Counsel for the defense said he washed his hands of the girl.

The prosecution intimated that it would call the girl, and when rebuttal begins to-morrow or the next day, it is practically certain that she will be called, particu-

100,000 CHINESE DROWNED?

American Missionaries Hear of Terrible Mortality in Yang-tse Basin.

HAN-KOW, Sept. 4.—The American mission at Wu-Hu has received a report that 100,000 persons have been drowned by the floods caused by the water flowing over the banks of the Yang-tse Kiang.

The floods are the worst in many years. The ill-fated Province of Ngan-Hwei is submerged to a greater depth than ever before.

It is estimated that over 95 per cent. of the crops have been destroyed.

The foregoing dispatch indicates that the great river of China, the Yang-tse, has once more overflowed its banks and brought disaster to a large and thickly populated area.

The report received by the American missionaries estimating the casualties at 100,000, is undoubtedly from native sources and applies to the devastation throughout the entire submerged district for the period since the beginning of the flooding of the country.

This river district of China is an area in which land and water seem to be universally intermingled. The rivers in many cases run between retaining embankments in beds higher than the surrounding country, so that in time of flood or when the embankments give way vast districts are transformed into an inland sea.

The Yang-tse basin has been said to occupy nearly one-half of China proper. The population of the basin is estimated at from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000, and it includes some of the richest land in the world. The inhabitants of the river country, however, have been forced to emigrate in hundreds of thousands to Mongolia and Manchuria owing to the recurrent disastrous flooding of their country.

FOUR DIE IN TRAIN WRECK.

Disaster Said to be Due to Engineer's Disregard of a Signal.

ERIE, Penn., Sept. 4.—Four persons are dead and at least forty are suffering from injuries in consequence of the wreck of Erie & Pittsburgh Passenger Train No. 201 at Dock Junction, four miles west of this city, at 8:55 this evening. The disaster was due to a collision between the Erie & Pittsburgh train and a Lake Shore freight train which was backing into a switch. The passenger train was running thirty minutes behind its schedule time.

The dead are: John S. Jones, engineer, of West Tenth Street, Erie; a fireman, name not given; a tramp who was riding on the train, and a passenger in the smoker, who has not been identified. James Firman, a fireman, will probably die of his bruises.

Shortly before 9 o'clock a telephone message was received in this city for every available ambulance and physician. A relief train was hurried to the scene. By that time the passenger train was a mass of flames. The four dead had been pinned under the wreckage, and at midnight their bodies had not been recovered.

Nineteen injured have been received at the city hospitals up to midnight, and more are yet to come from the wreck.

According to reports in railroad circles, Engineer Jones, who was in charge of the passenger train, disregarded a red light, and this was the cause of the collision.

PARADERS ATTACK A CAR.

Start a Riot When the Motorman Cuts Through Their Line.

Because the motorman of a belated Hamilton Avenue trolley car tried to make up for lost time by cutting through the line of march of an Italian parade in honor of St. Dominick late last night, the crowd of nearly 2,000 Italians rushed in, tore the trolley pole from the wire, and began to crowd up to the motorman's stand.

Detective John Manning, who was on the car, arrested Andrew Penabine of 48 Union Street, Brooklyn, one of the rioters. Immediately the crowd rushed upon Manning and tried to rescue the prisoner. Manning was thrown to the street, kicked and beaten, and slashed in the ear with a penknife by one of the rioters.

The arrival of Detectives Johnson and Pugan, who had heard the tumult two blocks away, brought two nightsticks into effective play on the heads of the turbulent mob, and help for Manning, who still rolled with his prisoner on the ground. The police arrested Penabine on a charge of disorderly conduct, his brother, Paul, and a cousin who lived with him, on charges of assault, and two others, Joseph Cugilisi of 1,463 Sixty-ninth Street and Anthony Latusto of 128 Hamilton Avenue, on charges of interfering with the police.

The crowd was dispersed by the reserves of the Hamilton Avenue Station.

NAVY SURFBOAT BLOWS UP.

Capt. Gilmer of Gunboat Paducah, Two Ladies, and Two Seamen Injured.

KITTERY, Me., Sept. 4.—By the explosion of a gasoline engine in the surf boat of the United States gunboat Paducah in the Piscataquis River this afternoon, Capt. W. Gilmer, his wife, and wifes's mother, and two seamen, were injured, Mrs. Pierson P. Peterson, Mrs. Gilmer's mother, more seriously than the others.

Two seamen attached to the gunboat, Carlos G. Wood of Ellicottville, N. Y., who rescued Mrs. Gilmer, and William A. Cooper of Watertown, N. Y., are under treatment at the Naval Hospital at Portsmouth, N. H. Capt. and Mrs. Gilmer and Mrs. Peterson were taken to Capt. Gilmer's Summer home here, and received medical aid.

Capt. Gilmer believes that the accident was due to a leak in the gasoline tank which fed the engine, and the accumulation of gasoline under the engine. Capt. Gilmer was struck by some of the flying metal, receiving several painful cuts on the leg. The Captain's wife was thrown over the side into the water, twenty feet away. She struggled there, badly cut in the legs and about the body, until Seaman Wood, himself injured, jumped overboard and swam to her assistance. With the help of near by campers, in boats, Seaman Wood managed to get Mrs. Gilmer to safety.

Although the entire stern of the surfboat was blown to pieces, the rest of it floated, and none of the other occupants was thrown into the water.

Mrs. Peterson is suffering greatly from the shock and from various injuries about the body. Only one person on board escaped without injury, a maid of Mrs. Gilmer.

CATCH 100 ROWDIES IN CONEY CROWDS

Police Again Raid Disorderly Car Boarders—Some Caught in Long Island City, Too.

MANY SENT TO WORKHOUSE

Fifty to Serve Five Days Each, Sixty Fined, and Few Released in Coney Island Court.

A continuation of the crusade against rowdyism in the trolley and elevated cars in Coney Island and Long Island City resulted in more than 100 arrests between 8 o'clock and midnight yesterday, and the fining and committal to the workhouse of more than 100 of the 127 rowdies who were arrested in a record-breaking raid at the Culver station, at Coney Island, on Sunday night.

The "Strong-Arm Squad," which had been sent out from Police Headquarters, was out in force, thirty strong, early last night. In the Culver station the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company had posted earlier in the day red placards warning passengers of arrest if they climbed through the car windows. The placards, however, were printed in English only, and few of the foreign element in the crowd understood them. As on the previous night, the arrests were made mostly among the foreign celebrants. Seventy-five of these were caught in the act of climbing through the windows before midnight, and the number went up to 100 before the end of the homeward-bound crowd.

Of the 127 arrested on Sunday night at the same place, fifty men who lived in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx were sentenced by Magistrate Dooley in the Coney Island Court yesterday to five days in the Workhouse, without the alternative of paying a fine. Sixty, who lived in New Jersey and towns near New York, were let off with fines ranging from $3 to $5 each. Seventeen, mostly boys ranging from 16 to 18 years, were discharged with a reprimand, the Magistrate deeming that they had been sufficiently punished by the long imprisonment in the court pen.

"It is possible to be lenient with prisoners who violated this law and who live outside of the city," explained the Magistrate in the case of the men he had fined. "They cannot be expected to know fully the conditions here, and some of them may have jumped through the windows when they saw others doing so, under the impression that that was permitted by the railway company and the employes. In the case of persons living in the city, however, where every newspaper has been full of accounts of the crusade to stop such rowdyism in the cars, there is no excuse for such conduct and no possibility of being lenient with the offenders."

Very few of the prisoners yesterday were released on bail, and most of them had to stay in the station pen all night and in the court pen all day without anything to eat. Moreover, the hearing of the many cases, despite the fact that few of the prisoners pleaded not guilty, took up so long a time that it was after 6 o'clock last night before the prisoners were ready for removal to the workhouse. It was said that they stood a good chance of reaching the workhouse, too, after the supper hour, and that they might thus be kept without food until this morning, nearly thirty-six hours after their arrest.

The crowd at Coney Island yesterday was estimated at about 350,000 persons. On the whole, it was well-behaved and orderly, and aside from the scramble through the car windows at the Culver Station the police experienced little difficulty in keeping the crowds in order.

Rowdyism flourished in Long Island City, and the police were kept busy arresting offenders. During the day 24 persons were gathered in. Of this number 14 were arrested after the game in Celtic Park. These were youths whose ages ranged from 17 to 21, and who later gave their occupations to the police as students and clerks. Those gathered in for disorder on the trolley cars were older, the youngest being 19 and the oldest 33 years. They are laborers, with the exception of a rug weaver.

After the athletic sports in Celtic Park the crowd was in great good humor, and in demonstration of good feeling began to tear up the fence surrounding the park. A section of it was torn down before the arrival of the reserves from the Hunt's Point Station. The police had to charge the crowd before the work of destruction was stopped, and then evidently realizing the seriousness of the situation many fled. The 14 unfortunate ones were marched to the station house.

The Strong Arm Squad in command of Patrolman John O'Connor spent most of the afternoon at the Woodside end of the trolley lines. There they made 10 arrests. These were for annoying the passengers, pulling the fare registers, and other forms of amusement which was not appreciated.

All arrested were locked up in the Hunt's Point Section. They will be brought before Magistrate Smith in the Long Island City Police Court this morning.

Those taken at Celtic Park described themselves as Ruben Burg, 822 East Seventeenth Street, Manhattan; Frank McGrath, 167 Monitor Street, Brooklyn; Patrick Green, 15 North Henry Street, Brooklyn; Edward Connors, 23 Leonard Street, Brooklyn; August McHugh, 247 East Sixty-second Street, Manhattan; Arthur Clayton, 1,322 Third Avenue, Manhattan; Joseph Schoter, 271 First Avenue, Manhattan; Edward Ryan, 458 East Thirteenth Street; Hubert Powers, 150 Newell Street, Brooklyn; Joseph McFadden, 68 Columbia Street, Long Island City; Milton Iseman, 105 Newell Street, Brooklyn; John Faulkner, 180 Eighth Street, Long Island City; Thomas Tourney, 288 Java Street, Brooklyn, and Hugh Fallon, 68 Norman Avenue, Brooklyn.

Those taken for rowdyism on the cars, all from Brooklyn, were Anthony Webbs, 203 Morgan Avenue; John Miller, 171 Eagle Street; Joseph Nover, 60 Box Street; Frank Rodesky, 380 Oakland Street; Michael Homan, 112 Clay Street; Joseph Samsphe, 100 Dupont Street; Frank Lebrosky, 191 Eagle Street; Isador Richter, 243 Java Street; Harry Graham, 1,291 Green Street, and Samuel Reynolds, 105 North Ninth Street.

Six car rowdies were arrested homeward bound from Westchester and the Bronx late last night. Detectives McGowan and Breithof, riding a southbound trolley car of the Union Railway on Westchester Avenue, watched a gang of young fellows who had come aboard from a picnic crowd in Westchester, scuffling with each other and abusing the conductor when he went to the rear of the car to collect their fares. Presently the young rowdies began to amuse themselves by pulling down the trolley pole. Then the detectives rushed back and arrested four of them.

The prisoners said they were Val Benner of 317 East 160th Street, Fred Wahrenberger of 315 East 155th Street, James Hogan of 445 East 135th Street, and Ray Farrell of 3 Gouverneur Place. They were transferred at 150th Street and Third Avenue to a Third Avenue car and, locked in this, they were taken to the Morrisania Station, and from there to the Night Court.

Two other young men, Elsworth Gold of 417 East 142d Street and George O'Brien of 407 East 137th Street, were arrested by Detectives Haugh and Bulger on another south-bound car of the Union Railway about an hour later. The detectives say the two were turbulent all the way from Curdy Street, Westchester, to 150th Street and Third Avenue, scuffling and cursing the conductor and other passengers.

At 150th Street, when the detectives grabbed the two men, the crowd of picknickers, of whom they formed part, grew so threatening that the detectives were obliged to call for help. Gold managed to break away and ran three blocks before he was finally overtaken by Haugh. These two were also taken to the Night Court.

DOG GIVES ALARM, HOUSE OWNER SAVED

Great Dane Brings Neighbors to a Bayonne Lawyer's Rescue Just in Time.

Overcome by Smoke as Flames Sweep Through His Home—Tried Vainly to Reach Window.

Wakened by the incessant barking of Bolivar, a Great Dane chained in the rear yard of Marshall A. Barney, a lawyer, of 22 Schuyler Court, Bayonne, several of Barney's neighbors rushed to their windows and looked out, early yesterday morning. They saw the fine three-story home of Mr. Barney alight from cellar to roof with flames that played behind the closed windows. There was no one astir on the lawn or about the building, but the neighbors could see the big dog leaping frantically in the rising glare of the flames, and tugging savagely at his chain.

Joseph Wilson, who lives at 16 Schuyler Court, remembered that the Barney family was away in the country for the Summer and that Barney himself on returning from his law office at 154 Nassau Street, Manhattan, each day, was wont to sleep alone in his room at the rear of the second floor. Hurriedly dressing, Wilson ran with his wife and several other neighbors into the Barney yard, where the dog still barked and tugged at his chain. A few moments later they had drawn up a ladder and put it against the sill of Barney's bedroom.

Smoke was curling heavily from the partly opened window, but the flames had not yet reached that room. Near the window Wilson stumbled across a man's body. Lifting the prostrate form he carried it back to the window. There he saw that it was Barney himself, unharmed, but almost unconscious from inhaling smoke.

When the lawyer had been carried down the ladder and revived in the open air he told his neighbors he had been awakened by the barking of his dog, and supposed that burglars were entering his house. He found the room choked with smoke, however, and was making his way toward the window when he was overcome by the fumes. He was removed to the City Hospital, where it was said later in the day that he was recovering.

The Barney home is situated in one of the finest residential sections of Bayonne, and is one of the handsomest buildings there. Before the fire was extinguished the flames had swept it from cellar to roof. The dog that had given the alarm remained in the yard all day, the neighbors taking care of him and feeding him.

While Engine Company 2 was responding to the alarm of fire at the Barney home, the horses of the engine became frightened by the rumble of a passing train of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, overhead, at Eighth Street and Broadway. Before the driver, Abraham Johnson, could get control of them, they had swerved sharply to the sidewalk, and a moment later crashed through the plate glass window of a drug store owned by Max Strauss, on the corner.

Johnson was thrown from his seat, crashing through the window after the team, and landing on his head and shoulders against the soda water fountain. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to the City Hospital, where it was found he had suffered a dislocation of the collarbone and internal injuries. It was said last night that he might not recover. The horses of the engine were so badly cut by the shattered glass of the window that one of them had to be shot.

MOTOR TOURISTS MAROONED.

Floods in Tyrol Destroyed Roads—Swiss Authorities' "Concession."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 4. — Two hundred automobiles with their owners and families of various nationalities, including many Americans, are stranded on the Swiss-Tyrolese frontier owing to the fact that the recent rains and floods in the Tyrol have destroyed the roads in the north and east.

The motorists, nearly all of whom want to go to Germany, in their dilemma petitioned the Cantonal Government of Grisons, in which automobiles are strictly prohibited, for permission to cross the Canton.

The Swiss authorities replied that they would agree if each car were drawn by horses.

Most of the motorists are forwarding their cars by rail, while others by long détours are trying to reach Italy or Austria.

MAN AND BOY ROB A STORE

And Young Girl Turns Detective and Finds the Boy, She Thinks.

A man and a boy entered the cigar store of Hyman Kleeman at 146 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, on Saturday night, while Kleeman and his twelve-year-old daughter Rebecca were behind the counter. Drawing a revolver from his pocket the man confronted Kleeman and commanded:

"Now you keep still."

Simultaneously the boy grabbed a box of briar pipes and rushed out of the store. The man followed. Then Kleeman and his daughter awoke the street with their cries.

All day Sunday and yesterday afternoon Rebecca Kleeman searched the streets for a trace of the man or the boy who had accompanied him. Last evening at the corner of Baltic and Fourth Avenues she saw a gang of boys, in the midst of whom she thought she recognized the one who had stolen the pipes from her father's store. She ran to a drug store and telephoned to the Brooklyn Detective Bureau. A few minutes later Detective Markey joined her, and to him she pointed out the boy.

At the Detective Bureau the boy said he was John Cavanaugh, 15 years old, of 559 Warren Street, Brooklyn. He denied all knowledge of the theft or of the man who was supposed to be with him at the time. He was sent to the Children's Society as a juvenile delinquent.

THREE DEAD AFTER EATING TOADSTOOLS

Child Picnickers in Bronx Woods Mistook Poisonous Fungi for Mushrooms.

MOTHERS COOKED THEM

Five in One Family and Two in Another Taken Suddenly Ill—Feared Others Made Same Mistake.

The warm weather following the recent heavy rains has brought out a fine crop of mushrooms in the grassy spots of the Bronx, and half the Bronx goes mushroom hunting. Seven persons were reported ill yesterday in a single block of the Bronx as a result of eating toadstools gathered in the belief that they were mushrooms. Before midnight three of the seven had died at the Fordham Hospital. Other families are thought to have eaten of the same poisonous growths.

The three children of Mrs. Josephine De Salvo of 2,423 Arthur Avenue, with several neighbors, went on Sunday to the woods in Bronx Park, about a mile from their home. The De Salvo children were Mary, 7; Angeline, 5, and Rinaldo, 3. The children saw growing in profusion what they thought were the same sort of mushrooms they had so often seen hanging dried in the windows of Italian stores near their homes. A few minutes later they were busy gathering up the soft fungi in their aprons and in paper bags that had contained candy a little while before.

The children, returning home, showed their mother the supposed mushrooms. Mrs. De Salvo at once washed them and then cooked them for supper. Her husband was not at home, but she called over and invited for supper her old father, John Albonese, who lived at 2,424 Arthur Avenue. The old man, too, partook of the "mushrooms," and pronounced the dish excellent.

Early yesterday morning the three De Salvo children awoke, complaining of intense pains. Their mother ran over to the grandfather, across the street, to summon his assistance. She found him, too, groaning in bed. A little later, after calling an ambulance from the Fordham Hospital, Mrs. De Salvo herself was seized with the same pains, and accompanied her three children and her father to the hospital.

Little Angeline died as the ambulance reached the hospital.

Fifteen minutes later there ran into the hospital Giulo Gentile of 585 East 188th Street, just around the corner from where the De Salvos lived. In his arms he bore his 3-year-old son, Serverio. The father's face and that of the child were distorted with pain.

Gentile told Dr. Sheridan that he and the child had spent Sunday afternoon in the woods, and had found what they took to be fine big mushrooms. They took some home, and had them for supper. Yesterday morning both father and the child were taken ill.

The condition of Mrs. De Salvo and her remaining two children improved somewhat yesterday afternoon, but that of her father and of the Gentile boy grew steadily worse. At 8 o'clock last night the old man and Serverio Gentile died. Gentile's condition was improved, and it was said that he and the other patients would probably recover.

Coroner Schwanecke will hold an autopsy to-day to make sure of the precise cause of the deaths. Inasmuch as other children accompanied the De Salvo children in their toadstool gathering on Sunday further cases of poisoning were expected last night.

Another case of possible poisoning by "mushrooms" developed in the Harlem section last night. Vincenzo Pascale and his wife, Rosa, of 336 East 113th Street, ate "mushrooms" on Saturday night which were bought from a pushcart. They also ate some oysters and drank vermuth.

At 2 o'clock on Sunday morning both complained of pains. They were treated by a physician, but grew worse, and last night neighbors sent for an ambulance to the Harlem Hospital. After being treated by Dr. Ritter of that institution they said they felt better. Dr. Ritter would not say whether or not the mushrooms or the oysters had affected them, but he said there was evidence of ptomaine poisoning.

VREDENBURG NOT ARRESTED.

Warrant for Charles Bradenburg of Newburg Wrongly Filled in.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Owing to a misunderstanding when City Clerk Coutant gave the name, or when Recorder Cantline filled out the warrant, Charles Vredenburg was named instead of Charles Bradenburg in the papers of record relating to the misappropriation of $15 belonging to the Bible class of Trinity M. E. Church. The same name was copied on the police record.

It was only when Charles Bradenburg was arraigned in court to-day that the error was discovered. Charles H. Vredenburg, whose name unfortunately was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, is also a member of Trinity M. E. Church, and a respected citizen.

Charles Bradenburg explained in court to-day that he had either lost the money or it had been stolen from him. He offered to refund the amount, and was released.

Mr. Coutant said to-night that the man whose arrest he caused was not Mr. Vredenburg, but an altogether different person, and that he had the highest respect for Mr. Vredenburg's character.

MADERO REPROACHES REYES

But Tells His Followers to be Peaceful —Battle with Zapatistas.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—A proclamation telegraphed by Francisco I. Madero, Jr., from Pueblo and published here today expresses his disapproval of the breaking up of the Reyes meeting yesterday, which was followed by serious rioting.

"If the Diaz dictatorship provoked war," the Progressive Presidential candidate says, "it was because Diaz did not respect the rights of the people. So, if we wish to have peace, we must respect the rights of others. I appreciate the fact that Gen. Reyes, in launching his candidacy, causes indignation, inasmuch as by so doing he seeks to improve the opportunity to impose another dictatorship, but we must proceed within the law.

"I am confident that he cannot win, since we count upon 99 per cent. of the people being with us. If we come to arms we will be in the same proportion."

A battle is reported to have been fought between Federal troops under Gen. Morales and a force commanded by Gen. Zapata, near Chinameca, in the State of Morelos. News reached the Department of the Interior to-day that fifty Zapatistas had been killed. Zapata is said to have been seen to fall from his horse.

Zapata, who was formerly an adherent of Madero, is reported to have gathered several hundred men at Chinameca in violation of an agreement with Madero to disband his force.

MRS. CARTER OPERATED UPON

Actress Ill at Her Home in New Rochelle—About to Begin Tour.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, about to undertake a Southern and Western tour under the management of John Cort, was obliged to undergo an operation at her home in New Rochelle on Sunday. The nature of the operation could not be ascertained, owing to the absence of Mrs. Carter's physician from the city. The operation was performed by Dr. Grant of the Murray Hill Sanitarium.

Inquiries as to Mrs. Carter, who in private life is Mrs. Payne, were referred to her physician, who was in Darien, Conn., last night, but will be in New York today. At the offices of John Cort, Mrs. Carter's manager, it was said that an operation had been found necessary, but nothing was added as to any changes in the star's theatrical plans for the coming season.

The achievement of M. Garros betters Lincoln Beachey's height record, made at Chicago on Aug. 20, by 2,365 feet.

Garros is well known in this country, having appeared at aviation meets in various American cities, including Richmond, Memphis, New Orleans, Oklahoma City, and San Antonio.

SIBLEY CASE DISMISSED.

Case Against the ex-Congressman Stricken from the Docket.

WARREN, Penn., Sept. 4.—The case of the Commonwealth against former Congressman Joseph C. Sibley of Franklin, who was charged with conspiracy to debauch the voters of Warren County, in the Congressional election of 1910, will never be brought to trial, and it has been stricken from the records by a nolle prosse granted to-day by Judge W. D. Hinckley, sitting in Quarter Sessions here.

The application was made by private counsel for the Warren County Civic League, the prosecutors, and was based upon affidavits of physicians asserting that Mr. Sibley's health would not now, and probably never will, permit him to undergo the ordeal of a trial.

"FOOLING" NO EXCUSE.

Magistrate Sends to Workhouse One Who Makes That Plea for Rowdyism.

"Fooling," as an excuse for rowdyism, failed to save Joseph Nomardi of 78 King Street from a sentence in the Workhouse when he was arraigned before Magistrate O'Connor in the Tombs Court yesterday. Nomardi was arrested Sunday night on the municipal ferryboat Queens by Detective Coakley of the Central Office, one of the "strong arm squad."

"He was pulling chairs around and in other ways making a disturbance," explained the detective.

"I was doing that, your Honor," said Nomardi, "but I was only fooling."

"Five days in the Workhouse," said the Magistrate.

MOBBED AS CAR KILLS CHILD.

Five Hundred Foreigners Surround Automobile in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 4.—A large touring car darting out from behind a wagon knocked down and killed Samuel Yalbonski, 9 years old, on Orange Avenue this afternoon. Immediately the automobile was surrounded by a crowd of 500 excited foreigners, who hurled sticks and stones at its five occupants, and tried to drag them from the car.

In the car were Harry Kraku and Frank Dumas of this city, and William Walsh, his mother and sister of Gordontown, Va. They fought off their assailants, capturing one who had climbed into the car, and started with their prisoner for the nearest police station just as a wagon load of policemen arrived on the scene.

ADMITS SUBWAY THEFT.

L. K. Ellery, Runaway Ticket Agent, Captured in Baltimore.

Leon K. Ellery, a former ticket agent of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, who disappeared from his station at Astor Place last Thursday night, was brought back to this city from Baltimore last night. He was arrested Sunday afternoon in Baltimore on a charge of intoxication, and the police say that when he was searched before being locked up $248 in money and a uniform button of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company was found in his possession.

The Baltimore Police had been notified of the disappearance of Ellery, and when the money and the button were discovered on the man they notified the New York authorities of the arrest. Detective Dalton, accompanied by a representative of the company which was on Ellery's bond, went at once to Baltimore and the man admitted his identity.

Ellery left his post in the Astor Place station last Thursday night about 9:30 o'clock and his absence was reported to the police about midnight. At that time it was said by the police that $338 was missing. The police say that Ellery told them that he had bought a new suit of clothes with the money that was missing and traveled as far as Baltimore, where he began drinking. Ellery was locked up at Police Headquarters charged with grand larceny.

BOY'S JEALOUSY ENDS TWO LIVES

Wm. A. Childs, Jr., 20, Kills Katharine Van Wyck, 19, in a Lane at Quogue, L. I.

RUNS, THEN SHOOTS HIMSELF

HER MOTHER SEES SHOOTING

Girl Wouldn't Give Up Other Youthful Friendships for Him Alone and This Drove Him to Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

QUOGUE, L. I., Sept. 4.—Katherine Ladd Van Wyck, daughter of Albert Van Wyck of 107 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, was shot and killed this afternoon by William A. Childs, Jr., of Englewood, N. J. Childs then shot himself in the head, dying an hour later.

Childs was 20 years old, and Miss Van Wyck was 19. They had known each other for about two years. The Van Wycks have a Summer residence here, named Wyndhurst, and Childs had been a frequent visitor to Quogue, especially this Summer. His brother, Alfred D. Childs, occupied a cottage belonging to Miss Alice W. Howell, not far from the home of the Van Wycks. On several of his visits Childs stopped at the Cooper House.

Childs had been attentive to Miss Van Wyck all Summer, but she did not particularly encourage his attentions, and was a favorite with all the young men in the Summer colony here. It is believed that Childs was made jealous by her comparative indifference toward him.

There was a baseball game in Quogue to-day, and many of the Summer residents attended. Among them were Childs and Miss Van Wyck. When the game was over the cottagers returned in a stream, some in their automobiles and many on foot, as the distance was short. Miss Van Wyck started to walk to her home, and with her walked Childs. Others returning from the game noticed nothing unusual in their demeanor.

The Van Wyck cottage is situated in Beach Lane, one of the most fashionable sections of the Summer colony. The two turned into this thoroughfare, and were within 150 feet of the house when Childs dropped back a step and drew a revolver. Before his intentions could be realized he fired at the young woman. Then he shoved the muzzle of the pistol close to her side and fired again.

Rushed Home to Die.

The girl dropped to the sidewalk without a sound. Childs glanced at her swiftly, and then broke through the fence of a cornfield belonging to Selden Hallock, proprietor of the Quogue House. An automobile party was close behind the couple and came up at full speed. Miss Van Wyck was lifted into the car and rushed to her home, where she died about fifteen minutes later.

Other cottagers rushed to the place of the shooting. Some one had seen Childs run into the field and word quickly passed through the throng. Led by Bert Person, the village constable, and Erastus F. Post, a fromer member of the Assembly, the men spread out quickly to surround the field. This was the work of a few minutes, and it had hardly been arranged when another shot came from the field, and as the men rushed in its direction they came upon Childs with a bullet hole in his forehead. When they reached him he was unconscious, but still breathing.

Pierson and Post picked up the dying boy and carried him into the barn of the Quogue House. He was stretced out in a room on the upper floor and telephone messages sent to all the doctors in town. Drs. Fairbairn, Joy, and McLean were found at home and responded at once.

Death Seals His Lips.

A hasty examination showed them that Childs was mortally wounded and nothing could be done toward saving him. In about an hour he died without regaining consciousness, so that it was impossible to learn from either him or Miss Van Wyck exactly what had led to the shooting.

Dr. Greer, who was called to attend Miss Van Wyck, found that she had been shot in the side and breast. One wound was near the heart, and apparently had severed a large artery, causing almost immediate death.

Both Childs and Miss Van Wyck were well known among the Summer residents, and the affair caused the greatest excitement. Villagers and cottagers alike thronged to the Quogue House, where the doctors had gone after examining young Childs. They were plied with questions on all sides, but neither they nor anybody who has been found could throw any light on the immediate cause of Childs's act.

Mrs. Van Wyck, the girl's mother, and her brother Samuel Barent, who is 17 years old, were sitting on the piazza of the Summer home when the shooting took place. They were watching the couple approaching, and were eye witnesses of the affair. Mrs. Van Wyck collapsed as her daughter was brought in from the automobile and is prostrated to-night.

Childs's father was here with him a few weks ago, but both parents are said to be now at Lake George, their home in Englewood having been rented for the Summer. Childs's sister married Charles De Hart of Brooklyn.

Related to Former Mayor.

The Van Wyck home in Brooklyn is still boarded up. Mr. Van Wyck is a member of the Rembrandt and Hamilton Clubs and the Holland Society. Members of the Hamilton Club said they believed Mr. Van Wyck was a relative of ex-Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck and former Justice Augustus Van Wyck, who sat on the Supreme Court bench in Brooklyn.

Mr. Van Wyck retired from business several years ago. He was formerly connected with the Standard Oil Company, and their home is in one of the most fashionable parts of the Brooklyn Heights district. Miss Van Wyck herself graduated from the Packer Institute last year.

William A. Childs, Sr., is a retired electrician who is said to have had more or less to do with the development of the telephone. He was formerly a member of the Common Council of Englewood. He was one of the founders of the Christian Science Church in Englewood.

Mr. Childs has a large fruit farm in California. He and his wife were prominent socially in Englewood. They had two sons—Alfred D. and William A., Jr. Alfred, the elder brother, has a Winter home in Englewood and has spent his Summers for several years at Quogue.

Dr. W. Whitehead Gilfillan of 31 West Fiftieth Street, Manhattan, is an uncle of Miss Van Wyck. He was informed by telephone from Quogue last night of the shooting.

"I did not know young Childs," said Dr. Gilfillan, "but I had heard of him as an acquaintance of my niece's. I understand that she first met him in Quogue about two years ago. I do not know whether or not he was especially attentive to her, but from the facts in the case he was apparently jealous on account of the attentions of other young men. I am certain of one thing, and that is that she was not engaged to him."

TAFT DENIES FIVE PARDONS.

Counterfeiter Gains Freedom and Civil Rights—Letter Embezzler Freed.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 4.—Applications for pardons by four Federal prisoners, now serving sentences for minor offenses, and that of John Brooks of Illinois for stealing letters from the mail were denied by President Taft to-day.

John Stevin of New York, who has served two and a half years for counterfeiting, was granted a pardon with his civil rights restored.

The one-year sentence of Isidor Schoenbrun of New York for embezzling letters was commuted. Schoenbrun's term would have expired Nov. 26.

Teacher Dies on a Train.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Sept. 4.—Miss Harriet H. Jones, a manual traing teacher in the public schools here, died on a Lackawanna train to-day while on her way home from Mount Pocono, Penn., where she had spent the Summer. Her mother and sister were with her. Miss Jones had lived here nearly all her life. For several years she taught in New York City, but for the last five years she had been connected with the schools here.

BOMB WRECKS WHOLE TENEMENT

Doors Blown In and Ceilings Brought Down Upon Sleeping Tenants.

FOLLOWED LETTER THREATS

The "Black Hand" Wanted $1,000 from Successful Grocer—He Paid No Attention—Many Narrow Escapes.

Two Black Hand letters, each demanding $1,000, have been received by Rutilio Colorosso, a coal dealer of 144 First Avenue, in the four weeks since he opened a new store at 406 East Ninth Street. Colorosso paid no attention to the letters, though they warned him that he and his family would be blown to pieces in their home unless he paid the money demanded.

At 11:20 o'clock last night, an hour after the janitor, David Leper, had locked the street door of the four-story tenement, on the third floor of which live Colorosso, his wife, their six children, and a brother of Colorosso, several of the tenants on the fourth floor heard footsteps on the roof.

The footsteps had scarcely died away when there came from in front of the door of Colorosso's flat a terrific explosion. The door of that flat, as well as that of every flat in the four stories of the building and most of the ceilings, was shattered and thrown upon the sleepers within. In front of Colorosso's door gaped a jagged hole four feet in diameter that showed through to the floor beneath. In every room in the house débris crumbled from the ceilings to a depth of several inches.

Colorosso's 15-year-old son Joseph, who had been sleeping in the room nearest the door of the tenement, was thrown out of his bed against the opposite wall. He escaped unhurt. None of the other occupants of the tenement was injured.

Most of them rushed scantily clad into the halls and fire escapes. A few climbed to the roof to escape to neighboring houses, deeming that in which they had lived doomed to fall.

When the police reached the scene there was no trace of the men who had set off the bomb. Aside from the indications that led the tenants of the fourth floor to suppose the men had gained entrance by way of the roof and left the building in the same way, there was no clue to the perpetrators of the bomb explosion.

Colorosso himself could shed little light on the matter. He had misplaced the letters he received, he said, but he recalled that both of them had arrived since he opened his second store, and that both were postmarked Brooklyn. He came to this country nineteen years ago, and has lived in the house where the explosion occurred for the last eleven years.

The building is near the Eighteenth Street station of the Second Avenue elevated, and the station windows were shaken by the explosion. Passengers in a train that entered the station just when the explosion occurred were thrown into a panic as they felt the structure tremble and sway beneath their car. They were reassured and calmed, however, in a few moments.

COMBAT WITH HUGE APE.

Orang-Utan on Shipboard Tries to Strangle Second Officer.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 4.—A thrilling fight between a giant orang-utan on the one side and half a dozen men on the other was described by the officers of the British steamer Pathan, which arrived at Hoosac docks, Charlestown, this morning from the Far East. The combat was brought to an end only when the beast's skull was crushed in.

The trouble began when Purser Peddday started to play with the arng-utan, which was confined in a strong cage on deck. The animal, unaccustomed to captivity, resented the officer's advances and made several attempts to strike back through the bars of its cage.

The purser was so persistent that his fellow-officers on the ship warned him that he had better not carry his teasing too far. One day last week when the ship was in the mid-Atlantic the huge ape wrenched the stout bars loose and made its way on deck. Peddday was there at the time, leaning against the rail, wholly unconscious of impending danger. Stealthily the orang-utan approached, and in a moment was on the man's back, its great paws closing on his throat. Pedday's screams just before he became unconscious brought Second Officer Wilcox and several sailors to the scene, and there was a lively battle. Wilcox picked up a heavy belaying pin, and with a few well-directed blows ended the existence of the ape.

The orang-utan was purchased in Singapore by Capt. Chaplin, and was to have been disposed of in New York.

The Pathan brought in a valuable cargo from Japanese and Chinese ports and Singapore. Part of her cargo is destined for New York.

SAFE BLOWN, $500 STOLEN.

Burglars Leave Finger Prints in Brooklyn Store for Police to Study.

Safeblowers entered the butcher's store of Joseph Lehner, 213 Bridge Street, Brooklyn, through a back window early yesterday morning and carried the butcher's small safe from the front of the store to a back room, where they blew off the door. They got $500 in cash and some jewelry.

John Popp, an employe, discovered the burglary when he opened the store at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and notified the police. Morris Eckler, the finger-print expert of the Detective Bureau, made photographs of several finger prints left on the safe and other parts of the store by the intruders. The police hope to capture the burglars through these marks.

This safe blowing is but one of a series of burglaries which have taken place in the neighborhood. The work, like that of all the other burglaries, indicate that a band of expert thieves is busy in the downtown district of Brooklyn.

HOLIDAY CROWDS ON ALL THE LINES

Rush from Country, with Labor Day Excursionists, Packs Railroad Trains and Ferryboats.

SUBWAY AND BRIDGE JAM

Baggage Piled High at All the Terminals—Grand Central Facilities Overtaxed—Hudson Boats Packed.

The homeward rush yesterday of holiday excursionists, and with the throngs returning from their Summer in the country, taxed to their utmost late in the day all the transportation lines. Extra precautions had been taken to handle the crowds, and up to midnight last night not a single accident had been reported. The railroad lines ran extra trains and the ferryboat services run in conjunction with them were compelled to use extra ferryboats. The handling of the thousands of pieces of baggage was in itself a mammoth task, and officials of the various railroads said last night that it would probably be several days before the influx of trunks would be cleared from the congested baggage rooms.

Excursion steamers, particularly those to Coney Island and the neighboring pleasure resorts, were loaded to the rails. The crowds at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge was handled by police reserves in charge of Capt. Edward Bourke. The crowds from Coney Island congested the Subway, and extra police were detailed to the uptown and downtown platforms of the Brooklyn Bridge Station.

The Hudson River boats brought to the city hundreds from the Catskill Mountains. The Steamer Hendrick Hudson of the Albany Day Line, which arrived at 9:30 last night from Albany, carried not less than 4,500 passengers. The Robert Fulton of the same line, also from Albany, had not less than 3,000 passengers aboard.

The downtown streets of the city, particularly in the vicinity of Broadway and Park Row, and in the neighborhood of Brooklyn Bridge, were thronged last night as seldom before.

The restaurants in the lower part of the city were well crowded long after midnight, and the streams of excursionists that left the ferryhouses had not diminished greatly long after that hour.

The Pennsylvania Railroad officials reported that more than 150,000 persons had passed in and out of the Pennsylvania Station during the day, the majority of the crowd arriving after 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Relief trains were pressed into service. A. R. Whaley, terminal manager of the Grand Central Station, estimated the crowd that had gone in and out of that station yesterday at 75,000. He declared that some difficulty had been experienced in handling the baggage at Buffalo.

Special baggage trains were run from Buffalo to New York, and the influx at 9 o'clock last night numbered more than 1,500 pieces an hour. The baggage rooms of the Grand Central Station were crowded to the doors and outside places for the storage of trunks were sought.

Two or three sections were added to the trains of the West Shore Railroad to accommodate the hundreds of vacationists who returned yesterday from Summer resorts in Sullivan County.

Station Master Shannon of the Erie Railroad said last night that extra ferry boats were being used to carry the crowds to New York. The ferry houses at Twenty-third and Chambers Streets, Liberty and Cortland Streets, were thronged all evening, so fast did the people continue to come.

The first section of a six-section train from Buffalo over the Lackawanna Railroad pulled into Hoboken at 7 o'clock last night. Two ferryboats were waiting to bring the passengers across.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey reported last night that their baggage rooms had been congested.

Some excitement was occasioned in Hastings-on-Hudson by the stopping of the big Hudson River day liner Hendrick Hudson off that place. A rumor spread that the vessel was in trouble. There was no trouble on the Hendrick Hudson, which was returning from a run to Kingston Point, at the foot of the Catskills, with a record Labor Day crowd on board. When the vessel got off the pier at Yonkers the steamboat Montauk cut in ahead and the bigger vessel had to lie out for more than half an hour to await her turn. It was her siren's protests against this wait that excited Hastings.

BANKS LOSE BY FORGERIES.

Assistant to Jewish Hospital's Secretary Tells of Aiding His Operations.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Sept. 4.—Several Denver banking concerns are deeply involved in the peculations of Alfred Muller and his assistant, Bruno Grosser, according to the attorneys for the National Jewish Hospital who are investigating the case.

When the report of the Continental Auditing Company, which is examining Muller's accounts, is made to the managers of the hospital this week, it will show, it is said, that much of the paper received from that institution by local banking concerns is worthless. Grosser says that he frequently forged names to important notes and other paper which were deposited in Denver banks, the cash being turned over to Muller.

So confident of Muller's honesty was the Board of Managers of the hospital that four years ago it refused to listen to charges made against him in open meeting. Although at that time members of the board went through the books, they had been so cleverly manipulated that nothing of a suspicious nature was found in them.

MISS MERCER WAS ILL.

Young Woman Lost from Steamship Had Something Akin to Suicidal Mania.

OMAHA, Sept. 4.—Miss Caroline Mercer, reported by wireless as lost from the steamship Minneapolis, left Omaha two week ago in the company of her brother, Dr. Nelson Mercer, her sister, Mary, and Mrs. Mercer. The Mercer family is prominent in this city. Dr. Samuel Mercer, Miss Mercer's father, who died several years ago, was an old resident, and was worth about half a million dollars. The family resided at Fortieth and Cuming Streets, but as they have been planning to live permanently in England, their big house here was rented.

Miss Mercer had long been ill, suffering from something akin to a suicidal mania. Dr. Mercer was with her almost constantly or had some one else watching her. He had taken her to Europe to see specialists, but they had done little for her. At times Miss Mercer would sit in a corner and cry by the hour.

early to corroborate the testimony of Paul Beattie as to certain messages which he says Henry asked him to deliver to her.

The prisoner deprecated the idea that he in any way loved the girl. The prosecution, however, insisted that in the week before the murder three of Beattie's evenings had been given to the Binford girl, as well as the night before the homicide, all of which the prisoner admitted.

The prosecution continued to contend that the prisoner sat on his wife's body to conceal it on his flying trip to the Owen home.

As he left the courtroom with the jailer, Beattie lighted a cigarette and sauntered leisurely over the green to the jail, a hundred yards away.

Beattie's Own Story.

With one hand on his hip, and his eyes on the Bible held by the Sheriff, the prisoner swore "to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

"Please state your age," said Mr. Smith.

"Twenty-six."

Q.—Your business? A.—Mercantile business with my father.

Q.—How long have you been doing it? A.—About a year.

Q.—What relation to you is Paul Beattie? A.—A second cousin.

Q.—Have you ever had any confidential relations with him or has he been your intimate? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Has he ever run around with you? A.—No. I only saw him when he would come to the store to get money or something, and he was never left a minute without being watched.

Q.—You had no confidence in him? A.—None in the world.

Q.—Did you ever trust him with any secret? A.—None in the world.

Q.—How long have you known Beulah Binford? A.—I met her in August, 1907.

Q.—How did you meet her? A.—I was coming down Broad Street in a machine with four or five fellows. Some one attracted my attention to two girls. I stopped the car and one of the girls asked me if she could take a ride. Beulah and the girl then got in.

Q.—Had you ever been introduced to her before? A.—No.

Q.—Was the other girl Henrietta Pitman? A.—Yes.

Warned Against the Girl.

Q.—What was Beulah Binford's reputation? A.—That afternoon the rest of the boys with the exception of one fellow told me not to have anything to do with her.

Q.—When did your relations with Beulah Binford break off? A.—In the Fall of 1908.

Q.—What was the cause? A.—Well, she went to Washington. I knew she was sick and I didn't go with her.

Q.—When Beulah's child was born what did she do? A.—Her mother wrote to me.

Q.—Did they think you were responsible? A.—I suppose so, as they thought I had more money than any one else. Next thing I knew I was called to her lawyer's office, and as a consequence I saw nothing to do but fork up the money, and was the laughing stock of the town. I never for one minute thought I was the father of the child, and Beulah Binford swore at the Coroner's inquest that she was not its mother.

An effort was made by counsel for the defense to interrupt the prisoner's testimony for a few minutes to have Charles H. Kestleberg testify as to the number of his car, but the prosecution objected, saying it "did not want the examination of the prisoner interrupted."

"How long before your marriage," continued Mr. Smith, "was the meeting in the lawyer's office?"

"About February, 1909."

Q.—Well, when were your relations with her broken off? A.—In the Fall of 1908, and I was married nearly two years afterward in August, 1910.

Knew Wife from Childhood.

Q.—How long had you known your wife? A.—Nearly all my life.

Q.—How long had you been in love with her? A.—I reckon about twelve to fourteen months.

Q.—How did you regard Beulah Binford during the time you ran with her? A.—As every one else did—as a woman of the town.

Q.—Did you have any love for her? A.—No.

Q.—What were the relations between you and your wife up to the night of her death? A.—I never spoke a cross word to her or she to me. We always were affectionate, and I don't see how any one could have been any happier.

Q.—Was there any reason for her to be unhappy? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—When you were married did she know about Beulah Binford? A.—Every one in town did. I told her all about the effort to blame the child on me, too. I made a clean breast of it.

Q.—Did you tell her of your trip to Norfolk and the resumption of your relations with Beulah? A.—No.

Q.—Was Beulah Binford the controlling motive of your going to Norfolk? A.—No.

Q.—Tell how you came to go to Norfolk.

The prisoner here corroborated the story of William H. Sampson, his chum, of how he and not the accused had first heard that the girl was in Norfolk. The prisoner frankly admitted the several rides with the girl there and visits to various places.

Q.—Did you expect to see her again after you left Norfolk? A.—No. In fact, she said her husband was going to call for her.

Q.—When did you hear about her next? A.—When Billy Sampson 'phoned me that she was in town on her way to Danville, Va.

Helped Beulah Binford.

Q.—Did you do anything to dissuade her? A.—She called me up some time after that and I went over to see her and she asked me if I would help her if she stayed in Richmond. I told her I would try to help her out. That isn't the first time I've helped a girl out.

Q.—You have helped others and that was no indication that you cared for one more than another? A.—Yes.

Beattie's letter to Beulah, promising to "help her out," was produced.

"There is one word I'd like to correct," said Beattie. "That word 'will' should be 'well, be good.' It's a thing you'd put in any letter to any one, and doesn't mean that I said I would be good."

"With oceans of love, brimming with kisses," the letter concluded.

"How about that?" he was asked.

"That was just taffy or gush that you give to a woman of that kind."

Q.—Did you have any real love for that woman? A.—I couldn't love a woman that I couldn't respect and trust.

Q.—Please state if you met Paul Beattie on the Thursday night preceding the homicide, and commissioned him to buy a shotgun. A.—No, Sir.

Q.—If you had wanted any firearms would you want him to get them? A.—No, especially if I had wanted them for anything of that kind.

Q.—Did you see him Thursday night at all? A.—No.

Q.—How many times did you see him within a week or two before the murder? A.—He was at the store about a week or two weeks before. That was since we talked about putting his brother David into the navy, and about the property out of which he said my father was trying to cheat him.

Q.—Did you see him that night? A.—Yes. In the store early. He said he was going to Richmond, and asked me to take him over after the store closed.

Denies Knowing of Gun.

Q.—Did you know anything about his going to the pawnbroker's shop or buying a gun? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did he bring you a gun? A.—No, Sir.

The prisoner said that after taking Paul Beattie home he went riding with Beulah Binford.

"We had two punctures," he added. "She got a pump out of the rear seat."

Q.—If there had been a gun she would have seen it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where is Beulah now? A.—In jail, I reckon, where the prosecution can get her if they want to.

Q.—When were you out next with Beulah? A.—Monday.

Q.—In that week and the week preceding did you take your wife out? A.—Yes. I took her out the Sunday before, the Friday before, the Wednesday before. Three or four times a week.

Q.—On the night of the murder—Tuesday—what time did you leave your house? A.—A little after 8 o'clock. I got the machine out of the garage. I had gone only a short distance when I saw I had a flat tire. I had to jack up the rear of the car and fix it.

Q.—Do you know how long it took you? A.—Judging from the time I left my house and the time I got to Mr. Owen's it must have taken an hour.

Q.—When you got to Mr. Owen's what did you do? A.—I went upstairs in the house where my wife was. Louise was nursing the baby, and I kissed her, sitting beside her and talking with her. Mrs. Owen came in later and said Dr. Mercer was coming.

Q.—Did you play with the baby? A.—Yes. I walked up and down the room with it and put my finger in its mouth for it to bite.

Q.—The only intimation we have had about you being unhappy has come from Mrs. Owen, your mother-in-law. Was there anything in your life that caused your wife to be unhappy? A.—No. She had no reason to be.

Tells of Auto Ride.

Beattie was asked to state what happened after he started on the automobile ride with his wife.

"We were at the house about three-quarters of an hour," he replied. "Somebody suggested that my wife take a wrap. It couldn't be found. Tom Owen brought out his raincoat. I then took a prescription from Dr. Mercer to be filled. We went down the Midlothian Turnpike to a drug store. I rattled on the door, and finally the druggist came, took the prescription, and went back to fill it while I stood on the running board about ten minutes talking with my wife."

Q.—Was your wife in a good humor? A.—Yes, I paid him for the prescription, bought some candy for my wife, and got into the car and headed up the Midlothian Pike. Just as we got to Mr. Owen's house to return my wife suggested that we take a little spin—

Q.—Who suggested that you take the ride? A.—My wife.

Q.—If she hadn't, did you intend to go? A.—No.

Q.—Well, what happened? A.—Three cars passed, one was going fast, about forty miles an hour. I was running slowly. The car left a lot of dust, and when the second car came my wife suggested that we go faster so as not to get their dust, and we did this and passed the third car.

Q.—What's the number of your car? A.—820.

Q.—Does that number look anything like D11? A.—Not to me.

Q.—State more of that ride? A.—We passed three cars. The last thing I can remember before we turned around was a row of cedar trees which my wife said would make good Christmas trees, and the gate near where we turned.

His Version of the Murder.

"State what happened then," said Beattie's counsel.

"About three-quarters of a mile or a mile from where we turned," said Beattie, "we were going along easy when a man came from the left-hand side of the road. He was so close to me that I had to put on the brake so as not to hit him. He asked if I were going to hit him, and I said he had plenty of room and that I should have. I then put on the low gear and reached over to take the brake. He pointed the gun at me and said: 'Stop, or I'll shoot!' I didn't want to aggravate him, so I said nothing. As I touched the clutch he fired and my wife fell back of me."

"She fell between your back and the back of the seat?"

"Yes. In the space of a moment I jumped out of the car and started toward the man. He raised the gun to hit me. I caught the gun as it hit me on the nose. He let loose, and being overbalanced I fell back. There has been something said about blood on the gun. Tom Owen said my face was bloody. I picked up the gun and the man ran up the road."

"Who was the first man you told?"

"Tom Owen."

"Was your statement to Tom Owen the same as you made at the Coroner's inquest?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you follow the man?"

"Well, after getting the gun and seeing him running up the road, my next thought was for my wife. She was lying on the left-hand side of the car. I had to step on her dress to get in. I felt of her pulse, but I knew I couldn't tell, being excited, whether she was dead or living. I hollered 'Murder!' and 'Help!' and blew the horn, but knowing there was a doctor at Tom Owen's, I seated my wife on the left seat.

Held Wife As He Ran Car.

"Her head dropped forward, and, holding her with one hand, I ran the car with the other. A little way down the lights went out. I fixed my wife in the seat and jumped out to fix the lights. I realized then I had no coat on. I lit the lamps and went on to Mr. Owen's house."

Q.—How fast did you run back? A.—About forty or fifty miles an hour.

Q.—Can you recall how near the belt line it was that you stopped? A.—No. I remember, though, that the car jumped nearly two feet when it did cross the belt line tracks. There was one bad turn where I had to let go of my wife once to use both hands for the turn. Mr. Owen and Dr. Mercer helped me carry my wife into the library. I asked if I should send for an ambulance or take her to a hospital, but he said she was dead. I remember asking a second time if she were dead.

Q.—Do you know where your coat was found? A.—Dr. Mercer found it on the footboard of the machine.

Q.—Did you give Mr. Owen and the officers all the information possible? A.—I told everybody what I knew and said I'd show them the spot.

Q.—When they asked what you did with the gun, what did you say? A.—I said I had put it into the rear of the car. They said it wasn't there, and I said perhaps it had been jolted out at the belt line crossing.

Describes the Slayer.

Beattie was asked what description of the man he gave.

"I told everybody he was a large man, about six feet tall, with his face full of beard," he said.

He then went on to say that it was a dark night and that both sides of the spot where the murder occurred were heavily wooded. The prisoner said the lights of his machine did not help him any in seeing the man, and that his description was a guess.

"Did you know whether he was a white man or a negro?"

"I think he was a white man, by his voice."

"The detectives have testified that you showed no signs of grief. How was that?"

"Well, there were several ladies at the house, and when the detectives came they were all strangers to me, and I tried to compose myself to give them all the information I could."

Q.—Whose suggestion was it that they go out and find the gun? A.—Mine, but they all told me I was in no condition to run the car.

Q.—Do you remember placing the car around the blood spot? A.—A lot of detectives were there that afternoon. They wanted my car and I got my brother to give it to them. I had nothing to do with placing the car.

Q.—Is there any reason why blood couldn't get into the road from the car? A.—No.

Girl Was Sorry for Him.

Q.—Did you see Paul Beattie on Wednesday night? A.—Yes. He came over and told me Beulah said she was sorry for me.

"Did you tell Paul Beattie," asked Mr. Smith, "that if she bothered you, you could kill her if it took a hundred years?"

"I said I didn't want her to bother me."

"Paul Beattie has testified that he came back on Thursday to give you an answer from Beulah. How long did he stay?"

"About a half to three-quarters of an hour. I asked if the police had been to see her."

"Why did you ask that?"

"Because that afternoon Detective Scherer had been questioning me about going with the Binford girl. I told him I didn't mind telling him anything in the world about my relations with the girl, but not to let it get out to my people."

"Did Mr. Scherer intimate to you that it might be considered a motive for the crime?"

"No."

"Paul Beattie said when he saw you, you expected to be arrested. Did you say so to him?"

"No, Sir."

Beattie testified that during his talk with Paul they were sitting on the porch with several other people within hearing.

Denies Admitting Crime.

"Now Paul Beattie has declared that he said 'this thing looks black to me,' and that you said, 'I wish to 'God I hadn't done it, though she never loved me, and only married me for my money.' Did you ever make that statement?"

"No."

"Paul Beattie said you remarked 'how did those detectives find out there was a No. 6 shell in that gun.' Did you make any such statement?"

"No."

Beattie told of his visit to the home of Attorney Smith in company with John Sandifer and Luther Wells, declaring he did not know he was to be arrested.

"I told Mr. Smith," said he, "that I thought they were going to bring the Binford girl into the case, and I gave him all the information I could. When I left I told Sandifer and Wells that I wanted to call up Paul and find out if the police had been to see Beulah. That was all."

A sharp argument ensued as to Beulah Binford's being produced in court, counsel for the defense declaring the girl had been held in jail incommunicado. Judge Watson said it was not his impression that counsel for the defense was prevented from seeing her, and that if it were not the intention of either side to put her on the stand, he wanted to release her from jail. The prosecution intimated that it intended to call her later.

Beattie's examination was then resumed, and he denied emphatically that he had been on the Midlothian Turnpike before the murder that night. He said he was not there at the time stated by Roland Sydnor, a witness for the prosecution.

"It has been testified that you identified that gun," said Mr. Smith. "Will you tell all you know about that gun?"

"The next morning, when the gun was found, several people were standing around, and we all asumed that it was the gun with which the murder was committed."

"Did you have a chance to examine the gun before that?"

"No."

Gun Brought Into Court.

Sheriff Gill brought to the courtroom both the gun and the blood-stained clothing of the prisoner.

"Was it possible for you to identify that gun?"

"No. That was the only gun found and everybody naturally concluded that was the gun with which my wife was murdered."

Hill Carter, for the defense, then said the defense desired to have Beattie get into the car and demonstrate to the jury how he says the shot was fired and how his wife was seated.

While the car was being sent for the defense asked permission to recall Charles H. Kestleberg to the stand to ask one question. Prosecutor Wendenburg objected to breaking into Beattie's examination, but Judge Watson allowed Kestleberg to take the stand.

"What was the number of your car?" asked Mr. Smith.

"D11," said Mr. Kestleberg.

Lee Paschal, one of the boys who came from the dance at Bonair on the night of the murder and testified for the State, was asked if he remembered the number of the car which he and the other boys saw with the woman on the left running-board. He said it was "D11."

Court adjourned for luncheon at 1:15 with the understanding that counsel were to confer about the demonstration with the car by the prisoner.

The examination of the fatal automobile and the demonstration by the prisoner were dispensed with by agreement of counsel. This announcement was made on the reconvening of court at 2:55 o'clock, and the defense thereupon declared that it had rested its case. The cross-examination of the prisoner was then begun.

Beattie's Cross-Examination.

The prosecution devoted the first hour or more of cross-examination to a searching inquiry into Beattie's relations with Beulah Binford. The prisoner insisted that he could not have had any love for the girl.

Beattie was examined regarding a daily diary kept by Beula Binford. He admitted that he had seen the diary and that it expressed the girl's feelings toward him. The court ruled that the diary was admissible as evidence only when it came "from the sworn lips of Beulah Binford."

"Mr. Beattie," said Prosecutor Wendenberg, "you have been asked by your counsel several questions as to what your testimony was before the Coroner. Under the statutes of Virginia that evidence before the Coroner cannot be used against yourself. Now, do you waive your right and say that that the commonwealth may use the evidence given by you before the Coroner?"

Counsel for the defense objected that the question should not be asked before the jury. The court sustained this view and asked the jury to disregard the prosecution's proposition "and not to draw any unfavorable inferences therefrom."

The prisoner admitted taking Beulah Binford out riding on Thursday night preceding the homicide but denied that he either saw or telephoned Paul Beattie on Thursday night.

Q.—Did you ever phone to Paul at any time to meet you at Short and Main Streets? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you ever go to McEvoy's barroom? A.—No. I don't know where McEvoy's barroom is. I'm pretty certain that on Saturday night, which was the only night I was with him, I didn't take any drink with him.

Contradicts Cousin Paul.

Q.—Paul has testified that after you left McEvoy's on Thursday you took him home. A.—I didn't see him any night except Saturday.

Q.—Then your denial covers all that Paul has testified as to what you did that Thursday night? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, if John Joseph, owner of the place on the corner of Short and Main, and John Britton, with him would testify that they saw you on Thursday night before the murder and if a lady, Mrs. Nolan, who was sitting on the porch that night, would testify that you came to Paul's home on Thursday night, and Mrs. Beattie would testify likewise, would you still say that you were not with Paul that night? A.—Yes, Sir. There was only one night I could have possibly been in McEvoy's, and that was Saturday night and I'm pretty sure I wasn't there then.

Q.—That's the night Paul says you gave him instructions about the gun, isn't it? A.—So he said.

Q.—On Saturday night Paul came to your store? A.—About 7 or 8 o'clock. I didn't notice him. I just happened to see him there.

Q.—What time did you leave the store that night? A.—About 10:20 or 10:25 o'clock.

Q.—Do you deny leaving a Mr. Fortune, to whom you were showing a pair of shoes for his child, to speak to Paul? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you deny talking to Paul then? A.—Yes.

Q.—After the store closed Paul was waiting for you, wasn't he? A.—I was lighting the lights on my car when he came up. He asked me where I was going and I said into Richmond and he said he was going there, so I took him along.

Q.—Didn't Paul carry packages or messages to Beulah Binford for you? A.—About three years ago I sent a package by him.

Q.—What was in it? A.—In don't remember.

Q.—You never asked Paul to carry any messages either? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't Paul come over often to the store? A.—Yes, and we used to watch him, too.

Q.—You are trying to blacken Paul as much as you can, aren't you? A.—No, I am telling the truth and can prove it by every clerk in our store.

Asked About Girl's Diary.

Q.—Did you ever see Beulah's diary that she began to keep after she got back to Richmond? A.—I believe I did. I think I glanced through it.

The prisoner said he didn't remember when he read the diary.

The prosecution produced the diary.

Q.—Did the diary give expression of her feelings toward you? A.—I really don't know what is in there.

Q.—Wasn't that diary kept for the purpose of writing you a note every day? A.—I never received it if she did.

Q.—You saw this diary and it gave expression to her feelings toward you? A.—Yes.

Regarding the admissibility of the diary the court ruled that it should come "from the sworn lips of Beulah Binford."

"I do not think that book is testimony," concluded Judge Watson, who cut off the prosecution from proceeding further with questions regarding the diary.

Mr. Wendenburg produced the "Dear Kid" letter, concerning the purchase of furniture for the Binford girl, inclosing a ten-dollar check, and the witness admitted writing it. It was dated July 14, or four days before the murder.

Q.—Didn't you on Thursday after the homicide send to Detective Scherer that you had sent Beulah any money or had aided her in any way? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you asked about that? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—In the presence of Dr. Loving, Sergeant Weems, and Detective Wiltshire, didn't Detective Scherer ask you concerning the money? A.—If he had I would have told him. I told all I knew.

Insisted on Expense Bill.

Q.—In your "Dear Kid" letter you asked Beulah to get an itemized bill of the furniture and what must be paid each week? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why was that? A.—I thought she might say the bill was larger than it was.

Q.—"With oceans of love." What do you mean by that? A.—Nothing. Just gush or taffy.

Q.—"Brimming with kisses." What do you mean? A.—Well, few men are with a girl of that kind and don't kiss her. It's not a cold-blooded act.

Q.—The fact is that on July 14 you were making preparations for an independent home for her? A.—I wasn't making any more preparations than the rest of them. She couldn't stay with her sister or mother. Her sister wouldn't walk down the main street with her.

Q.—Will you deny being with Beulah toward the end on Monday, Thursday and Saturday? A.—The week before the homicide I saw her those three nights.

The prosecution went back to Paul Beattie's story of buying a gun for his cousin.

"It was testified by Paul," he said, "that at a quarter after 10 o'clock on the Saturday night before the murder he gave you the gun. Now, if you took Paul home at 10:20, you must have gotten the gun then?"

"I didn't get any gun from him."

"What time did you get to Paul's house that night?"

"About a quarter to 11."

No Motive for the Murder.

The questioning shifted to the night of the tragedy.

Q.—Where did the highwayman have the gun hid? A.—I don't know that he had it hid. I didn't see it until he raised the gun and pointed it at me.

Q.—What reason could that man have for murdering you or your wife? A.—None that I know of. Might have been trying to scare me. He might have been drunk.

Q.—Was he staggering? A.—He swerved in the road, but that wasn't necessarily because he was drunk.

Q.—There was no provocation given by you, was there? A.—None that I know of, unless I might have tried to prevent him from going across the road.

Q.—How far away from you was the man? A.—I can't say. I know that I had to stop short not to hit him. If I hadn't stopped I would have been in some jail to answer for it.

"Don't you know that you are here to-day because you did stop—"

Counsel for the defense objected and the court sustained the objection.

Q.—When the man in front of your car made the threat what did your wife say?

A.—Nothing.

Q.—She went to her death in silence?

A.—I reckon she had enough confidence in me to handle the situation.

Q.—Was your wife looking at the man?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—Didn't the wound show it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You mean to say she didn't scream?

A.—No.

Q.—Even when the gun was pointed at her?

A.—It wasn't pointed at her. I thought he was pointing it at me, and when the car jerked forward and I tent down he fired at her.

Q.—What reason did he have to point it at you?

A.—I thought he was trying to shoot above my head to scare me.

Tells of Slayer's Flight.

Q.—What did the man say?

A.—Nothing.

Q.—What did he do?

A.—He started to hit me with the gun when I got to the rear of the car.

Q.—You say he was a powerful man?

A.—He was a large man and probably powerful.

Q.—You say, you started toward the man. What for?

—To fight, I reckon.

Q.—Did you fight?

A.—Well, as I say, I fell down after getting the gun and the man was up the road.

Q.—Then after you had captured the gun you first thought of your wife?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Then after you got the gun you were satisfied and gave up all pursuit of the man?

A.—I saw him going up the road and thought of my wife.

Q.—After you had disarmed the man who murdered your wife you thought of your wife?

A.—Yes.

The witness said he could not have reloaded the gun in time to shoot the highwayman.

Q.—Did the man run? Yes.

Q.—Very fast? A.—I couldn't tell. I could only see a yard or so.

Q.—So you fell to the ground after getting the gun, and the man saw you on the ground and yet ran? A.—Yes.

Q.—Which part of the gun struck you on the nose. A.—The stock.

"Then as soon as you picked the gun up you

DIEGEL TELLS PART OF BRIBERY STORY

Not Satisfactory to Ohio Prosecutor, Who Says It Will Not Save Sergeant at Arms.

MORE SENATORS IMPLICATED

Diegel Tells of One Who Was Doped and His Vote Cast by Another Member.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Rodney J. Diegel, convicted Sergeant at Arms of the State Senate, has finally made a half way confession of alleged corruption in the Senate, but Attorney Gen. Hogan and Prosecuting Attorney Turner say it is not satisfactory and it is not believed Diegel will secure the immunity he desires unless he furnishes additional facts. The confession, in the shape of a written statement, was delivered to Prosecuting Attorney Turner to-day by a Cleveland detective.

Two weeks ago Diegel went voluntarily to the Attorney General's office and in the presence of Attorney General Hogan and Prosecutor Turner said he was willing to tell all he knew to save himself from the penitentiary. He was given one week in which to furnish his statement in writing. On the following day Diegel repudiated his agreement and said:

"I will tell nothing. I am ready to take my sentence."

The indicted legislators and others, fearful of the results of a confession from Diegel, had hurried to this city and caused him to change his mind.

His so-called confession is vague, but contains some points which will be submitted to the Grand Jury. It is a story of professional men of standing in Ohio, representatives of business interests, and politicians attempting to arouse the spirit of venality in the breasts of legislators. Failing in efforts which Diegel says were made to buy members of the Assembly, the lobbyists in question sought to exert influence on some of the legislators through certain women.

In his recital of the depravity reached by some members during the session, the Senate officer gives names both of members and lobbyists. The legislation on account of which these methods were employed is given in his statement.

The story of the Optometry bill is one particularly striking in its revelations of the methods resorted to around the General Assembly. Verification of the Diegel statement on this bill has been secured from numerous sources. The prosecution has much material in its possession. The Diegel statement on this particular bill is that certain lobbyists for the measure approached him with a proposition to do what he could. He names one of the lobbyists. Then he tells of an automobile ride, in which it was set forth that there was no large amount of money to spend, and that in consequence the money in hand "had to be spread around among the boys in the shape of wine suppers and joy rides."

The State's prosecutors do not believe the end came with these debauches. Diegel insists he cannot furnish the positive connecting link which will fasten the direct use of money on any one man in connection with this bill. He says he has gone as far as he can in respect to this measure. In his statement Diegel tells of wine parties at a roadhouse outside the capital.

On the Central Board bill Diegel has made available for the use of the prosecutors corroboratory evidence of manipulations which Attorney General Hogan already has stated are to be called to the attention of the Grand Jury as soon as it convenes. This part of the story deals with the efforts, first to kill the bill in its entirety and then, failing in that, to amend it.

Senator J. I. Hudson, who is named in the statement, had been approached by a lobbyist, also named, the night before the vote on the bill was taken. The lobbyist in question was attempting to influence the Senator to support certain amendments to the bill. They were together at times during the evening, but the Senator refused to be influenced. The next morning he was found in his apartments lying in a stupor. Heroic efforts were made to arouse him. Failing in this, just before the time for the vote on the bill, the Senator was conveyed to the Capitol in a closed carriage by friends of the measure who wanted it passed to its entirety.

Hudson was taken into the smoking room of the Senate where he was stretched out practically insensible. The room had been cleared prior to the bringing in of the Senator. Men who could be trusted had been secured.

At the moment the name of the Senator was called to vote the doors of the smoking room were thrown open, and the Senator was carried to the door. The voting response came in answer to a signal from the floor of the Senate. The vote of the Senator was actually cast by one of the men who were holding him up. With this travesty on legislation over, the Senator was carried away.

Diegel in his statement says he is convinced the Senator was doped deliberately in order to make his appearance at the Senate Chamber impossible. The Senator voted right on the bill and the efforts of members of the opposition lobby came to naught, though the method of defeating it brought criticism from many of the Senators. Diegel does not stand alone in this description of one manner in which some of the legislation of Ohio was enacted during the past Winter. The scene in its entirety is described in the statements of a number of Senators who saw and were shocked at what was going on.

Certain representatives of the Ohio Manufacturers' Association and their methods figure extensively in the long statement of the sergeant-at-arms. Until their activity is probed to the bottom, Diegel says, the real story of what happened in Columbus during the past Winter will not be reached.

Returning to the detailed story of what he knows about the record of the Assembly Diegel sets forth that to the best of his knowledge certain members of the Assembly, both Senate and House, were regularly on the pay-roll of lobbyists representing big business interests. He names both lobbyists and members. He insists, however, that he is not in a position to cinch this for the State in its efforts to get at the bottom of the bribery scandal.

Diegel says there was no money used on the first big liquor bill of the session. With reference to the second liquor bill the statement carries his version of the attempted bribery of five members of the House by a liquor lobby. His statement contains the names of the members and the lobbyists. Much, if not all, of this information has been in the hands of the prosecution for some time.

Prosecuting Attorney Turner said tonight:

"Diegel admits that he knows of bribery deals in the Legislature, but he refuses to give information about certain ones of them because, as he says, a member of the Legislature who is his close friend would be implicated. Diegel some time ago said there were certain things that he would not permit me to question him about. I told him I would not stand for anything less than a complete confession, and that he would have to implicate his friend or friends if he expected me and Attorney General Hogan to recommend mercy for him.

"In his statement he still persists in saying nothing about bribery deals that I know he knows something about. For that reason I will have nothing to do with him until he tells all. I will go over Diegel's statement carefully, however, and if there is anything in it we can use, we certainly will present it to the Grand Jury. We are not trying to dictate to Diegel what he shall tell, but as long as he boasts there are certain transactions he'll never tell about, he can't expect much from us. I understand that Diegel openly admits that he is withholding certain stuff, and that he will see his tongue torn out before he reveals these things. Now, while he assumes an attitude of that sort, he will never get immunity from the State, so far as I am concerned. He has got to tell everything absolutely and he won't get any clemency from this office until he does that."

Diegel's statement does not touch upon or even refer to the charges involving either himself or Senators Andrews, Cetone, or Huffman, with whom he was jointly indicted. Since Diegel makes no reference whatever relative to the alleged bribery transactions in the room of the Burns detectives at the Chittenden Hotel, between himself and these Senators and the detectives posing as lobbyists, the State's attorneys say it cannot be considered.

John A. Connor, one of Diegel's attorneys, says he has in his possession a written denial of any knowledge that would reflect upon the integrity of any member of the Legislature, signed by Diegel.

Diegel, who arrived in the city to-night, says if his name is signed to such a document as referred to by Attorney Connor it is a forgery. He also said: "Men who ought to suffer in this business are running to cover like rats. While I propose to fight my conviction to the end, if the doors of the penitentiary do close behind me, I believe there are others who will go, too."

Next Saturday will be the last day of the court session, and some action must be taken in regard to Diegel's sentence before that time. Judge Kinkead will return from his vacation to-morrow or Thursday, and it is expected that he will call Diegel before him soon after his arrival.

There are some indications to-night that Diegel may yet yield and tell all he knows, furnishing names of Senators and amounts received by them for voting for and supporting certain bills. The disgrace that a penitentiary sentence would bring upon his family worries him considerably, and while he seems determined to shield certain Senators whose names are known, it is believed by many that he may yet weaken and furnish the prosecution with all the information desired.

TOY BOAT CAME INTO PORT.

Strange Craft with Post Card Sails Drifted Into a Bermudian Port.

A bottle message story with some original pills was told of by E. A. Newson, a passenger on the Royal Mail liner Tagus, which arrived yesterday from Bermuda. In the somewhat remarkable yarn the place of the customary bottle was in this incident taken by a miniature boat about two feet in length.

The narrator says he was a mile off shore from Bermuda i na rowboat on the afternoon of Aug. 23, when he saw the toy boat under a small sail skimming over the water. He tried to reach it, but found he was unable because of the reefs.

A few days later he learned that the boat had been picked up in St. George Harbor by Reginald Sylvester. The sails were made of canas and foreign post cards dated Monteideo, July 12, 1911. One card, neer posted, aws addressed to Miss E. A. Kive, Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, and contained this message:

"Write bark Romanoff, Capt. Hansen, Matane, New Brunswick, Canada.
"S. C. HANSEN."

On the wooden hull is "Aug. 23, 1911, Tvedestrand, Narge, (Norway.)"

On the day named a bark passed east of Bermuda, going north. Her name could not be made out from the island, but it is now believed she was the Romanoff, and that her Captain sent the little boat adrift thinking it would reach Bermuda. According to the maratime record, the Norwegian bark Romanoff would have been in that vicinity on her way from Montevideo, which she left on July 12 for Matane. The name of her skipper is given as Hansen. The bark hails from Tvedestrand, Norway.

ROBBED, WOMAN SAYS.

Reports to the Police That Five Men Got $388 and Her Jewels.

A woman, who told the police she was Annie Oliva of 215 East Third Street, reported to the Union Market Station early last night that she had been dragged into a room in a tenement house at 224 East Third Street by five men, who beat her, cut her clothes, and took $388 in money, two gold watches and four gold rings she had concealed on her person. She said she had gone to the place to see a woman to whom she expected to sell her furniture.

She told the police that she knocked on a door of an apartment where she expected to find the prospective purchaser of her furniture, and the door was opened by a man, and in the room were four other men. She said she was seized and dragged into the room, where the men demanded that she give them money.

Detectives were assigned to the case, and in a short time returned with three prisoners, who gave their names as Max Shalar of 224 East Third Street, William Kostcrchan of 642 Fifth Street, and Adam Furman of 224 East Third Street. They were locked up as suspicious persons.

MORE NAMELESS DEFAMERS.

Suspicion of Scurrilous Letter Writing Not Confined to Miss De Witt.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Sept. 4.—Information which may have considerable weight in the defense of Miss Harriet De Witt against the charge of having sent scurrilous letters through the mails to the Rev. Elmer E. Snyder and others was given out here to-day. It is said that the Rev. Paul S. Leinbach, pastor of the First Reformed Church, has received forty or fifty anonymous letters of a defamatory character, and that Harry J. Osterstock, a prominent member of the Rev. Mr. Leinbach's congregation, has been the recipient of half a dozen such letters.

Unlike the letters Miss De Witt is charged with having written, which were pen-printed, the letters the Rev. Mr. Leinbach and Mr. Osterock received were written in a fairly good hand.

A. Lee Shulenberger of Lancaster, who was elected a member of the Easton High School Faculty and subsequently declined to come here, sent his resignation to Easton because of the contents of three or four anonymous letters which he had received from this city.

The opinion prevails that three or four persons have been engaged in anonymous letter writing in Easton for years.

BOY SCOUTS END THEIR DAYS IN CAMP

Back to Peaceful City Life After Playing at War at Hunter's Island.

GIRL INVADERS REPELLED

Stern Sentinels Refused to Accept Smiles as Passports to Camp Yesterday.

Any layman who happened to find his way through the uncharted wilds of Westchester in a Labor Day outing to Pelham Bay Park, and thereafter over the part of it that loses itself on Hunter's Island, was halted at a line of whitewashed boulders near the northwest corner of the island by a determined khaki-clad sentinel of 14 years and four feet, who leveled a forbidding lance, and shouted in weak, if well-intended juvenile imitation of the soldier's stentorian call: "Corporal of the Guard No. 1!"

Immediately there ran up another lad, similarly dressed, who acknowledged with military promptness the salute of the sentinel, and inquired into the visitor's business there. If it passed inspection as to relevancy, the visitor was passed through the lines, and found himself in Camp Higgins, amid some 200 of the Boy Scouts of America, hope and military mainstays of the land of the free.

From the looks of them, they hoped for war and mainstayed rather reluctantly for peace. They lacked only guns (see the Sullivan anti-weapon law) and gory battlefields to make them seem perfectly complete and contented. Some of them were marching vigorously with drilled step up and down in the open stretch near the beach, wheeling and right-about-facing and double-quicking with hearts of Little Italy, Little Germany, Little Ireland, and Young Jerusalem all a-thrill with ardor and enthusiasm in this near-defense of the unthreatened shores of Young America.

Others were assembled in hungry expectancy in the mess tent, whence issued, borne on the bay breeze, savory whiffs of what they were waiting for, and the clinking of the tin cups and plates their eyes were skinned for. But even in their young hunger, Discipline sat beside Camp Master Lorillard Spencer, Jr., at the head of the mess table, and not a scout soul among 'em sang out prematurely for his soup.

Still others lay propped on their elbows in little groups around the camp flag, studying the Morse alphabet from textbooks on the ground before them, and signaling to each other with telegraphic keys of stone rapped rhythmically on the tin bottoms of inverted pans and drinking cups. Other scouts of the signal service, further off, wig-wagged furiously in a language all their own, in wigs that might have meant: "The country is in danger," and wags that must have meant: "But we are here!" And finally there were some scouts who, despite the fragrant whiffs that stole enticingly from the mess tent, devoted themselves with souls of unflinching duty to the menial but no less uplifting task of picking up stray bits of wood or paper that had here and there fallen to the ground and at far intervals spotted the park-like beauty of the greensward. Nothing in the nature of an intruder, animate or inanimate, was long allowed to elude the discipline of that place.

Some seventy-five of the Boy Scouts had been encamped on the island, as guests of the Park Department, since the middle of June, but all the rest had arrived yesterday and the day before, hiking in heavy marching order for the most part by highroads and byroads, in squads and troops, from places as near as New Rochelle and as far away as Kings Park, L. I.

The marching record of the thirteen troops assembled there fell to Troop 5, New York City, known as the Richmond Hill House Troop, and consisting almost exclusively of Macdougal Street boys of Italian extraction. These had been for two weeks in camp at Kings Park, thirty-five miles away. They left there on Saturday morning at 5:30 o'clock, in heavy marching order, each lad carrying almost the regulation army baggage—a heavy blanket, rubber poncho, and knapsack containing mess kit and all the clothes they had worn in the last two weeks. The little fellows reached Oyster Bay and slept in the hay of a contractor's barn there, after cooking their own supper. After a similar breakfast yesterday morning they left Oyster Bay at 5:30 o'clock, reaching Sea Cliff on the march at 8:30, and going thence by ferry to Rye. From Rye they marched to the camp, completing the entire distance of thirty-five miles in less than two days.

The boys of this troop ranged from 11 to 14 years in age. The produest of them all was their tiny mascot, thirteen-year-old Vincent Caccioppoli, who holds the top of his head just 8 feet 8 inches above the soles of his boots, and who kept in the van of the marching troop all the way.

Vincent, at the bidding of Scout Master Jules Diercks, put on all the trappings he had worn on the line of march, for a reporter. The complex presented a great deal of knapsack, blanket, and kit, and a very little Vincent. But that little bit saluted right valiantly ere it turned on its heel and hiked proudly to its tent.

The record march was accomplished without accident or mishap, the only complaint coming, at comic intervals, from the tiny tot who carried strapped to his waist the immense bass drum that preceded him. The drum, apparently, had a habit of retarding his progress and shoving him back, every two miles or so, to the rear of the column. But, despite the unequal contest, the little drummer beat the big drum.

A second record was achieved by Troop 44 of New York City, which marched all the way from the train at Bartow to the camp, a distance of two and a half miles in 29 minutes. Following in the somewhat too long and difficult footsteps of Scout Master V. P. Backora, the little fellows went almost the entire distance at scout pace, which is a sort of intermittent double-quick.

All hard work, however, was quickly forgotten in the joys of camp life, after they got there. In the morning the troops took turns at swimming races and boat races in the bay, marched in drill, cleaned camp, and fell to at mess.

In the afternoon they laid scout trails which, translated into plain lay American, means a sort of hare-and-hound game, several of the fleetest scouts running "wild" through the near-by woods and dropping behind them at considerable intervals a trail of small white beans. The rest of the troop, in several companies, then tracked them and tried to capture them.

In the afternoon there was more swimming and boating, and several ball games and athletic contests. Discipline though somewhat relaxed was never forgotten, and not a scout sneaked past the lines of sentinels into the water unless he had first obatined permission of one of the scout masters.

Somewhat of a panic was created in the camp later in the afternoon when a party of girls—the very name of which sex was anathema among these lordly followers of the stern game of war—appeared just outside of the line of whitewashed boulders that marked the outer limit of the camp. A moment later it became apparent that the newcomers, bubbling over with curiosity, were going to step across the line and invade the camp. Simultaneously came warning shouts from several sentinels:

"Corporal of Guard No. 1!"

"Girls are going to break the guard!" cried a dozen small voices in consternation from various parts of the camp, as a corporal and several other scouts ran hastily up.

Several of the pretty newcomers tried to ogle the corporal out of countenance. But the ogle was detected from afar by half a dozen scouts of the nearest tent, who cried in horror-stricken warning

"Don't you let 'em in, no matter what they say!"

The girls, after making faces at the corporal, beat a blushing retreat. Duty had triumphed. Yet the corporal didn't seemed particularly proud.

At evening the scouts began preparations for breaking camp, lowering the flag from its heaped-up base of white stones and thereafter gathering at council around the huge stack of firewood that had been awaiting the torch all day. There, in the glare of the bonfire, Camp Master Lorillard Spencer, Jr., who is also the President of the New York Council of Boy Scouts of America, spoke to them for a long while about methods of camp sanitation, emphasizing especially the warfare that all good boy scouts must, in cooperation with the New York Health Department, wage against the dangerous housefly—which, he explained for effect, was also at times a camp-fly. If it rains dead houseflies in New York for the next few days the metropolis may know the reason why.

After listening to the council speech and marching two miles back to the train at Bartow, the scouts, very weary but reminiscent of great joy, returned to their homes in the city, and by that fact shorn of their glory became schoolboys.

HER BRIDEGROOM MISSING.

No Wedding, and the Bride Tearfully Consults the Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Sept. 4.—Mrs. J. Eliza Stevenson, a Millville widow, appealed to Mayor W. Fred Ware this morning to find John Frisby of Vineland, who she says failed to keep a promise to marry her last night.

Frisby is 64 years old and a widower. Mrs. Stevenson says their wedding was to have taken place last night at 8 o'clock at her home. The guests assembled at the appointed hour, and the Rev. E. T. Polk of Ardmore, Penn., came to Millville to tie the knot. The bridegroom, however, failed to appear.

Mrs. Stevenson, accompanied by the minister, to-day called on the Mayor to ask for his arrest. The Mayor advised them to consult a lawyer. The minister threatened to sue for the expense incurred in coming to Millville, the price of the embossed wedding certificate, and his fee. Frisby cannot be found.

TWO HURT IN MOTOR TRUCK.

Out of Control, It Dashed Down a Hill and Struck a Lamppost.

A heavy automobile truck of the New York Telephone Company dashed down Snake Hill, leading from Highland Park to Jamaica Avenue, East New York, yesterday afternoon and, crashing into a lamppost at the foot of the hill, was overturned. The chauffeur escaped, but two men who were riding with him were seriously injured. At Bradford Street Hospital it was said Henry Withers of 891 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, might die. The other man hurt was Joseph Stork of 821 Metropolitan Avenue.

The chauffeur was Joseph Nicholson of 71 Howard Avenue, Brooklyn. The truck, weighing five tons and heavily loaded, was headed out for a Long Island point where emergency repairs were to be made. When a turn in the hill was reached the truck failed to respond to the brakes and, gathering speed, continued to the bottom of the incline.

Inquiry Into Coney Island Accident.

An investigation into the cause of the accident on Sunday evening at the Giant Racer, Surf Avenue and West Tenth Street, Coney Island, in which two women were killed, was begun yesterday by Supt. John Thatcher of the Brooklyn Bureau of Buildings. Four Inspectors of the bureau have been assigned to the case, but as yet neither the Inspectors, the police, nor the employes of the Giant Racer have been able to find what caused the car to leave the track.

WANTS OPEN HEARING OF BANK CHARGES

District Attorney Clarke Not for Grand Jury Inquiry Alone in the Union Case.

HAS SO ADVISED GOV. DIX

Letter Made Public in Answer to E. M. Grout's Demand for Grand Jury Action in Union Bank Case.

Anticipating the reply of District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn to the demand of Edward M. Grout for a Grand Jury investigation of the Union Bank, Assemblyman Louis Goldstein made public yesterday this letter sent by Mr. Clarke to Gov. Dix on June 23:

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE,
Kings County, N. Y.
Brooklyn, June 23, 1911.

Dear Sir: Pursuant to conversation with Superintendent of Banks concerning the affairs of the Union Bank in this borough, I to-day took up the matter of plan of procedure with Hon. Louis Goldstein, and now learn that you have offered to appoint him with full authority to examine and investigate the management and affairs of the Banking Department with relation to the Union Bank. This appointment under Section 8 of the Executive law would invest Mr. Goldstein with power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths, &c.

I fully approve of this course, and feel that it is the only way open to a satisfactory investigation of the affairs of this bank.

The 23,000 depositors of this bank for over a year have been inquiring from Directors and employes as to what the situation was. The only answer they have received is: They can not say a word. They have inquired from the Banking Department and have received no information.

A Grand Jury investigation, if it did not result in an indictment, would be a secret investigation, and when I would be asked by the depositors what I discovered I would, under such an investigation, be obliged to tell them that I was unable to tell them anything.

A solution of the situation is a public hearing in this county by an official with power, who can investigate, and, if evidence of any concrete crime is disclosed, to hand such evidence to the District Attorney, who can then present it to the Grand Jury. It will be a satisfaction to the depositors to hear and know of the evidence that is produced, and will, in a large measure, allay the feeling that now prevails in this county, not only among the depositors, but their thousands of sympathizers.

May I add that there is great necessity of prompt action in this matter, as I have reason to believe that there are material witnesses who, at this period of the year, are liable to leave the State.

I would therefore, in conclusion, recommend that Mr. Goldstein be appointed for this purpose under Section 8 of the Executive law.

Mr. Goldstein and Assistant District Attorney May, who has been assigned to co-operate with Mr. Goldstein in this matter, are both present at the dictation of this letter, and both concur in these views and join in this letter by appending their signatures. Respectfully,

JOHN F. CLARKE,
LOUIS GOLDSTEIN,
MITCHELL MAY.

Mr. Grout has so far resisted the attempt of the bank investigators to compel him to testify.

"There have been two Grand Jury investigations of this bank, one in February and another in September, 1908, and nothing was accomplished," said Mr. Goldstein yesterday. "As a result of the public hearings conducted by the Banking Department so far enough evidence was obtained to warrant the indictment of Sullivan and Southworth by the August Grand Jury.

"Our object is to continue the hearings so that if there is any incriminating evidence in connection with the administration of the bank it can be presented to the District Attorney to act upon.

"We want to get at the truth of things. We do not want to injure any man, and we are not slinging any mud. We want a public hearing of the affairs of the bank as the only fair way of enabling the 23,000 depositors to learn what became of their deposits, and on which not a cent has been returned to them."

The September Grand Jury will convene on Thursday. It is probable that this jury will begin an investigation at once into the Union Bank affairs, as Mr. Clarke intimated last month when the August Grand Jury was discharged that he proposed to have the next jury take up that matter. He said at the time that he wanted to wait until the public hearings had developed material to submit to the jury.

The investigators are awaiting the decision of Justice Putnam, who now has the refusal of Mr. Grout to testify under consideration.

CYCLISTS MARCH ON CONEY.

3,000 Ride Down the Cinder Path to Protest Against Losing It.

A bicycle parade was held yesterday afternoon through the Brooklyn Parkways. The parade formed at Bedford Avenue and Eastern Parkway at 2:30 o'clock, and proceeded down the Eastern Parkway to Flatbush Avenue, through Flatbush Avenue to Ocean Avenue, to Parkside Avenue, to the Ocean Parkway, and down the Parkway to Coney Island, disbanding at Steeplechase Park.

The parade was held under the auspices of the Greater New York Cyclists' Association, and was intended to arouse a popular sentiment against the closing of the cycle path on the Ocean Parkway. The idea of closing the path is being fostered by the automobile men, who are barred from the Speedway. About 3,000 riders were in the parade, among them many veterans of the cinder path. At Avenue N and Ocean Parkway Borough President Alfred E. Steers reviewed the cyclists.

Be Sure It Is The

Pianola Piano

Hundreds of people will return from the country this year with the intention of buying a Pianola Piano. In the country home which they have visited, they have heard one of these modern pianofortes—perhaps experienced the fascination of playing one, themselves.

They have learned that no previous knowledge of music is required to play the Pianola Piano—that even those wholly without musical training, can play this wonderful instrument with a beauty, an expressiveness, a brilliancy that only the really great pianists can equal.

Discernment Is Necessary

BUT some of these people may make a mistake that will be costly to rectify. They may fail to realize until after they purchase, that all player-pianos are not Pianola Pianos. And that the musical results accomplished with the Pianola Piano, are possible on no other player-piano whatsoever.

The supremacy of the Pianola Piano is international. Not only is it preferred to all other player-pianos, here in America, but abroad it is actually the only player-piano seriously considered.

Seven of Europe's leading Sovereigns are owners of Pianola Pianos. All of the foremost European musicians have given it their exclusive endorsement.

Briefly stated, the reasons for the Pianola Piano's universal pre-eminence are:

It is the only player-piano which possesses all the features necessary to artistic piano-playing, and—

It is the only player-piano which teaches its performer how every selection should be played.

AMONG the exclusive features of the Pianola Piano—fully protected by patent—the most important are:

The Metrostyle, with which, by following a plain red line on the music-roll, the performer is easily guided to artistic interpretation, no matter how difficult or unfamiliar the piece.

The Themodist, which raises the melody, or "theme" notes clearly above the accompaniment.

The Graduated Accompaniment, enabling the performer to increase or decrease the accompaniment with the flow of melody, and

The Sustaining Pedal Device, which insures a proper use of the piano's pedal.

The purchase of any player-piano involves a fairly large sum. It should be intelligently considered.

The name of the piano alone means nothing. Unless the instrument you purchase contains the genuine Pianola, it will not do the very thing for which you buy a player-piano. Namely, enable you to play all selections artistically and with enjoyable effect.

Pianola Pianos cost from $550 up. Easy Monthly Payments if desired. Allowances made on old pianos in exchange

Initial Displays of Saks Fall Clothes for Men

¶ This is a regulation announcement in that it is seasonable. But, bless you, there is nothing regulation in this Autumn assemblage of Saks-made clothes, except insofar that Saks clothes habitually strike the predominant note in every season's styles. That, however, is another story.

¶ Just now we want to advise you that our Fall displays of men's suits, overcoats, tuxedo and full dress garments, are rapidly approaching completion. Every day witnesses new accessions; and surveying the offerings calmly and critically, we cannot do otherwise than commend them to you as a highly creditable performance.

BELIEVE STABILITY IN AIR IMPOSSIBLE

Scientists at British Association Meeting Discuss the Future of Aviation.

EXPECTS IMMENSE AIRSHIPS

Prof. Trouton Looks Forward to Day When They Will Be Big as Atlantic Liners and Defy Air "Holes."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—At the British Association meeting to-day the future of aviation formed a subject of discussion in the mathematical and engineering sections.

The chief feature was an attack upon the notion of automatic stability. At the present time a great many designers of aeroplanes are working on this problem in the construction of flying machines, yet both Prof. Petavel and Sir William White derided the idea.

No subject, said Mr. Berriman in opening the discussion, was of greater interest to the public than flying. So far the art had progressed by reason of the daring of airmen and the enterprise of aeroplane builders; now it ought to attract minds which had matured, inasmuch as the next great line of advance should bring the aid of science in increasing the safety and efficiency of flying machines.

Dr. W. N. Shaw, the well-known meteorologist, discussed the difficulty which the wind put in the airman's way, a difficulty which, he thought, could only be overcome by greater speed. This, however, would not get over the trouble of "holes" in the air, into which aeroplanes fell now and then with results greatly disconcerting to their pilots. Meteorology was trying to discover what these holes in the air were. They might be due to variations in the velocity of the wind.

Prof. Petavel, who had just returned after a month's flying on Salisbury Plain, threw doubt upon the possibility of obtaining automatic stability, and even said he did not think it was necessary or desirable. The tricycle was stable and the bicycle was unstable, but almost all riders preferred the latter, and a mechanism in the air for insuring automatic stability would probably be dangerous in other ways.

With this view Sir William White agreed. He said he felt an instinctive distrust in automatic appliances. In his opinion there was nothing like human power directed by a strong will and careful observation. As to the general question regarding what science could do for aviation, Sir William said flying problems must be attacked experimentally. The help the mathematician could give was in analyzing the rsults obtained by experiment.

Prof. Trouton said he looked forward to the day when aeroplanes would be as big as Atlantic liners and could afford to disregard the small "holes" in the air that had been mentioned.

Wiley Favors Cottonseed Oil.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, declares himself in favor of cottonseed oil as a food product, and has advised a more extensive use of it in cooking. He holds that it will contribute much to the general health.

ENGLISH LABOR CONGRESS.

Delegates Represent 1,667,000 Unionists—National League Plan.

NEWCASTLE, Sept. 4.—There is unusual interest in this year's annual meeting of the Trades Union Congress, which opened here to-day. Five hundred and fifty-four delegates were present, representing 1,667,000 members, which is considerably in excess of anything heretofore known in labor deliberations.

Parliament is bound to be largely influenced by the upheavals in the last two months in the labor world, and President Mullin gave the delegates a lead in his Presidential address. He asserted that the workers had won hitherto denied advances in wages and other advantages by the recent unrest, and the long drawn agony of arbitration, he intimated, had about reached its limit. He denounced the railroads' policy of non-recognition of the unions, and sharply criticised the Government for employing soldiers for strike duty "instead of laying down the law to commercial magnates, whose high-handed autocracy had involved public suffering and would not easily be forgotten."

The congress has a week of heavy work before it. One of the larger proposals to be considered is the fusion of the various organizations into one grand national federation, to be called the Labor Congress, with the object of furthering the solidarity of labor and more speedily introducing radical improvements in the labor world.

The American delegates to the Congress are Messrs. MacFarlane and Tobin.

LUNCHEON TO DR. HILL.

Minister von Kiderlen-Waechter Entertains Retiring Ambassador.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The German Foreign Minister, Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter, gave a farewell luncheon to-day in honor of the retiring American Ambassador, Dr. David J. Hill, who on Saturday presented his letters of recall to Emperor William.

The luncheon was attended by Representative Bartholdt of Missouri and C. B. Wolffram of New York, the special Ambassadors of President Taft at the unveiling of the von Steuben monument at Potsdam; the members of the staff of the American Embassy, Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs Zimmermann, and several other Government officials.

The Imperial Chancelor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, was not present, he having gone to Kiel for the meeting between Emperor William and the Austrian heir presumptive, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, at the naval review.

Arbitration was one of the subjects of conversation at the luncheon, Mr. Barthodit strongly advocating, in a personal and unofficial capacity, that method of settling international disputes.

Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter greatly regretted parting with Dr. Hill and accompanied the retiring Ambassador to the railroad station, where he bade him farewell.

CONFER ON NEW SPELLING.

English and Americans Meet in London to Reconcile Systems.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—An Anglo-American conference on simplified spelling began to-day at University College, London.

Only two of the American delegates, Prof. James W. Bright of Johns Hopkins University and Prof. Charles H. Grandgent of Harvard University were present. Profs. Calvin Thomas and Brander Matthews of Columbia University and Prof. George Hempl of Leland Stanford University are expected later.

The proceedings of the conference will be kept private until a report has been made to the American and British societies. The conference will endeavor to reconcile the differing systems of the two societies.

CHERBOURG PORTERS STRIKE

Refuse to Unload the Baggage of the St. Paul's Passengers.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Passengers arriving by the American liner St. Paul at Cherbourg early this morning were delayed in getting off to Paris owing to a strike of baggage porters.

The men loaded the baggage on the ship's tender, but upon reaching the wharf refused to unload it unless their wages were increased. Their demands were refused.

The steamer carried only thirty first cabin passengers, and the company's own employes made up a shift to handle the baggage. The train was delayed an hour and a half in starting for the capital.

FRENCH FLEET READY, SALUTES PRESIDENT

Marine Minister Delcasse Says Every Vessel of Great Armada Is Prepared for Service.

NO WAR, SAY THE GERMANS

Minister Says Negotiations Will Probably End in Recognition of France's Predominance in Morocco.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Minister of Marine, Théophile Delcassé, at the close of to-day's review at Toulon of the most powerful fleet that France has ever assembled, made a declaration which has aroused intense interest and much comment here.

On being congratulated by Senators and Deputies, the Minister said:

"The vessels which you have just seen file past before you are ready to be commissioned. Their powder magazines are full, and all of them could be mobilized immediately.

"It was not my desire to 'bluff.' I made a point of showing the country only the vessels which are complete and ready. Thus, the Victor Hugo and the Vergniaud might at a push have been present at the review, but I would not hear of it. I preferred to be absolutely sincere."

TOULON, Sept. 4.—The greatest fleet that France has ever brought together was reviewed in the roadstead here to-day by President Fallières, who was accompanied by Premier Caillaux and all the members of the Cabinet, a large representation of Senators, and some 200 Deputies.

Formed in two perfect alignments out in the beautiful bay were eighteen battleships, six of them of the all-big-gun type; nine armored cruisers, and twenty-five torpedo boats and torpedo-boat destroyers. The fleet was commanded by four Vice Admirals and eight Rear Admirals, and was manned by 1,700 officers and 26,907 men.

President Fallières and the Cabinet Ministers reviewed the fleet from the battleship Massena, on the bridge of which a gorgeous pavilion had been erected. The Massena, attended by the cruiser Pothuau, on which were the Senators and Deputies, and four torpedo boats steamed slowly twice between the lines of the armada.

With the bands of the warships playing the "Marseillaise," and vast crowds along the bay shores and on excursion steamers and vessels of the mercantile fleet cheering, the whole formed a wonderful animated picture of inspiring patriotism on the very day that France was communicating to her ancient enemy her terms for a settlement of the Moroccan problem, and when the other great naval display at Kiel was in many minds.

KIEL, Sept. 4.—A great fleet of more than one hundred vessels of Germany's navy has assembled here and will be reviewed by Emperor William to-morrow.

The warships fired a salute on the arrival to-day of the Emperor, who was accompanied by the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg. His Majesty inspected some of the ships of more recent construction.

Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the Austrian heir presumptive, who is here for a special meeting with the Emperor, exchanged cordial greetings with his Majesty. He was the Kaiser's guest at dinner this evening on the Hohenzollern, together with Prince Henry and the Imperial Chancellor.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Foreign Office was advised from Berlin to-day that the French Ambassador, M. Cambon, was received at 11 o'clock this morning by the German Foreign Minister, Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter, to whom he presented France's written proposals for an adjustment of the Moroccan question.

The Foreign Minister was unable, naturally, to indicate in advance what Germany's response would be to France's proposition. He said that the proposal would be examined with the greatest care in a spirit of good will, and with the hope that a full and satisfactory solution of the matter would be found in it.

A certain shadow hangs over France in consequence of the long and continued tension, and it is visible on the Stock Exchanges of Paris and the provincial cities.

No date has been fixed for Germany's reply, but it is presumed that it will be received toward the end of the week.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The German Foreign Minister, Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter, and the French Ambassador, M. Cambon, met here to-day to discuss France's proposals to Germany looking to a settlement of the Moroccan dispute.

That there is no possibility of a war between France and Germany over Morocco was the substance of a conversation between the German Foreign Minister and Representative Richard Bartholdt and C. B. Wolffram, the Special Commissioners of President Taft to the unveiling of the Von Steuben Monument, shortly after Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter had received from M. Cambon the proposals of the French Government.

The French Ambassador, whose "illness" was probably due to the reluctance of France to resume the negotiations on the anniversary of her defeat at Sedan, called at the Foreign Office and communicated, in a short interview with the Foreign Minister, the decisions of the French Cabinet. Germany's reply to the proposals is expected shortly.

Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter had requested Messrs. Wolffram and Bartholdt to call upon him for an informal talk half an hour before the farewell luncheon given in honor of the retiring American Ambassador, Dr. Hill. The Minister discussed the general course of the Moroccan negotiations since the Algeciras Conference, including Germany's difficulties with France in obtaining commercial and economic equality in Morocco, and the subsequent "infractions of the Algeciras treaty by France."

The Minister was of the opinion that, while some difficulties might be met with, the negotiations would probably end in the recognition of France's political predominance in Morocco and in guaranteeing to Germany economic opportunities in Morocco, which must of necessity insure to her supplies of raw material, particularly iron, for the future, as well as the transfer to Germany of a slice of the French Congo as compensation.

Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter said he considered the question of raw materials very important, but not important enough to justify war, adding that a Chancellor who appeared before the Reichstag in defense of hostilities commenced for the sake of the Moroccan sand hills would have an unenviable task.

No public statement has been issued relative to the interview between the French Ambassador and the German Foreign Minister, and the Berlin newspapers to-day merely announce that the two diplomats met and resumed the negotiations.

The impression continues to prevail among German statesmen that the chief difficulties in the negotiations will be experienced over the problem of adequate guarantees for the maintenance of Germany's economic status in the Moroccan Empire, it being the belief that the questions of French political predominance in Morocco and compensation to Germany in the shape of concessions of territory in the French Congo are of easier arrangement.

The resumption of the Franco-German negotiations did not create optimism on the Boerse to-day, the tone being generally weak.

SIBERIAN GOVERNOR SLAIN.

Was Chief of Penal Settlement in Which Sasonoff Killed Himself.

NERTCHINSK, Transbaikalia, Sept. 4.—The Governor of the Zarantui Penal Settlement was shot and killed to-day by an unknown man. The assassin was arrested.

The man presented the card of an engineer of the prison and was received by the Governor in his private office. Immediately upon crossing the threshold the assassin drew a revolver and fired two shots at the officer. Both bullets took effect, the Governor being instantly killed.

Guards, attracted by the shooting, rushed into the room and the man, after a struggle, was overpowered.

It was at the Zarantui Prison that Sasonoff, the revolutionist who assassinated Minister of the Interior von Plehve in 1904, committed suicide last Autumn as a protest against corporal punishment inflicted at the prison. According to the Governor, the officers had discovered a plot to release the political prisoners. The authorities thereupon reinforced the prison guards, stopped all communication between the convicts and the outer world, and ordered the flogging of two of the prisoners.

As a protest against these measures three of the convicts severed the arteries in their wrists, and three others, including Sasonoff, swallowed fatal doses of morphine.

POPE BACK IN OLD ROOM.

During His Illness It Was Made More Than Double Its Former Size.

ROME, Sept. 4.—Although the old bedroom of the Pope, above the private library in the Borgia Apartments, is not yet quite ready, the Pontiff to-day insisted on returning and occupying it, saying that the finishing touches could be done while he was inside.

At the time of the Pope's recent illness his physicians recommended that the bedroom be enlarged, and while the repairs were being made his Holiness was removed to a more spacious apartment in the library.

On re-entering his old bedroom, now made more than double its original size by the removal of a partition wall, the Pope said he felt as happy as though he were returning among old friends.

The flooring where the partition stood has not yet been renewed, but the material being wood, the work can easily be done even though the Pope occupies the room at night

TROLLEY CAR HITS AN AUTO.

Owner and Driver of the Machine Blinded by the Car's Headlight.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Blinded by the headlight of a trolley car, Wilbur Jewell of Carmela became pocketed in his auto at the White Plains and Glen Roads last night while he and his party were returning from church at Worthington. The machine and trolley car came together with a crash. The machine was a wreck and had to be left in the road.

In the car with Mr. Jewell were Mrs. Leslie Jewell and son, the Misses Edith and Olive Wood, and Arthur Wood. All were badly shaken up and were cut and bleeding when help arrived. None of the injuries proved serious, and all were cared for by neighbors.

AUTO OWNER SLAIN BY THIEVES HE AIDED

Frederick Wennerstrom of Chicago Found Dead in Fox River, Near Cary, Ill.

SLAYERS ESCAPE IN MACHINE

Victim Carried Band of Safeblowers on Their Raids on Country Banks and Stores.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 4.—Frederick Wennerstrom, the owner and driver of a public automobile, whose body was found in the Fox River, near Gary, yesterday morning with two bullet wounds in the head, is believed to have been murdered by the same three men whom E. H. Wolenberg, City Marshal of Crystal Lake, saw in the chauffeur's motor car passing through Crystal Lake about six weeks ago.

At that time the suspicions of the City Marshal were so aroused by the singular appearance of the three men who were in the car with Wennerstrom that he took down the number of the car. The number was the same as that of Wennerstrom's, 4,281, Ill.

All three men, according to the Marshal, endeavored to hide their faces by wearing their hats well down. They were described as not being very well dressed. One was tall and slender and had sharp features; another was a medium-sized man, and wore dark clothes. The third was the shortest of the trio, and was rather stout. Upon this information the detectives who have been working on the case hope to solve one of the most baffling murders that has come to the attention of the Chicago police for years.

An all-day search for Wennerstrom's new five-passenger motor car, that has been missing since the night of the murder, was unsuccessful.

A bank robbery was committed at Highwood last Wednesday night. In the light of revelations, it is believed that Wennerstrom was killed a short time later, after the machine had gone through Cary and had passed over the Chicago Great Western bridge near there. The wavering tracks of the car on the road and the blood stains on the bridge lead those working on the case to believe that the same three men were his assailants. His body was found in the Fox River near by last Sunday, with a coupling pin tied to one leg as a sinker. He had been wrapped in a rubber motor-car blanket.

"I noticed something peculiar in Wennerstrom's manner when he came to me a few days before his disappearance," said Charles Barnikow, owner of the Monitor Garage, to-day. "When I asked him weher he was going he replied: 'Just up North for a little while.'"

Friends of the murdered man said that they believed he had been made a dupe of a band of thieves. They said, although he would not be a participant himself in any act of questionable nature, the large fees probably lured him to lend his ear to those men who have been committing the numerous Post Office robberies in the Fox River Valely for the last six months.

Posses were organized to-day to scour the country for the missing auto. Mrs. Frederick Wennerstrom, widow of the murdered man, expressed a desire to help in the search, but was advised by her friends to stay at home.

The police suspect that members of the victim's family knew that Wennerstrom had hired out for out-of-town trips by safe-blowers.

INTERCITY FLIGHT WON BY OVINGTON

In Harvard-Boston Meet He Makes 160 Miles in 186 Minutes 22 1-5 Seconds.

MILLING, BIPLANE VICTOR

Ovington's Height Varied from 1,000 to 6,000 Feet and He Steered by Compass—To Enter Atlantic-Pacific Race.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 4.—The Derby event of the second annual Harvard-Boston Aero meet, across country flight of 160 miles through three States, the longest competitive cross-country flight ever held in this country, was won today by Earle L. Ovington, a Boston boy, who flew a fifty horse power Blériot monoplane.

Lieut. T. D. Milling of the United States Army, flying a Burgess-Wright biplane, won in the second division for biplanes.

The course to Nashua, N. H., thence to Worcester, Mass., and from there to Providence, R. I., and back to Boston was covered by Ovington in 186 minutes 22 1-5 seconds, winning for him a purse of $10,000.

Milling, in his biplane, did the course in 322 minutes 37 seconds, getting the $7,500 offered in the biplane class.

But four men of the dozen aviators at the field started. Claude Grahme-White and Tom Sopwith, the Englishmen, and Eugene Ely and George W. Beatty tried to have the course changed, but they were unsuccessful.

Ovington, in his Blériot, was the first away at 10 minutes after 11 o'clock. He was followed three minutes later by Arthur Stone, flying a 50 horse power Queen monoplane. In the biplane class Harry Atwood, the recent winner of the world's record for cross-country flying, came forward as the first starter. In the second seat of his Burgess-Wright machine sat his aged father, S. S. Atwood. The fourth and last entry was Lieut. T. D. Milling, U. S. A., in a Burgess-Wright.

Two of the four fliers were early out of the race. Stone's gasoline tank sprang a leak and forced a bad landing in a ditch in Medford, ten miles from the start. Atwood developed engine trouble and came down in Winchester, twelve miles from the start.

Milling, who is unfamiliar with New England topography, lost his way soon after leaving Boston and was forced to come down in Concord, Mass., to learn his whereabouts.

Throughout the contest Ovington flew at a height varying from 1,000 to 6,000 feet, relying upon his compass to guide him. The first 40-mile leg of the journey to Nashua he covered in 49 minutes 32 seconds. At Nashua, 40,000 people were awaiting his arrival on the fair grounds. After a rest of an hour and a half Ovington started for Worcester, following the Worcester, Nashua & Portland Railroad tracks. In 45 minutes he was sighted by the 50,000 people gathered at the Worcester County fair, where the second landing was made.

At 2:22 Ovington was off again for Narragansett Park in Providence, R. I., following the Blackstone River. Cheered by the 20,000 spectators at the Rhode Island resort, the official landing was made at 4:07:55, or 45 minutes 35 seconds after the departure from Worcester, forty miles away.

From Providence it was a forty-mile flight to Boston. Six thousand feet over the big blue hill he was sighted by the crowds at Squantum. Tilting his planes, he glided for three miles to the finish where he was greeted by his bride lifted to the shoulders of the officials.

Lieut. Milling's race was almost a repetition of Ovington's.

Ovington's successful finish of the cross-country flight to-night determined for him a resolution, formed a few days ago, to enter the Pacific-to-Atlantic aeroplane race. He will be on the Pacific Coast within two weeks.

During the cross-country flight the regular events were held at Squantum. The quick-starting contest ended in a dead heat at 10 3-5 seconds between Beatty and Sopwith, both flying Wright machines. Another trial gave Sopwith the victory in 9 4-5 seconds.

In bomb dropping Sopwith won, with Beatty second and Ely third. Sopwith was also victor in the accuracy test in landing, with Beatty second.

In the figure eight contest Ely came off with a mark of 0:16:50 3-5. Claude Grahame-White with his Nieuport, made 0:17:19. He protested Ely's work, asserting that the Curtiss man had not rounded the course after completing his figure eight. The Contest Committee sustained the protest, and Ely announced that he would not appear again during the meet.

In a passenger-carrying contest of 18 miles Grahame-White was the winner in 17 minutes 27 4-5 seconds; Sopwith second, in 19 minutes 25 1-5 seconds, and Beatty third, in 29 minutes 50 1-5 seconds. Grahame-White's time is believed to be a new record for the distance.

In the altitude flight Grahame-White in his Nieuport monoplane went up 3,000 feet in 5 minutes 30 seconds, the best mark of the meet to date.

AEROPLANE GRAZES LORIMER.

Knocks Off His Hat Just as He's About to Make a Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Senator William Lorimer narrowly escaped injury this afternoon at High Lake, near West Chicago, when a Curtiss biplane, driven by August Kuzick, failed to respond to the operator, and, skimming over the heads of the crowd, crashed into a tree and fell to the ground. Kuzick was only slightly hurt.

Senator Lorimer was preparing to make an address to the crowd when the machine fell. Everybody got out of the way except Senator Lorimer, whose hat was struck by the dip of a plane and sent whirling out over the crowd.

FRENCH AVIATOR KILLED.

Falls While Flying in Spain—Motor Explodes and Sets Fire to Machine.

HUELVA, Spain, Sept. 4.—A French aviator, M. Leforresier, while making a flight here to-day fell from a height of 200 feet and was killed.

The motor exploded, setting fire to the aeroplane, and the airman was completely incinerated.

Aviation Pupil Breaks His Neck.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Alexander McLeod, 20 years old of Winnipeg, Canada, a pupil at a Chicago school of aviation, was probably mortally injured to-day by a fall from the areoplane in which he was flying, at a practice field in West Pullman. His neck was broken.

MISTOOK SHIP FOR TARGET.

Delaware's Shots Were Aimed at Panther Instead of San Marcos.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—According to unofficial information, the Dreadnought Delaware did actually fire her big guns at the repair ship Panther, mistaking her for the old battleship San Marcos, in the long-range firing tests in Chesapeake Bay a few days ago. Two salvos, it is said, were fired at the Panther, and Rear Admiral Osterhaus, commander in chief of the fleet, stopped the experiments before the Delaware was half through.

These advices indicate that the Panther was in serious danger. One salvo, it is said, fell short of the repair ship but uncomfortably close to her, while the other reached over her. None of the projectiles struck the ship.

The Panther was anchored 1,500 yards distant from the San Marcos. The Delaware was 16,000 yarsd away, and at that range the Panther and the San Marcos looked very much alike, each having two masts and one funnel.

COLLEGE MEN AS STEWARDS.

Dozen Who Had Been to Europe Came Back at Work on the Adriatic.

College men who worked their way to Europe to see something of the world and to spend the vacation period are finding in the labor unrest in England excellent opportunities for returning to their homes. The White Star liner Adriatic, which got in on Sunday night, brought back a dozen college men as stewards.

They went across the Atlantic in the early Summer on cattle and freight boats. After seeing Europe on limited means they found that there was a demand for stewards on some of the transatlantic liners. The dozen applied for places on the Adriatic and were signed for the trip. While the pay was not large, the vessel brought in many passengers, and as the average tip is $2.50, all landed with money in their pockets.

The dozen were George Rice of the University of Illinois, Vincent Cylkowski, University of Illinois; Arthur N. Thomas, Western Reserve University, Cleveland; O. R. Waterson, Western Reserve; Claude Kneupfer, Armour Institute; Frank Kelly, Massachusetts Normal Art School; Q. H. Findlay, Western Reserve; William Taylor, Western Reserve; W. Parks, Harvard; T. J. Keefe, Brown University; Ray Beech, Cornell, and H. Van Ripe, Nebraska University.

SEARCHED LINER FOR THIEVES

Police Notified That They Were on the Adriatic, but Didn't Find Them.

Police Headquarters explained yesterday why the Adriatic, which arrived Sunday night, was searched by Central Office men and detectives from a private agency.

Inspector Hughes of Headquarters had received from E. L. McNaughton, Assistant Commander of Scotland Yard, a letter and photographs of four thieves who were arrested for picking pockets at the Epsom Downs race course and served three weeks' imprisonment. One of these men, who gave the name of Henry Grace, was believed at Headquarters to be John Dalton, wanted in this city in connection with the murder on March 7 of Dr. Frederick Eugene Post, a dentist, who was shot and killed in a furnished room at 17 Catharine Street. The night after a saloon at 102 Second Avenue was looted, and Dalton, the police say, was in that raid.

Another photograph, said to be that of John Raymond, as he gave his name in England, is that of Charles Connors, alias "Ice Wagon" Connors, whom the police say is a common thief. The other two, James Ryan and Joseph Monroe, are not known to the New York police.

The police here were notified that Fred Rose, alias Johnson, an English thief, and Raymond and Dalton were supposed to have left England on the Adriatic. Rose and Raymond were wanted on suspicion of having been in a $25,000 diamond robbery.

The search of the Adriatic was unsuccessful, but other vessels getting in from English ports will be searched, as it is believed that all the men wanted are headed this way.

STUDIED CRIMINALS ABROAD.

Capt. Faurot Returns from Investigating Identification Methods.

Police Capt. Joseph A. Faurot, head of the Criminal Investigation Bureau at Police Headquarters, got home yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka. Faurot was assigned by Commissioner Waldo on June 1 to visit foreign countries and study the methods of catching and identifying criminals.

The Captain, who had much to do with introducing the finger-print and Bertillon systems here, was much interested in the methods employed in Paris and London to identify criminals both by finger-prints, measurements, and facial study. He spent a month at Scotland Yard and a like period in Pgris.

Capt. Faurot would not discuss his trip until he had made his report to Commissioner Waldo.

OLD RIVAL FLAGS ENTWINED.

No Discrimination at the Blue and Gray Reunion.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 4.—The Stars and Stripes and Stars and Bars will be displayed on an equal plane, neither above the other, in the coming first National Blue and Gray reunion to be held in Memphis beginning Sept. 27.

The committee in charge of decoration at the instigation of the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic decided that throughout the decorations on all floats the colors should be entwined and equal prominence given to both.

Schooner Carrie A. Lane Floated.

The four-masted schooner Carrie A. Lane, which ran aground early on Sunday morning a mile east of the Shinnecock Life Saving Station, on Long Island, was floated at high tide yesterday afternoon by the revenue cutter Seneca and a wrecking tug. She was not badly damaged. The tug I. J. Merritt took the schooner in tow for Boston. Capt. C. N. Stratton, who is ill with swamp fever, was put aboard the Seneca and taken to the Marine Hospital at Clifton, S. I.

GIRL FLIES BY NIGHT AT RICHMOND FAIR

Harriet Quimby Darts About in the Moonshine Above an Admiring Crowd.

TEMPTED TO CROSS HARBOR

But Flits Back in Seven Minutes to an Anxious Mother and a $1,500 Check—Lee Hammond Up, Too.

Fifteen thousand persons waited until the moon arose last night to see Harriet Quimby fly in her monoplane at the Staten Island Fair at Dongan Hills. She remained in the air exactly seven minutes, according to her mother, who watched her from an automobile, circling the fair grounds four times. It was Miss Quimby's second flight for money, and when she landed William S. Van Clief, President of the fair board, shook her hand in congratulation and pressed into it a check for $1,500.

The last day of the fair more than offset the losses of the previous days, according to Mr. Van Clief. The ferryboats and trains were crowded all day long and more than twenty thousand persons visited the grounds. There was no attempt to control the crowds, not a single policeman in uniform being on hand. Automobiles were used to clear the centre of the race track, and the speed at which they ran endangered more lives than the biplane and monoplane for which it was intended to clear a way.

The flying events were the main attraction for the crowds. Lee Hammond, Capt. Thomas Baldwin's pupil, ascended in the "Red Devil" biplane at 5 o'clock, circling the track several times. On his second time around the field he dipped low as if to effect a landing, and the tail of his machine narrowly missed persons in the centre of the field. There was a scrambling to get away, but Hammon tilted his fore planes and cleared the tallest men, then continued in a wide circle and made a graceful landing on the further end of the field.

There was a five-parachute jump balloon ascension which made even Capt. Baldwin, who has spent a great part of his life in the air, gasp with astonishment. The "professor" went straight up to a height of 3,000 feet with a bundle of paracnutes over his head. He dropped with these, one at a time, his body sometimes falling a hundred feet through space before the parachutes opened.

"I used to do that," exclaimed Capt. Baldwin, "but not like that."

"Do you envy him?" he was asked.

"Not a bit. I prefer a biplane."

It was almost dark when Miss Quimby's monoplane was wheeled out. The field was overrun by anxious spectators, and Miss Quimby finally took a hand in clearing it herself. She was in the touring car of Mrs. C. H. Fosgate of Quincy, Ill., her hostess. The other guests in the car were Mr. and Mrs. William Quimby, her father and mother; Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Carter, and W. H. Baldwin of New York. The automobile circled the inclosure several times, and Miss Quimby appealingly asked the crowd to stand back lest some one be hurt.

There was hardly a breeze when the monoplane glided into the air. Miss Quimby sent her machine straight ahead to the southwest for half a mile and returned in a wide detour. She went twice around the race track high up and then dipped low. On the third time around she passed within a few feet of the judges' stand and waved a handkerchief vigorously at friends in the paddock. She seemed to be enjoying her spin, and the motor worked without a hitch.

Her landing was a bouncing affair, the monoplane once rising ten feet into the air when it hit a rut. When the machine was brought to a stop the propeller, still in action, was within a few feet of the fence. It was a most difficult landing owing to the crowds.

Miss Quimby's mother rushed up to her as soon as she was clear of her seat and kissed her repeatedly.

"You were up just seven minutes, Harriet," she said, "and I think that I would have come up after you if you had remained in the air any longer."

"Oh! mother," the daughter replied, "you'll get used to it all right. It was grand. I didn't feel like ever coming to earth again."

"It was a great temptation not to keep right on flying until I got to New York," she told reporters. "The funny thing about it was that I was so hot up there. I think it was the effect of the applause which made my blood rise. I never had much applause before."

FOUR HURT GOING TO FAIR.

Swept from Running Board of Car by Runaway Horses.

Four persons were hurt yesterday afternoon while on their way to the Richmond County fair by being swept from the running board of a trolley car of the Midland line. They were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital at Livingston.

The injured are: George Neats, 50 years old, of 620 Richmond Terrace, Fort Richmond; his son, George Neats, Jr., 20 years old; Alfred E. Graber, 29 years old, of 51 Grant Street, Tompkinsville, and Harry Segal, 25 years old, of 770 Bay Street, Stapleton.

The car was crowded, and at the foot of Emerson Street, Concord, a team of horses that had been frightened by a passing automobile ran into the car and swept those on the running board into the street. William Welsch, Vice President of the Richmond County Gas Company, who was also on his way to the fair in his automobile, took the injured to the office of Dr. Lucy, who gave them temporary treatment.

At the hospital it was said that none was mortally hurt.

Mrs. Quinby said later that she was going to be the first passenger to go up with her daughter and hoped it wouldn't be many days before they make the flight.

YOUNG OSBORN CAUGHT.

Boy Wanted for Killing Bellis Over Love Affair Was Hiding in Woods.

Special to The New York Times.

STROUDSBURG, Penn., Sept. 4.—After hiding in the woods for eight days, Harvey Osborn, 17, who is accused of shooting George Bellis, 14, of Henryville, was captured by County Detective John M. Decker of Stroudsburg.

The boys were in love with the same girl, Cora Seargant, 20, and had a quarrel. Osborn is charged with seizing a shotgun and shooting Bellis. Terrified by his deed, he ran away and hid in the forests about the place. For six days no trace could be found of the fugitive. Friends helped the lad to exist. Yesterday Detective Baker went to the home of Osborn's grandfather, Dimmick Dietrick, about two miles from Henryville.

The ground around the place was very soft because of the heavy rains the past week. Examining the soil closely, Decker discovered that there were tracks leading to and from the woods. He suspected that those were Osborn's footsteps. Decker demanded that Dietrick tell the whereabouts of Osborn. Dietrick denied all knowledge of his hiding place, but this morning the boy was delivered to Decker.

No resistance was offered by the lad. He was exhausted by exposure.

Decker placed him in the county jail at Stroudsburg to await the action of the Grand Jury.

FUGITIVE SLAYER CAUGHT.

Helder Collapses When He Hears His Employer Is Dead.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 4.—Jacob Heider, charged with shooting and killing his employer, Patrick H. Fahey, last night at Darien, following a reprimand, was captured in that town to-day as he was making his way out of the State. He was brought to this city and locked up.

Following the shooting he escaped and hid all night in a clump of woods near the Fahey place, while searching parties scoured the country for him. One of his first questions on reaching the police station was as to Fahey's condition. Upon learning that he was dead he collapsed.

The police say that later he made a confession.

BRONX HAS QUESTION BUREAU

The City Runs It and Everybody That Writes Gets an Answer.

The Information Bureau in the Bronx, established some months ago by Borough President Miller, is doing a valuable public service, according to the current issue of The Real Estate Record and Guide.

It has received an average of 250 inquiries a month, and Henry L. Bridges, who is in charge of the bureau, never fails to get answers to them all. These questions relate to petitions for laying out streets, titles to streets, and the dates of vesting of title; confirmation of titles; dates when title proceedings were initiated in the Board of Estimate; the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment; the status of the proceedings of such Commissioners; the progress of various proceedings in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; the widening, regulating, grading, and paving of streets; the construction of sewers; advertised public lettings; execution of contracts; the dates when assessment lists were forwarded to the Board of Assessors; the dates when assessments were confirmed; the ceding of land for street purposes; outstanding taxes and assessments; prospective assessments; corporate stock issues for public schools, and so on.

Borough President McAneny of Manhattan has stated several times that he would establish such a bureau in Manhattan, but inquiry at the City Hall yesterday disclosed the fact that Mr. McAneny was waiting on the Board of Estimate for funds. He made his application to the board, but the request was sent back with an inquiry for more details.

CANADA'S LARGEST CROPS.

So Reported, Although the Season Was the Most Unfavorable for Years.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 4.—The official estimate of the Western Canada crop in three provinces shows these totals: Wheat, 178,500,000 bushels; oats, 223,500,000 bushels; barley, 33,250,000 bushels, and flax, 80,000,000 bushels.

The season goes on record as the most unfavorable of recent years, but the crops are by far the largest in Canada's history.

Three More Drowning Victims Found.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Three more bodies of the seven men who lost their lives in Maumee Bay on Saturday morning when their launch was struck by a freighter were recovered at noon to-day. The bodies recovered are those of Fred H. Shane, Secretary to the Service Director; J. M. Wisler, Superintendent of the Water Works, and the body of Harry T. Batch, Councilman-at-Large.

Gov. Oddie Under the Knife.

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL

By

REX BEACH

Author of "The Silver Horde"

HERE we have, to be sure, the zest of the great outdoors. But Rex Beach had done this before—you expect it. Now comes a big surprise.

¶ Neither a fluffy girl nor an adventuresome widow. But a real woman, compelling and admirable—when she is right and when she is wrong, too.

¶ At times she blazes over the pages; again she withdraws, leaving her fascinating shadow on coming events.

¶ Around and over this is a sweeping, rushing story of how young Americans are conquering the Isthmus—the engineers and the soldiers turned civilians. There is fun a-plenty.

THE GERMAN PEACE DEMONSTRATION.

On Sunday afternoon some 200,000 Germans gathered in Treptow Park in Berlin to manifest their utter disapprobation of what their resolutions called "the infamous war agitation" that has been carried on in Germany for some months past. This vast assembly was equivalent to nearly one-half of the adult male population of the German capital, and though there was probably a considerable number of women present, such a demonstration is a very formidable fact in the actual situation.

It is not the less formidable because the "infamous war agitation" is regarded by some of the best-informed observers in the empire as political in its purpose and intended to forward the plans of the Government in the approaching elections. It is true that only a small proportion of the manifestants have votes under the Government of Prussia, but the suffrage for the Reichstadt is very much more liberal, and the sentiment expressed by the meeting will not be without expression in the Parliament of the empire.

A MISREPRESENTATIVE OF LABOR.

Yesterday Mr. FRANK MORRISON, the Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, made a spirited address at the celebration of Labor Day at Binghamton. It was a passionate plea for all workingmen to combine in aid of the unions because the employers are, he asserted, combining to break up the unions by every available means, fair or foul.

It may not unjustly be suggested that Mr. MORRISON naturally magnifies the importance of the organization by which he is employed and that the growth of its numbers is not to him a matter of disinterested concern. But the plea he makes is strictly within his province so long as he presents his case with due regard to facts. But surely intelligent workingmen will not be attracted by Mr. MORRISON'S attack upon the motives of those employers who have sought to secure for their men a share in the ownership and in the profits of their business. The Secretary of the Federation says:

> The chief question of interest to the trusts to-day is how they can prevent their employés from becoming members of unions, thus minimizing the possibility of a demand being made upon them for an increase in wages or shorter hours of labor. The trusts are employing the ablest men that money can secure to perfect plans to more effectively bind the workers to the industry. One of the most plausible and at the same time the most vicious system that the representatives of great corporations are trying to fasten upon the workers at the present time is the so-called dividend scheme, a scheme in which the employés cannot make a suggestion either as to wages, hours or share of the profit. This scheme of the trusts to hold their employés is particularly interesting when it is known that a roll call of the corporations that favor the system will reveal the facts that they are the corporations and trusts that have absolutely refused to permit their employés to organize, aye, more, they have demonstrated their willingness to expend millions of dollars to keep their employés as helpless to change the condition under which they labor as the slaves were helpless to do other than the bidding of their masters.

The reference here is to the plan of the United States Steel Corporation. It is not a correct statement of that plan, and it ignores the very important fact that other organizations in various parts of the country are framing plans to which this criticism cannot remotely apply. Take, for example, the striking report of the committee of the National organization of the electric interests. This plan not only embraced participation by employés in the ownership and profits of the business, but included the principle of insurance against illness, accident, and old age at the sole expense of the employers and as a natural element in the cost of carrying on their business to the best advantage. Undoubtedly the employers look on this plan from a selfish point of view. They expect that under it they will get in the shape of efficiency and fidelity ample return for their outlay. But we do not see that this can be an objection to honest and sensible workingmen. Workingmen of that stamp are neither beggars nor sneak thieves. They do not wish to get wages or other advantages that they have not fairly earned. Mr. MORRISON does the class whom he assumes to represent a gross disservice when he assails plans of this nature. It is quite possible that, carried out in good faith on the one side and the other, schemes of this sort would tend to narrow the field of profitable occupation for professional agitators. We do not charge that that accounts for Mr. MORRISON'S opposition to them, but if we did it would be no more unfair to him than he is to the employers who are trying to work out a plan of harmony between themselves and their men.

DR. HILL.

The temperate statement which Dr. DAVID JAYNE HILL has given out on surrendering his post as Ambassador to Germany throws no light on the real causes of his resignation in April last. It simply submits indubitable evidence that his services have been highly satisfactory to the head of his own Government and that his personality and conduct have been entirely agreeable to the head of the German Government. That much he certainly may make known with propriety. It was indeed in a sense his duty to make it known, for it would distinctly be undesirable that his Government should be held by the public to be ignorant of or indifferent to the kind of service that it has been in his power to give, and which he has given with an ability, dignity, and professional efficiency which are an honor to the American diplomatic system.

We confess to a feeling not only of deep regret but of some mortification that the statement of Dr. HILL, while relieving him from all possible imputation of blameworthiness, leaves the public as much at a loss as ever to understand why he should have been separated from the service.

MEXICO'S POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

The riot on the Avenida Juarez in Mexico City Sunday was a serious matter, but not as grave an indication of the still unsettled condition of the sister republic as the continued Zapatista disturbances in the State of Morelos and the manifestations of discontent elsewhere, which prove that FRANCISCO MADERO'S influence is not as strong with the people as he hoped it would be. MADERO himself has taken a foolish attitude toward his chief opponent, Gen. REYES, and has made unprovable charges which may have stirred some of his unintelligent supporters to wrath against REYES. But obviously the mob which threw stones at the General and his party at the top of the Alameda was made up largely of the rabble from the capital's suburbs, dangerous men quite free from political prejudice, who were out to rob and to kill if the murderous spirit should be developed.

The blame seems to rest with the police. The removal of Gen. FELIX DIAZ, nephew of the ex-President, from the head of the police in the Federal District, has obviously demoralized a force which used to be efficient and trustworthy. The military were called upon to quell a disturbance which in the old days the rurales would have disposed of without much effort. The thieves fled with their booty. Under CORRAL and FELIX DIAZ they would have been apprehended and shot within forty-eight hours and the stolen property returned.

Such a riot, however, has no deep political significance. Its effect is offset by the orderly character of recent local elections throughout the republic and the intelligence manifested by the voters.

MR. BRYAN ON GAMBLING.

There was much wisdom in the Sunday address of Mr. WILLIAM J. BRYAN on "The Old Gospel." Mr. BRYAN'S ethical repertory is well filled and his religious views are sound. As a teacher of morals Mr. BRYAN should be serviceable in any community. He practices as he preaches. When he condemns strong drink and gambling, (not to mention the "higher criticism,") we know that he is sincere.

His reasoning, however, becomes unsound as soon as he crosses the border line of politics. He said Sunday evening:

> I have always advised my friends against betting. In my three campaigns I advised my supporters not to indulge in wagers. Those who took my advice can testify to-day to the wisdom of having followed it.

To be sure, everybody who did not bet on Mr. BRYAN in his three campaigns was glad of it. Nobody cares to lose a wager for the sake of a principle. But we fancy Mr. BRYAN'S moral advice had nothing to do with the matter. Betting men are always looking for a gambling chance. Few persons refrained from betting on BRYAN simply because he disapproves of gambling.

THE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

Mr. HAROLD H. HILTON, the British amateur golf champion, who has won that title three times, has twice been the winner of the open championship, and four times of the Irish open championship, has crossed the Atlantic intent upon taking the American title back with him. Naturally the contest for the amateur championship this month, over the Apawamis course at Rye, N. Y., will be the most interesting in the history of American golf. Mr. HILTON'S practice play at Garden City and Apawamis, since his arrival, has shown him to be "up to his game." That he has been beaten a stroke or two in four ball contests signifies nothing except that we have players here fit to match with him. Mr. TRAVIS, who has held the British amateur championship; Mr. OSWALD KIRBY, Mr. GARDINER WHITE, and Mr. SECKEL, the Western champion, will be worthy competitors of our English visitor.

A few years ago Mr. TRAVIS was the only American player who could fairly match his skill with the foremost golfers of Great Britain. He is still, probably, our best player, but we have lately developed a large number of "cracks" to whom a score of 150 or under for a day's play seems easy. Mr. HILTON comes, therefore, at a propitious moment. He will have no walk-over. The chance for a comparatively unknown golfer to emerge from obscurity and win the prize is good, too. The average of play in most of the clubs has been greatly improved, not only in the matter of long driving, but in consistency and accuracy at the short end of the game. To be sure, the public interest in golf is not noticeably large, but it may increase perceptibly if Mr. HILTON is able to carry the trophy home to Hoylake.

THE FOREST HILLS GARDENS.

Not as a charity, not even for the laboring classes, but as an example in suburban architecture of modern cost, Mrs. RUSSELL SAGE has capitalized the Forest Hills Gardens, which are being developed on Long Island within a few minutes' ride of the Pennsylvania Station. If successful, and successfully followed, most folks who fill our city apartment and frame houses will prefer to move out into the suburbs.

There is nothing beautiful in a rectangular brick block. Most of Manhattan Island and Brooklyn, however, is built up with such blocks, perhaps on the theory that buildings for human occupants must be ugly in order to be commercially successful. Mr. JOHN M. GLENN, Secretary of the Sage Foundation, says of the Forest Hills Gardens:

> Failure to make the project a reasonable commercial success would mean that the educational policy of the Foundation would miscarry. Its chief success, if it have any, will be the creation of an example of intelligent and charming use of real estate which will be tempting to other investors in the vicinity of New York and in more distant parts of the country.

One of England's garden cities reproduced in the United States, with greenery and flowers, a park, inclosed playgrounds for children, beautiful landscape effects, and provisions of convenience, accessibility, and sanitation, if made available for families of average means, will, by its example, work a revolution in the planning, adornments, and groupings of dwelling houses such as was wrought a generation ago by WILLIAM MORRIS and his associates in people's ideals of furniture, wall papers, and hangings, carpet weaving, and other interior decoration. In fact, this type of exterior decoration of dwellings and communities represents an extension of the reform which WILLIAM MORRIS set in motion. The measure of its success will be watched.

PERSISTENCE OF VAUDEVILLE.

The announcement that a larger number of competent actors than usual are out of employment at the beginning of the dramatic season, because the managers, though they have bundles of new plays, are determined to move slowly, indicates that the theatrical business is in the same plight as trade and industry generally. Business conditions seem good, there is no real excuse for commercial depression, but nobody is willing to take chances. Therefore a manager with six new plays to produce is preparing to produce one, and let the others wait. It is an open secret that plunging in theatricals lately has had dire results. The public which supports the theatres will not suffer because there is no embarrassment of theatrical riches. It will have enough and not too much. It is a habit of the public, which managers have noted, not to take more theatrical diversion than it wants—which accounts for the recent failure of some very good plays.

The observer of the theatrical field will remark, however, that there is no depression, no lack of confidence, no holding off of entrepreneurs in that branch of the trade called "vaudeville." The star of triumph shines over the variety theatres. They are all open for the season now, and crowds flock to them. The persistence of vaudeville is a noteworthy phenomenon of the hour. Doubtless the variety stage has greatly improved of late. Its appeal is not made exclusively to the illiterate, the uncultured, and the comparatively poor. But vaudeville, so called, is decidedly cheaper than the drama, even than the "musical comedy" which is often nothing but modern vaudeville, while going to a variety theatre is never such a formal and expensive function as going to the theatre has become. The carriage and the supper are not indispensable at either, but they are closely associated with theatregoing. Vaudeville thrives, too, because its performers are almost invariably competent. They do well exactly what they try to do, in farce, song, dance, and acrobatics. Intellectual uplift is lacking, to be sure, but the emotions are not strongly played upon, the tired spectator finds enjoyment and relief in the variety of bill.

This does not necessarily augur ill for the future of our theatre. Quite the contrary. In a certain sense the variety stage exerts an educational influence. But as the dramatic stage at present has to suffer from competition with a dozen or more variety theatres of the more pretentious sort and an untold number of moving picture and minor vaudeville shows, it is clear that avoidance of overcompetition in the drama is merely commercial wisdom.

> It is a gross delusion to attempt to conserve or protect public morals by suppressing the testimony in one case of divorce, while in hundreds of cases the meretricious details are publicly narrated in court or set forth in extenso in the reports of referees which are open to public inspection.—Supreme Court Justice GOFF.

Besides, divorce is a public matter. Without publicity the ceremony of marriage would lack all meaning. It is right, for any number of reasons, that society should know of a marriage, and that knowledge of all its circumstances should be accessible. Society has the same right to know of a divorce.

> Determined to protect what remains of the race of American Indians from rapid extinction by disease, which now threatens them, the Indian Office has decided to pursue a vigorous policy in improving hygienic conditions.—Washington Press Dispatch.

Is not it about time to extinguish the myth about the Indians becoming extinct? We have the word of Mr. F. W. BROUGHTON, in charge of the Statistical Division of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, that the sum total of Indian population has increased since 1890 from 243,000 to 305,000; moreover, that it is very doubtful whether there "ever existed within the North American continent an Indian population greater than that existing at the present time." The obstacles to a dense population upon the civilized plane occupied by the American aborigines were unconquerable. Terror of the savages multiplied their numbers in the minds of the first settlers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Reflections Upon an Assassination.

In the assassination of the man Rosso, shot dead from a near-by window or roof as he sat asleep in the backyard "garden" of a tenement house restaurant, there is to be seen another crime that will be described as distinctively Italian, both because of the manner in which it was committed and on account of its motive, which is supposed to have been the punishment of an informer.

Italian it certainly was, in the sense that like murders have been frequent among the immigrants from Italy, but the Italians whom such a characterization offends, and they will be many, can offer as proof of its inaccuracy the fact that in our Southern mountains men of purest Anglo-Saxon strain, so-called, are wont to kill each other in precisely the same way and often with the same motive. Kentucky has its feuds and vendettas as well as Sicily, and the American mountaineer, too, not only avenges his own wrongs, real or imaginary, without the assistance of the law and in defiance of it, but, in spite of the courage he shows when circumstances compel an open fight, he has no compunctions at all about lying in wait for his foe on the hillside and shooting him in the back from ambush.

No more than did that most interesting and philosophic scoundrel, CASANOVA, does our mountaineer see sense or logic in letting a man who in his judgment deserves death have, unnecessarily, a chance to inflict it. There is none, indeed, except under the mediaeval theory that a duel decides which one of the combatants is in the right, not which is the more skilled in the use of a selected weapon. Instead, therefore, of calling the assassination of Rosso "Italian," it should be explained as characteristic of a certain stage of social development—a stage through which all the advanced races have passed and in which some members of them all still remain.

The burden laid upon the Italians in these United States who protest against giving their ethnic name to any crime is that of proving both the inclination and the ability to take the ordinary risks of the good citizen in doing what he can for the common welfare. When one of them says that "the risk is too great" even to contribute money for use in suppressing brigandage, he should not complain if that attitude be described as "Italian" as long as it is not denounced by the mass of Italians here as unworthy, not of a nation, but of civilization.

Their Arms Can be Better Used.

One's inclination to rejoice over the activities of the "strong-arm squad" at Coney Island Sunday evening is somewhat cooled on learning that a large majority of the 200 men arrested had done nothing worse than break a rule of the railway company by entering cars by the window instead of the door. Now, that rule is one of the kind properly called "reasonable," but it has something less than the dignity and authority of a law, and its violation is the act of a boor rather than of a scoundrel—a piece of bad manners rather than a crime or even a misdemeanor in the legal sense.

Certainly this window-jumping is not the "car rowdyism" from which many decent New Yorkers have suffered so much—about which they have talked so indignantly—for the suppression of which they have made insistent demands on the police and the courts. They have been too long accustomed to seeing the seats in public conveyances seized by the strong and agile to get much excited over that, or, indeed, to regard it as anything more than another application of the first-come-first-served principle. The intolerable form of rowdyism is that which takes the shape of physical and verbal assaults upon quiet and well-conducted passengers.

To prevent this, to bring about its punishment when not prevented, is certainly the first and chief police duty in the premises, and after it had been done in fair approximation to complete success would seem to be good time for turning police attention to the relatively unimportant matter of window-jumping. Perhaps even then would be too soon, for the railway companies could, and therefore should, put an end to the unquestionably obnoxious practice by making at the few places where it occurs such provision for the arrangement and management of passengers as would render it impossible.

These remarks must not be taken as implying the opinion that the window-jumpers were in any way ill-treated or deserve any sympathy. They deserved all they got and more. Probably they who window-jump are they who later make themselves obnoxious in graver ways and so really come under police notice.

Skillfully Building Up Doubts.

Nothing in the testimony as yet printed offers an explanation for the asserted belief of young BEATTIE'S counsel in his innocence or for their frequently announced confidence that he will be acquitted. Even from this distance, however, it has been evident that their conduct of what was in the beginning a truly desperate case has been admirable as well as adroit. Probably they have not convinced anybody outside of the courtroom that BEATTIE did not kill his wife, but such comment on the trial as one hears now is usually to the effect that doubts of the kind that jurymen have to heed are piling up in numbers to make conviction uncertain, if not improbable.

Of course the lawyers for the defense are under no obligation to provide a victim for the law—to answer the question, natural enough on all irresponsible lips, "If BEATTIE did not do it, who did?" Theirs is the much easier task of testing, and if possible refuting or weakening, such evidence against their client as the prosecution has been able to secure.

As always under our system of criminal procedure the advantage is all on the side of the accused. He benefits from a dozen rules laid down to prevent injustice and tyranny, once real enough, but no longer even thinkable. "Not guilty" effects his release no less when it means only "Not proven" than when it means what it says.

THE SUPPORT OF WIVES.

Compares the Views About It of Suffragists and Their Opponents.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A California woman lately printed in the Woman's Journal a number of California laws that she regarded as unjust to women. Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer picks out of the list one that she thinks is not unjust, and publishes it in your columns as showing "the spirit that animates the suffragists." It is as follows:

> The wife must support the husband, when he has not deserted her, out of her separate property, when he has no separate property, and is unable from infirmity to support himself.

I agree with Mrs. Meyer in thinking that this law is right enough. But, if the California suffragist who objected to it went to an extreme, the President of the anti-suffragists in California goes to a still greater extreme in the other direction. Unless she is belied by the press reports, she goes about declaring that the code as it stands is not only just to women, but more than just—although in California a married mother has no right to her children, and all a married woman's earnings belong to her husband. A few weeks ago a California woman charged her husband with non-support. It was shown in court that during their whole married life he had never given her any money that he had earned himself. She had been maintained wholly by her own earnings; but, as a wife's earnings belong to her husband, the court decided that she had been maintained out of her husband's money, and that he could not be held guilty of non-support. The spirit that animates the anti-suffragists—a spirit of ultra-conservatism—is shown by the fact that they usually defend the law exactly as it stands, even when it is clearly unfair.

Mrs. Meyer says: "When asked if they think men should be compelled by law to support their wives, they (the suffragists) usually dodge the issue." Most of the suffragists of my acquaintance think it right that men should be required to support their wives, because the natural consequences of marriage seriously handicap a woman for earning her own living outside the home. If the father had to expend as much labor as the mother in bringing the children into the world, nursing and taking care of them, it would be fair to expect the mother to support herself financially, and to contribute half of the support of the children. Things being as they are, the greater financial burden that the law lays upon the father is only a fair offset for the greater physical burden that nature lays upon the mother. The ballot has nothing to do with it.

Excessive muddle-headedness was shown by that Connecticut anti-suffragist who introduced in the last Legislature a measure to exempt men from the support of their wives and from half of the support of their children if women were given municipal suffrage. The same confusion is shown by Miss Molly Elliot Seawell, who thinks that the right to support is given to the wife as an offset for her inability to vote, and must cease if she were enfranchised. Chief Justice Potter of Wyoming, Chief Justice Sullivan of Idaho, and Judge Lindsey of Colorado have all called attention to the ignorance of law that Miss Seawell displays in expressing this idea, which seems to be also Mrs. Meyer's. Chief Justice Potter says:

> None of the consequences or complications mentioned by Miss Seawell have arisen in Wyoming, where women have had full suffrage since 1869. Married women have not only not been deprived of any property rights which they had before equal suffrage was adopted, but from time to time statutes have been passed extending the property rights of married women.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.
Chilmark, Mass., Sept. 3, 1911.

Noisy Library Stairs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Cannot something be done to stop the noise made by children in our libraries? The children's department, in nearly all cases, is on the second floor of the building. In order to reach it the children must pass up the stairway directly adjoining the adult department. These stairs are of stone, and consequently the noise of shuffling feet is almost nerve racking to an adult trying to read or study. The fault is not with the children, who cannot be blamed for running upstairs with youthful eagerness, nor is it the fault of the assistants, who do their best to restrain the children. The stone stairs alone are to blame. If they were covered with a rubber or cork protection surely their fireproof reputation could not be seriously impaired.

The Geidel Verdict.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being somewhat unlearned in the law as expounded by juries, and being of a peaceable and timid nature and advanced in years, may I ask what is the age limit under the latest jury decision up to which young scoundrels may enter my room at midnight and rob and kill me without fear of the penalty for murder in the first degree? I understand that at 17 it is not real murder in New York to enter an old man's room at night and slay him in his bed for plunder. How about 18, 19, or 21 years of age? What is the age limit for assassins? ELDERLY GENTLEMAN.

Capable of Microns.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have never met Mr. Richards, but would not dare to say that he does not exist.

A micron being very small—so small that even the microscopic ten-thousandth of an inch is 2.5 times bigger—it is easy to realize that it is seldom used; though the faculty to use it is right there.

In answering Mr. Richards, my sole purpose was to demonstrate that his first statement concerning the metric decimals was ignoring or suppressing the subdivisions of the millimeter, despite well-fixed and recognized rules.

BUILDING MODERN CHURCH.

Cornerstone of Four-Story Structure of St. Ambrose's Parish Laid.

In the presence of more than 5,000 persons the cornerstone of the new church, school, and rectory of St. Ambrose's Roman Catholic Church in West Fifty-fourth Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, was laid yesterday by Archbishop Farley, assisted by several clergymen. The new structure which is about to be erected by St. Ambrose's parish is unique, being a combination building four stories in height. There is to be an auditorium in the basement which will accommodate 1,000. The main floor will be used as a church, while the two floors above will be occupied by the new parish school. The top floor will be used as a rectory.

When the building is completed the present parish house, located just east of the new building, can be sold, as well as the small church which has for a number of years past served the people of this parish.

Prior to the exercises a parade composed of Company H, Twelfth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., in charge of Capt. Wentworth Tucker; several councils of the Holy Name Society, a delegation of fourth degree Knights of Columbus, and a delegation of Ancient Order of Hibernians, escorted Archbishop Farley from the episcopal home on Madison Avenue to the new building.

After the cornerstone for the new structure was put in place at the east side of the building the cornerstone, taken from the old church, was put in position in the west corner of the building.

The Rev. Peter F. Guinevan, rector of the parish, introduced the Very Rev. John P. Chidwick, D. D., President of St. Joseph's Seminary, Dunwoodie, N. Y., who preached the sermon. Dr. Chidwick for a number of years prior was rector of this parish.

"Not less than $13,000,000 is contributed annually by the Catholics of America to support their universities and their parish schools," said Dr. Chidwick. "We acknowledge that the universities of the land perform a grand mission, but more important still is the parish school that exercises its influence over the little children, who need not only a sound education, but a spiritual training as well."

A large American flag presented by Company H, Twelfth Regiment, was blessed by Archbishop Farley and raised to the top of the flagpole. This was followed by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the school children.

ADMIRAL INVENTS TORPEDO.

At Slightest Contact with Aeroplane Terrific Explosion Will Follow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Rear Admiral Nathan Twining, who has hardly warmed his chair as chief of ordnance in the Navy Department, is scoring distinct achievements in his department. He has invented a dirigible aerial torpedo, which has met with uniform approval among advanced experts in ordnance.

It can be fired from aeroplane or dirigible balloon at any enemy either in the air or on the water or on the land. Like the submarine torpedo it is selfpropelling, and can be easily directed and controlled. It is fitted with a newly designed percussion fuse that is so sensitive that it will explode upon the slightest contact. Should the torpedo barely graze an aeroplane wing tip, it will explode with great violence.

It is believed by the ordnance experts that any air craft in the immediate vicinity of such an explosion would be totally wrecked. Admiral Twining says the highly sensitized cap will be equipped with a safety lock to prevent explosion before or immediately after it leaves the craft from which it is launched. This will add the necessary element of safety for those handling the device. The safety device will hold the fuse until the torpedo reaches a high rate of revolution per minute, when the cap will be swung into release.

Admiral Twining has not yet prepared one of his aerial torpedoes for trial, but he expects to have it ready for test at Indian Head within the next week or two. These torpedos will be made exclusively in Government shops, as the navy wishes to guard the secret of their construction.

The weight and striking strength of the new missile is not revealed, and Admiral Twining has not yet determined whether the magazine will be loaded with dunnite, the high explosive now used in the regulation navy ordnance, or with a new substance which the Ordnance Bureau has under consideration.

HE "BUCKED" THE UNION.

Boy Did Double the Regulation Day's Work and Was Threatened.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While my sister from up the State was visiting me a few days ago she received the inclosed letter from her eighteen-year-old boy, who during his vacation has been working for the —— company, Utica, N. Y., and, not belonging to a labor union, nor having had any experience in a shop, foolishly started to work for his wages, easily doing twice what the more experienced employes had decided was a day's work, and then to crown his folly, after having been warned, as he tells his mother in his letter inclosed, proceeded to treble the regular output!

I thought that, as a sidelight on the attitude of the average workman, it might prove of interest. J. E. L.

New York, Sept. 2, 1911.

Dear Mother: This has sure been a very eventful day for me. Down at the shop a couple of things happened that are hard to believe.

I was on a job which was supposed to turn out 1,000 pieces a day as a full day's work. Yesterday I turned out 2,050 pieces, thereby doing over two days' work in one. When I got down ready to work this morning I found a slip of paper with this on it printed in lead pencil: "We will kick the daylight out of you if you kill any more jobs. Don't think we are not wise. No more 1,500 bolts a day. Hand Mill Help."

Of course, I was some mystified. You see, the other fellows down there don't like to see any one really work. It doesn't agree with them. I turned the paper over to my foreman, a fine fellow. He got mad right away, and took the note to the shop boss, who also vowed to put a most decided stop to that business. Along about 4 o'clock I was asked to go and see him. We had a long talk. He reassured me as to my personal safety, and told me not to mind the warning. Then I began to get shocked. He said that he had been talking to my foreman about me, and had been watching me quite a bit himself, and that, although I had said nothing, my work had spoken for me, and my pay had been raised. In just two weeks at that! I tell you I never felt prouder of myself in my life, and he said, among other nice things, that I was the kind of man they were looking for, and he sincerely hoped I would stay with them. And he also told me that he was glad I had the sense to place that note in the hands of my superiors, as it was just such things he wanted to root out. We had a regular heart-to-heart talk, and I think he is all right. STANLEY.

P. S.—I turned out 2,856 of those pieces to-day.

Geidel and Wolter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The thanks of the community are due for your wise and temperate editorial on "The Geidel Verdict." Would that we had more expressions of the same sort from the press. They are sadly needed.

And where is the explanation for not carrying out the Wolter sentence? A more revolting murder than that has never been recorded.

ROGER A. PRYOR FINDS NEW GUN LAW VALID

Ex-Supreme Court Justice Says Constitutional Amendment Doesn't Apply to It.

THIS POINT OF LAW SETTLED

Another Lawyer Thinks Gun Carrying Will Be Easier Because Juries Instead of Judges Will Try Cases.

Former Judge Roger A. Pryor, in an interview yesterday, supported the new Sullivan anti-weapon law, which makes it a misdemeanor for any one to have in his possession without a permit a pistol, revolver, blackjack, or bludgeon, and a felony for any one to have such a weapon concealed upon his person.

"Articles and interviews in the newspapers in reference to the Sullivan law have, as far as I see, unanimously discredited that law as being invalid," he said, speaking in the library of his home at 3 West Fifty-ninth Street. "In support of their contention they rely upon Article II. of the amendments to the Federal Constitution, which says:

"'A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'

"But it is settled by uniform adjudications that this amendment is a limitation on the authority and power of the Federal Government only. The exceptions to this general statement are only those few cases in which the States are named, and the exercise of certain powers by them expressly prohibited. For example, when Articles I. and IX. of the Federal Constitution declares that 'no bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed,' it is still necessary, in order to extend the prohibition to the States, to provide as is done in the next section, that 'no State' shall pass such a law.

"In short, the restrictions imposed upon Government by the Constitution and its amendments are to be understood as restrictions only on the Government of the Union, except where the States are expressly mentioned. But nowhere in the Constitution is this restriction made applicable to the States. It results, therefore, that Senator Sullivan is entirely right and his critics all wrong."

"Are there any State laws now on the statute books that are made possible because of the lack of such prohibitions in the wording of the Federal Constitution?" Judge Pryor was asked.

"Yes," he said, "Articles V., VI., VII., and VIII. of the amendents regulate the procedure of criminal trials in the United States courts, but the States have without question exercised the privilege of prescribing their own method of procedure in such cases."

In making this answer, Judge Pryor referred to the case of Walker vs. Sauvinet, (92 U. S. Reports 90.)

One very simple illustration of the point raised by Judge Pryor can be seen in Article VI. of the amendments. This article begins with this provision:

"In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed. * * *"

Yet in this State scores of people are tried for crime every day without a jury. For misdemeanors, in New York, the Court of Special Sessions has exclusive jurisdiction in the first instance, and whereas a defendant may often ask General Sessions to assume jurisdiction, which would move the case from Special Sessions and insure a trial by jury, General Sessions need not make such removal, and frequently refuses to do so.

One lawyer who discussed the case yesterday agreed with Judge Pryor's argument. He pointed out that the practical administration of the law will depend largely upon the courts' interpretation of "possession." He called to mind no constitutional reason why the courts should not give the statute full effect by saying that it is a misdemeanor even to have a pistol in one's house without a permit, but he was willing to predict that the courts would make a restrictive interpretation, upholding the constitutionality of the law, but holding that it does not apply to the possession of arms within the home.

Another lawyer who was talking about the Sullivan law yesterday said that he had been wondering how the law ever came to be passed at all.

"I think it is quite possible that the law was designed to make it easier rather than harder for the weapon carriers," he said. "I am not sure it will not work that way. Most of the prosecutions will probably be for the carrying of weapons concealed upon the person. This is now made a felony, whereas it used to be a misdemeanor, or, in other words, the offense now goes to General Sessions for trial and sentence, whereas it used to go to Special Sessions. Now, in such cases it is harder to get a verdict from a jury than from three Justices. The Justices on the bench are far better able to estimate the value of witnesses and to understand and appreciate police testimony. Concealed weapon cases depend largely on police testimony, and in Special Sessions the proportion of convictions for carrying concealed weapons is very large. A jury would be more inclined to say, 'What's the use?' or to act on the conviction that there was no real harm in what the prisoner had done. There is always that danger with juries in cases of 'mala prohibita.' Then, too, the General Sessions Judges have a reputation for greater leniency in sentencing. No, I shouldn't be staggered with surprise to learn that some such idea was woven into the motives that led to the passage of the law."

LAFOLLETTE A CONSERVATIVE

Bourne Says So in Asking Support of Business Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The La Follette boom for the Presidential nomination took a new direction to-day when Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., of Oregon, President of the National Progressive Republican League, came out with an appeal to "big business" to revise its estimate of the radical candidate and give him support.

Mr. Bourne tells the financiers in a prepared statement that Mr. La Follette "though radical in manner is extremely conservative in thought and action, with high ideals, broad ideas and strong convictions." Further along Mr. Bourne says that his candidate is "intelligently conservative, not blindly radical."

The Oregonian describes his statement as "in the nature of a challenge to big business," and says that it "meets the charge of radicalism which has been lodged against La Follette." "General welfare is his goal," says Mr. Bourne, "and selfish interest his abomination."

The statement concludes in these words:

"I urge the big business interests of the country to study the laws of Wisconsin enacted since he was first Governor of that State; hold him, as the dynamic personality of that electorate, responsible for all those laws. If investigation shows them to be protective of personal liberty and property rights then support him for President. If destructive of personal liberty or property rights bitterly oppose his candidacy. Such an investigation will show Wisconsin laws to be constructive, not destructive; progressive not reactionary; intelligently conservative, not blindly radical.

"Senator La Follette is a statesman, not a politician; a deep thinker, not a demagogue. His candidacy presents an opportunity to nominate and elect a President on his record and not on another man's indorsement or promise to follow in another's footsteps. He can and, in my opinion, will be nominated, and if nominated will unquestionably be elected."

JOHN DREW IN AN AGREEABLE PLAY

"A Single Man" Provides Him with a Congenial Role in Obvious Situations Pleasantly Developed.

EMPIRE OPEN FOR SEASON

Hubert Henry Davies, the Author, Called Before the Curtain by Appreciative Audience.

A SINGLE MAN, a comedy in four acts, by Hubert Henry Davies. Empire Theatre.
Robin Worthington.....John Drew

Dickie Cottrell.....Thomas Kelly
Lady Cottrell.....Clara Bracy
Maggie Cottrell.....Carroll McComas
Miss Hesseltine.....Mary Boland
Isabella Worthington.....Louise Drew
Louise Parker.....Thais Lawton
Martha Sims.....Helen Bolte
Gladys.....Lewise Seymour
Mrs. Higson.....Cecilia Radcliff
The Nurse.....Frances Comstalke

Mr. Hubert Henry Davis is a playwright of the obvious. And the obvious as we have seen in "Cynthia," "Cousin Kate," "The Mollusc," and others of this author's plays, may be very pleasant. Sometimes, where the touch of the artists in the cast is exceptionally delicate, the result may seem to be even something more. Sometimes, too, as in the case of "The Mollusc," the development of a character, not new to life, but new to the theatre, may make a play of real importance.

"A Single Man," offered at the Empire last evening, represents the average of Mr. Davis's work. It has not quite the delicate charm of "Cousin Kate" and it lacks the freshness of "The Mollusc," but as it stands at the Empire, with acting that is generally agreeable and efficient if never exactly brilliant, it fills out a pleasant evening. It is, in short, a clever and agreeable play.

The people in it are all well drawn and they say smart things. If what is going to happen is generally in one's mind before the point of it is reached, the play does not differ in this respect from many others. Indeed, to many playgoers the opportunity to see ahead but adds a flavor to the whole.

Robert Worthington, author and bachelor, just turning middle age, has begun to think of marriage. "How can you help it," he asks, "when all the fields and woods are full of family life?" How, indeed! And with a fascinating next-door neighbor just young enough to be attractive to the man who hasn't let his thoughts dwell on womankind, until his brother's wife and baby bring the domestic thoughts into his very home.

The curious part of it is that Henry Worthington and his wife have been planning to bring Robert to the thought of marriage, have, indeed, sent for a former school-girl friend of Mrs. Worthington's, who has never had an offer and who, they believe, will make the author a very good sort of wife. Her arrival and Robert's announcement that he has made up his mind to marry the little neighbor are almost simultaneous, and a little later Robert, to his own astonishment, finds that his typist, a very discreet, well-intentioned and well-seasoned young woman, is in love with him.

But he does not discover this until he has had her plead his case with the other girl—until, being engaged to the latter, he finds her too youthful for him, and her pastimes too wearing on his nerves and strength—and until, in fact, the third lady in the case has made every possible effort to hook him, although she has long ago been asked to leave the house and repeatedly postponed her departure.

All of which is very divertingly discovered in three acts, which lead up to a scene in which Robert, preparing to dine at home alone, finds himself in a position where it is agreeable and convenient to ask the typist to join him, and where, under the soothing influences of the champagne, they discover their mutual love for one another, kiss and embrace, and are discovered in the act by the woman in pursuit, who promptly goes and tells, and is called a liar for her pains.

A fourth act is required to rearrange the plans for making a married man of the single one, the task becoming easy enough after the little neighbor person has in her turn discovered that Robert is unsuitable to her, and that "he doesn't belong to this generation," a statement challenged with some asperity, you may be sure, by his present fiancée, the typist.

There is little doubt that "A Single Man" will please Mr. Drew's clientele, for it provides him with what appears to be a congenial rôle and one in which his admirable comedy method has good play. It is a play, moreover, which is well made and neatly written, and in which the situations are cleverly contrived to bring about the amiable conclusion.

In the supporting company Miss Thais Lawton has the most difficult rôle—that of the persistent husband hunter, a woman attempting to adapt her moods to those of the literary person she is chasing. And Miss Lawton plays the part with excellent variety and humor. Louise Drew is capital as the conniving sister-in-law.

Miss Mary Boland does not quite succeed in the moment of final avowal, and her playing is somewhat reminiscent of "Smith," but she is otherwise satisfying in the rôle of the typist. An excellent performance is given by Ivan Simpson, and there is the fresh appeal of youth in Carroll McComas. Cecilia Radcliffe does nicely in a character bit, and the others serve.

The play is prettily mounted and well staged, but there is carelessness in the use of several pages torn from a play, instead of proper manuscript copy, where the author's book is mentioned. A thing of this sort is a trifle, of course, but somewhere it has been said that trifles make perfection, and the words have the ring of truth.

Mr. Drew, as usual, expressed his brief thanks, and at the end of the play Hubert Henry Davis, the author of the comedy, came forward and expressed his appreciation.

Lyric Reopens with "Everywoman."

The Lyric Theatre reopened for the season yesterday afternoon with Henry W. Savage's production of Walter Browne's morality play, "Everywoman." There were no changes in the personnel of the important characters, Laura Nelson Hall again appearing as Everywoman, H. Cooper Cliffe as Nobody, Sarah Cowell Le Moyne as Truth, Frederick De Belville as Wealth, Patricia Collinge as Youth, Aurora Piatt as Beauty, and Stella Hammerstein as Vice.

Mantell Opens West End Theatre.

For the opening week at the West End Theatre the attraction is Robert Mantell in his repertoire of classical plays. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Mantell appeared in "The Merchant of Venice," playing the rôle of Shylock, while Miss Keith Wakeman, his new leading woman, appeared as Portia. "Hamlet" was the bill for the evening performance, and to-night "Macbeth" will be given.

Edmund Breese in "A Man of Honor."

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 4.—"A Man of Honor," a three-act drama written by Isaac Landman, a rabbi, was given its first performance on any stage here to-day. The presentation is by Joe Weber, and the cast of seven characters includes Edmund Breese, Hans Robert, Ben Johnson, Fay Wallace, and Ralph Delmore. The theme deals with the family life of Judge Kingsley, an upright jurist, who has, however, fostered his political ambitions to the neglect of his motherless son and daughter. The son, through embezzlement, falls into the clutches of a corporation whose existence is threatened by a suit in which Judge Kingsley is to make the decision, and he has the alternative of deciding for the corporation or seeing his name dishonored, his candidacy for Governor doomed, and his son jailed. He scorns to save either his son or his own name, and renders a decision adverse to the corporation.

David Belasco Produces 'The Woman.'

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 4.—David Belasco's production of William C. De Mille's new play, "The Woman," was seen here this afternoon. The story was followed with close interest. Both Mr. De Mille and Mr. Belasco were called before the curtain at the close of the play. In the cast are Mary Nash, Jane Peyton, John W. Cope, and Edwin Holt.

NEWPORT ATTACK UPHELD.

Rector Says Many Residents Indorse Criticism of Sunday Activities.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 4.—Society was so busily engaged attending the tennis tournament and Horse Show to-day that little time was given to the attacks of the clergy upon Sunday entertaining in the Summer colony, although in some quarters the clergyman's letter as read in all the Episcopal Churches Sunday was discussed.

Braddin Hamilton, formerly a clergyman of the Episcopal Church, who was the first to attack the playing of golf on Sundays ten years ago, and who was in Trinity Church Sunday when the Rev. Stanley C. Hughes read the ministers' circular, was asked during the tennis tournament at the Casino this morning what he thought of the circular. Mr. Hamilton replied that he did not care to discuss the subject, but thought the attack would be of benefit.

Sunday entertaining will be less in the future if what is heard discussed generally is carried out, although Sunday has come to be the biggest day of entertaining in Newport.

The Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church, where the majority of the Summer residents of the Episcopal faith attend services, said to-night: "I have heard of a lot of favorable comments on the ministers' action from members of the Summer colony. If I could tell the names of these who have spoken to me it would mean a good deal. All with whom I have spoken expressed themselves most favorably on the topic, and stated it was a timely expression.

"I think the subject has started people thinking. One of the gentlemen with whom I spoke to-day stated there would be no luncheon or dinner companies at his cottage on Sundays hereafter. I am quite certain the result of the ministers' circular will make some difference in entertaining on the Sabbath day in Newport in the future."

Mr. Hughes said: "I see a prize fight is being advertised in Newport. Who is looking after that?"

The clergyman was told that the fight took place to-day and was largely attended.

Mr. O'Dell is a student at Yale and one of its football team, and, as it will be two years before he finishes his law course, the wedding will probably not take place for some time.

'SNOBS' AT HUDSON, AMUSING COMEDY

Introduces Frank McIntyre as a Star in Role of a Milkman Who Finds He Is a Duke.

SATIRE IN HOWARD'S PLAY

Good Character Types Include Milkman's Chum, a Furnace Tender, and Snobbish Society People.

SNOBS, a satirical farce in thre acts, by George Bronson Howard. Hudson Theatre.
"Buck" Reade.....Regan Hughston
Henry Disney.....Frank McIntyre
Nondas Parkyn.....Willette Kershaw
Phipps Maynadier.....Orlando Daly
Mrs. Pendleton Beauregard.....Katherine Stewart
Laura Lanvale.....Eva Macdonald
Club Boy.....Olaf Vide
Bradley Fairfax.....John Cumberland
Milly.....Helen Bond
Usher at Theatre.....William Calvert
Sergt. McNutt.....Walter Craven

The Hudson Theatre began its season with a laugh last night, when Frank McIntyre became a star in a new farce by George Bronson-Howard. The laugh began with Mr. McIntyre's first appearance in the rooms of Henry Disney, milkman to 142 families in some unnamed small city, and it continued almost to the end of the play, when a bit of melodrama supplied a small thrill and interrupted an off-stage performance of "Man and Superman."

"Snobs" is the title of the comedy and the theme of the author's humorous satire. The theme and its general development have been seen on the stage before, frequently, but last night's audience found the subject amusing, certainly, and therefore entertaining.

The story begins when Henry Disney, a milkman, is discovered as heir to a string of titles, including a dukedom, five "marble palaces," and some $70,000,000. Henry has already fallen in love with Nondas Parkyn, heiress to a preserve manufacturer, possessed of wealth, a sense of humor, and devoid of social standing. Henry's chum, Buck Reade, a furnace tender in a machine shop, is in love with Laura Lanvale, whom he met in the course of duty—showing her over the foundry—and as he has studied popular fiction to some extent, he has purchased a "full dress suit" in order to go to the opera house and look at her from a distance.

So when Henry finds he is a Duke and has to live up to it, he persuades Buck to take the job for a short time, or until he has learned how to make people like him for himself. What success he has and what are Buck's experiences brings out the snobbery of the people with whom they are thrown in contact. Henry, the Duke, wins what he is seeking, but Buck gets a rather hard lesson on the subject of the reliability of modern fiction.

Mr. McIntyre, the Henry of the piece, got a big reception when he first came into the view of the audience, and much bigger applause at the end of the three acts. At the end of Act II. he made a little speech, in which he said the usual things. Willette Kershaw was the pickle king's daughter, who accepts the milkman before she learns he is the Duke. Eva MacDonald played the character of the furnace tender's lady love, Regan Hughston was the said furnace tender, Orlando Daly had the rôle of a snobbish lawyer, Katherine Stewart was an equally snobbish "society woman," and John Cumberland played an even more snobbish clubman with a slight tendency to cowardice.

"MISS JACK" IS TUNEFUL.

Bothwell Browne Masquerades as a Girl in New Musical Comedy.

Bothwell Browne, a female impersonator who has been seen here in vaudeville, made his appearance as the star of a musical comedy at the Herald Square Theatre yesterday afternoon, with a friendly audience to greet him. The play, "Miss Jack," was written by Mark E. Swan and the music composed by William Frederick Peters. They have succeeded in providing a book and score that harmonize and that have humor and catchy tunes.

The plot centres about a young man who gets locked within the gates of a woman's school and who has to disguise himself as a girl to save himself from arrest and his sweetheart from expulsion. Helping out the plot is an adventurous burglar, a young college man, a German professor of psychology, and the school gardener, to say nothing of several young women.

Mr. Browne played the masquerading youth and changed his costume frequently, winding up his performance with an Egyptian dance. Olive Ulrich, with a pleasing voice and personality, had the rôle of the sweetheart, and Suzanne Rocamora appeared agreeably as her chum. The comedy rôles of the professor and the gardener were taken by James B. Carson and Jonathan Keefe, and Rose Beaudete and Hazel Cox played a "society woman" and her quick-tempered daughter. May McCabe was the schoolmistress.

The chorus was good looking and hard working and the chorus numbers were staged elaborately. All of them got deserved encores. The piece, as a whole, ought to prove popular for the short season set for it and will probably be very successful in smaller cities.

FAY TEMPLETON RETURNS.

Delightful as Little Buttercup in Splendid "Pinafore" Revival at Casino.

Personalities as individual and talents as fine as those of Fay Templeton's are always so rare in the theatre that there is plenty of occasion to be thankful for her return to the New York stage. And that the public which admired Miss Templeton for so long is duly grateful was demonstrated at the Casino, where the gifted artiste reappeared yesterday, and this time as Little Buttercup in the splendid "Pinafore" revival which once more holds the boards.

Miss Templeton's appearance in the first act was greeted with prolonged applause, her songs were encored repeatedly, and during the final ensemble the audience rose and cheered her and insistently demanded a speech. Whereupon Miss Templeton said that it seemed too much to take all the applause for herself, but nevertheless she was grateful—and at this point her gratitude expressed itself in tears. Then the curtain fell.

The "Pinafore" revival remains one of the most enjoyable entertainments that New York has had for several seasons. Mr. McFarlane still sings Capt. Corcoran in his fine, rich, easy style; Mr. Aldridge is vocally admirable as Ralph Rackstraw, and Mr. Eugene Cowles and Mr. R. E. Graham are respectively successful as Bill Bobstay and Sir Joseph Porter. As for Mr. Hopper, his performance of Dick Dead-Eye; or, as he once termed it, Mr. Richard De Funct-Optic, is about as fine an example of low comedy acting as could be imagined.

In the present cast Miss Alice Brady continues pleasantly as Hebe and Miss Edith Decker is an agreeable new Josephine.

Miss Templeton's Little Buttercup is delightful. She is an actress who has always had the power of suggesting something more than is contained in the mere lines she speaks, or sings. And here, whether she is singing a lyric, or joining in a pantomimic ensemble, she gives a real dramatic value to every scene in which she is engaged. Her voice is in splendid condition, and she sang yesterday with great freshness and spirit.

The chorus in this revival also merits a word of praise.

All in all, "Pinafore" at the Casino is a thing to see and hear and talk about.

HARMONY AT HUNNEWELL.

Mrs. Wilson, Mayor, and the Council Agree to Adjourn for Week.

HUNNEWELL, Kan., Sept. 4.—Hunnewell's Mayor, Mrs. Ella Wilson, and the masculine members of the Council, were able to agree on an issue to-night for the first time since Mrs. Wilson's election last April.

At the Council meeting a motion to adjourn for one week because of to-day being Labor Day, was carried unanimously.

"The Kiss Waltz" Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 4.—The Shuberts produced at the Lyric Theatre here to-night the Viennese operetta "The Kiss Waltz," by C. M. Ziehrer, composer of "Mlle. Mischief." The cast included Robert Warwick, Flora Zabelle, Elsa Ryan, Eva Davenport, Martin Brown, William Pruett, Adele Rowland, George Pauncefote, Oscar Schwartz, Lillian Wiggins, and Robert Milliken.

The operetta is in two acts. The story is that of a handsome musician who has composed the "Kiss Waltz." His efforts to escape the attentions of numerous women admirers and the net into which he draws innocently the highly respectable wife of a count furnish the plot. Mr. Warwick was seen as the composer, Miss Zabelle as the Baroness von Baruna, who finally wins the musician. Mr. Bigelow and Miss Davenport sustain the comedy. After a two weeks' engagement here the operetta goes to the Herald Square Theatre in New York.

Kinemacolor Pictures at Daly's.

The Kinemacolor motion pictures moved to Daly's Theatre yesterday for a week's stay, and other pictures of the same system were put on at the Majestic Theatre. The programmes at the two houses were different, and at Daly's the subjects shown were different from those that had been given at the Herald Square.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Rehearsals of Charles Dickson's new comedy, "The Golden Rule, Ltd.," began yesterday under the personal direction of the author. Howard Hall will play the leading role, replacing Louis Morrell, who assumed Jameson Lee Finney's role in the Chicago company of "The Deep Purple."

Kyrle Bellew will open his season in Buffalo next Monday night in Hubert Henry Davies's comedy, "The Mollusc." After a week in Buffalo he will go to Chicago to begin the season at Powers's Theatre. Isabel Irving, Jane Laurel, and Frank Goldsmith will have important roles in Mr. Bellew's support.

Edward H. Robins, who played the role of John Madison with Frances Starr in "The Easiest Way," has been engaged for the company supporting Edmund Breese in "A Man of Honor," which is to come to Weber's Theatre on Sept. 14.

Lionel Barrymore and Sydney Drew are to appear together in vaudeville this season in a condensed version of "The Rivals." They will begin their season at the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, next week.

HOUSE UPSIDE DOWN BURNED AT CONEY

Steeplechase Park Blaze Draws Immense Crowd, but Does Only $3,500 Damage.

RUSH FROM THE RESTAURANT

All Get Out Safely When Cry of Fire Is Raised—Three Alarms Bring Apparatus to Fight Big Blaze.

The great crowd that thronged Steeplechase Park at Coney Island last night had an added attraction provided for its entertainment at 10 o'clock, when fire started on the second floor of the House Upside Down, a two and one-half story frame structure situated along the west wall of the park, and about 300 feet from the big glass inclosure. It is one of the features of the park, where all the furniture is upside down. For a time it looked as if there might be a serious conflagration, as the Steeplechase baths, just to the north, and the big picnic pavilion to the south, were threatened. Battalion Chief William Rogers of the Coney Island Fire Department, who was the first of the fire-fighters on the scene, sent in a second and third alarm, bringing out most of the apparatus from near-by districts, and attracting thousands of spectators to the scene.

The first floor of the House Upside Down is occupied by the German Village Restaurant, and it was well filled when the cry of fire was first raised by Charles Kohn, an employe of the park. There was a rush for the exits, but, fortunately, no one was injured. Mrs. Lena Torola, proprietress of the restaurant, who lives on the second floor where the blaze started, was the only one who had even a narrow escape. She remembered that she had left jewelry and money in her rooms, and, despite the warning of the police, ran into the building. When she tried to get out she found the way cut off by smoke and flames. Policeman William Gardner of the Coney Island Station went to her aid, and although he got her out safely, was overcome by smoke and had to be treated by Dr. Graboff of the Coney Island Hospital.

The employes of Steeplechase Park have been drilled to meet just such an emergency as faced them last night, and before the fire appartus appeared on the scene did good work keeping the flames in check. Dwarfs, giants, Hindu dancers, "Maggie Murphies," and other freaks quickly formed a bucket brigade. The nearest hydrant is in Surf Avenue, fully 600 feet from the scene of the fire, and this caused a slight delay in getting a stream of water on the blaze, even after the engines got there. The crowd also interfered at first with the firemen, but the police reserves under Inspector Robert Dooley and Capt. Thomas Murphy of the Coney Island Station quickly stretched out the fire lines.

The cause of the fire, which did about $3,500 damage to the building, is unknown. The building is owned by George B. Tilyou, proprietor of the park. He was receiving the congratulations of friends last night, who remembered the conflagration which wiped out Steeplechase Park a few years ago.

CATTLE MAN DIES IN JAIL.

Bartlett Richards Underwent Surgical Operations While Under Guard.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 4.—Bartlett Richards, sentenced to one year in the prison at Hastings, Neb., for having induced soldiers and soldiers' widows to procure land for his use under the Kincaid Homestead act, and who was permitted to leave his prison several weeks ago to visit the Drs. Mayo at Rochester, died to-day at Hastings of gallstones. Two operations at the Rochester Hospital, performed while a Deputy United States Marshal waited outside the door, failed to benefit the patient, and he returned to his prison but little better than when he came north.

Richards was one of several cattle barons of Nebraska who were arrested and found guilty of conspiracy to rob the Government of part of the public domain. They were sentenced to jail, but there palatial quarters were allotted them, as good as could be found at high-grade hotels. They had frequent banquets.

Richards was once sentenced to two hours in the custody of United States Marshal Mathews of Omaha by Judge W. H. Munger for fencing the public domain. Instead of keeping his charge in custody Marshal Matthews took him to the Omaha Club, where Richards gave a fine banquet for everybody in the house, treating them to large quantities of wine until the two hours had expired, when he returned to his home. President Roosevelt heard of the affair and the dismissal of the Marshal followed.

CROWD SEE NIAGARA SUICIDE.

Women Faint as Unknown Man Is Swept Over the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—In full view of thousands of visitors, a man, as yet not identified but believed to be John Ready of Springfield, Mass., jumped into the river fifty feet above the American Falls this afternoon. Within five minutes after he had been swept over the brink his body was observed in midstream, but in a place that could not be reached from the Maid of the Mist docks. Later the body sank.

The man hurled himself over the rail at Prospect Point, and when in the water found a footing. As he stood for a moment women in the crowd screamed and men shouted for him to come back. Several women fainted. The man threw himself face down in the water. The mighty current seized the body and swept it toward the brink.

The man was about 40 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighed 165 pounds, and was smooth shaven.

GIRL ABDUCTED, HE SAYS.

Father Asks the Police to Find Her and the Man She Married.

Reporting that his daughter Bessie had been abducted, John Hynes of 126 East 127th Street asked the police of the East 126th Street Station last night to send out a general alarm for her and Edward Franzi of 429 East 121st Street. He accused Franzi of abducting her.

The girl is 15 years old. Four months ago her mother died. Hynes was unable to keep his home going, and broke up housekeeping. Bessie went to board in the Bronx with friends. She must have remained there only a few weeks, however, her father said, for when he went to see her, he learned that she had gone to live at the boarding house of a Mrs. Stafford, at 333 East 117th Street.

Hynes said that he tried to see her there, but was unable to do so. Last Wednesday, however, she came to see him, and said she had been married to Franzi by a Justice of the Peace in Jersey City soon after leaving the Bronx. Yesterday he learned that on Thursday at 2 o'clock in the morning Franzi took his daughter to the house in 121st Street. He tried to see the pair there, but was also unsuccessful.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—After a ten days' sleep, from which physicians were unable to arouse her, Josephine Gerbel, known on the stage as Genevieve De Forrest, died yesterday.

For three years the singer had suffered from ulcer of the stomach. Ten days ago while suffering much pain Miss De Forrest fell into a deep slumber. First this was thought to be a good sign. Hour after hour passed, however, and she continued to sleep. Efforts were made by nurses to awaken her. Physicians were called, but every effort proved futile.

For the last ten years Mr. King had been associated with the Shuberts and with Henry W. Savage as theatre manager and company manager. He was in charge of the Casino Theatre for some time. Afterward he managed the Garden Theatre for Henry W. Savage, and last season he was business manager of "The Lottery Man," a Shubert production.

President of Illinois Central Replies to Veiled Threat of Employes' Representative.

12,000 READY TO STRIKE

Telegrams Calling Out Local Unions Had Already Been Written and Filed Away.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—As the result of a letter sent to W. F. Kramer, International Secretary of the Blacksmiths and Helpers' Union, by President C. H. Markham of the Illinois Central to-night it is considered not unlikely that 12,000 men employed in the shops of that railroad company will quit work to-morrow.

The letter informed the men that the road would not grant a conference to-morrow and would not recognize the Federated shop employes.

The letter was a reply to one sent by Kramer on Friday asking for a conference to-morrow. Leaders of the Federation criticised it as "an effort to force the issue." The road's ultimatum will be considered by the international officers in Chicago to-morrow morning.

According to statements made by leaders to-night only two courses of action are now open to the shop employes. They are:

1. To send out the strike calls which have been prepared and are ready to be telegraphed.

2 To recede completely from their demand for a recognition of the shop federation.

President Markham's letter contained a copy of the communication sent to him by the International officers Friday. In their letter was the following threat:

"Should you still persist in not granting this request by 10:30 Tuesday morning, Sept. 5, 1911, we will take serious action as we deem necessary for the protection of our organization. Please address all communications to Mr. W. F. Kramer, 585 Monon Building, Chicago."

President Markham says in reply:

"As has been repeatedly stated to yourself and associates, present at the meeting with Mr. Park and myself, there are in existence certain contracts between the Illinois Central Railroad and seven of the organizations presented in the foregoing communication. Never before in the history of our dealings with labor organizations have we been asked to change contracts, except in the usual manner provided therein, viz., that the thirty-day formal notice, which has always been regarded as an essential feature of same, be given.

"The required thirty days' notice not having been given in the manner provided in each of the different contracts, we regard them as still in effect and must again decline to enter into negotiations with other organizations for the purpose of making any changes therein.

"That there may be no possibility of a misunderstanding on the part of our employes, I also wish to say that, as a result of past experiences with similar organizations and after careful considerations of all the questions involved, the management of the Illinois Central Railroad has reached the conclusion that its duty to the shipping and traveling public dependent upon it for transportation facilities, its regard for the welfare of its employes and those dependent upon them and also for the interests of its 10,000 stockholders, will not permit it to enter into negotiations with any organizations, compliance with the initial demands of which would deprive the officers of the company of the power to manage its affairs.

"The paramount interest in this controversy is that of the shipping and the traveling public, and being convinced that it is the ultimate purpose of the federation to consolidate railroad service employes into one organization, the management does not feel that public opinion would sustain it in entering into an agreement which would place in the hands of one body the power to throttle the commerce of the country. Neither does it believe that the same public opinion sustains any action which will result in the disruption of the harmonious relations which have hitherto existed between the Illinois Central Railroad and its employes.

"You will, of course, take whatever action you may consider necessary for the protection of your respective organizations, but if you will permit me to say it, it is my opinion that you can take no action that will afford any better protection than to advise them to live up to their contracts with the company, just as it has always lived up to its contracts with them. If any other course is pursued and trouble results, the responsibility is yours, not ours. Yours truly,

"C. H. MARKHAM."

The representatives of the Shop Federation insisted that they had not violated contracts, and they had served notice as required.

"If the copy of the letter shown to me to-night," said President J. F. McCreery of the federation, "is correct and authentic, it is evident that the officials of the Illinois Central are seeking to force the issue prematurely."

The strikebreakers' agency in this city was open all day. Men came in a straggling line during the afternoon and left the agency in groups of a dozen or more in care of a guide.

SHOPMEN FAVOR ARBITRATION

In Case Harriman Officials Refuse to Recognize the Federation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—That arbitration may become the means of settlement of the difficulties between the Harriman system officials and the shop employes is the belief of James W. Kline, International President of the Blacksmiths' Union, acting as spokesman for the Eastern labor leaders now in this city.

Kline said he had received a number of telegrams from Eastern cities to the effect that shopmen favor arbitration providing all efforts fail to gain from the railroad officials' recognition of the Federation. Kline said he expects by Friday thirty-five delegates, comprising the general committees of the shopmen employed by the Harriman system, would be in this city for a conference, and that the arbitration question will then receive formal consideration.

The Eastern labor leaders took part in the Labor Day parade here to-day.

The international Presidents of the five shop crafts unions now here have delegated authority to representatives in Chicago to act on the ultimatum presented by the federation of shop employes of the Illinois Central to President Markham. This statement was made to-night by President J. W. Kline of the Blacksmiths' Union.

Robert S. Williamson of 716 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, died at his Summer home in Seacliff, L. I., yesterday. He had been ill several weeks with typhoid fever. He was 47 years old. Mr. Williamson was President of the New York Hollow Ware Company of 245 Water Street. He is survived by a wife and two daughters.

TAFT'S LENIENCY CRITICISED.

Commutes Lieut. Rutherford's Sentence at Senator Stone's Request.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—There was a buzz of half-suppressed astonishment around the War Department to-day when the President's action in commuting the sentence of First Lieut. Robert G. Rutherford, Twenty-fourth Infantry, from dismissal from the army to loss of fifty files was announced.

Last March Lieut. Rutherford was tried by court-martial at Madison Barracks, N. Y., for embezzling $200 from the company funds. Nine army officers sat on this court, and found him guilty. Later the same court sat a second time and reviewed the whole case. Again the Lieutenant was found guilty.

The findings of the court-martial were forwarded to Washington. Senator Stone of Missouri, and other members of the Missouri delegation appealed to President Taft in behalf of the officer. The pressure became so great that the War Department ordered three instead of one officer in the Judge Advocate General's office to review the findings of the court. Each of the three officers sustained the findings of the military tribunal.

These facts were communicated to President Taft. In the meantime, more than one hundred young officers were blocked in their promotions because of the case. They could not be advanced to their proper rank as long as Rutherford stood in the way.

As soon as the papers reached the President the same influence was renewed in an effort to save Rutherford from disgrace. It is said that Senator Stone helped the President save his reciprocity bill as a feature of his struggle for Rutherford.

Rutherford is No. 5 on the list of First Lieutenants of infantry. His loss of fifty numbers will not postpone his Captaincy but a few months, as nearly all the fifty men who jump him will be promoted in the next thirty days. In short, the President's action wipes out practically all punishment in the case.

CARDS LEAD TO MURDER.

One Person Killed, Two Others Mortally Wounded, and a Fourth Severely Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Sept. 4.—A dispute over a game of cards in the home of William Pierce at Hackem this afternoon led to a fight in which Mrs. Pierce was instantly killed, her mother, Mrs. Irene Hicks, and her husband, William Pierce, mortally wounded, and a guest, Robert Brown, beaten into unconsciousness.

A posse of officers with bloodhounds is searching the hills to-night for Stewart Palmer, who is alleged to have killed Mrs. Pierce. He used a shotgun that had been handed to him by a friend, William Evans, who was passing the house. Palmer shot Mrs. Hicks with a revolver and stabbed Pierce and Brown with a knife. Both are in a serious condition.

When Palmer escaped he still had the shotgun, three revolvers, and a knife.

SHOT IN FRIEND'S ROOM.

Miss Eberhardt Says She Pulled Trigger and Boy Is Released.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 4.—Evelyn Clio Eberhardt, the 18-year-old grandaughter of John F. Eberhardt, founder and principal owner of Chicago Lawn, was dangerously wounded this afternoon by a bullet fired from a revolver which the girl declares was held in her own hand.

The room in which the shooting took place was that of Gale Gammon, an eighteen-year-old friend, the owner of the weapon. Miss Eberhardt before being taken to St. Barnards Hospital declared she pulled the trigger of the revolver not knowing it was loaded.

Miss Eberhardt has a chance for recovery. Gammon was arrested shortly after the shooting, but was released when Miss Eberhardt declared he had nothing to do with the affair.

RURAL CARRIERS ASSEMBLED

They Learn in Convention That Their Pay May Be Raised.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 4.—The New Jersey Rural Letter Carriers' Association in annual convention here elected Frank D. Veale of Bridgeton President. Other officers chosen were: Vice President—C. C. Hannold, Westville; Secretary—C. J. Perry, Westwood; Executive Committee—A. B. Sinerson of Ringoes and W. C. Swan of Trenton; National Delegate—Edward E. Oliver, Laurel Springs.

The attendance was the largest in the organization's history.

William C. Brigham, representing the department at Washington, spoke on the relationship existing between the rural carriers and the Federal department. Kendrick C. Hill, Assistant Postmaster of this city, told of legislation now pending in Congress providing that the pay of all classified civil service employes be increased 20 per cent.

BATTLESHIP RAMS STEAMER.

Many Excursionists on Vessel at Toulon Jump Into Sea—All Saved.

TOULON, Sept. 4.—The French battleship Brennus, while speeding toward the rendezvous of the naval manoeuvres near here this morning, crashed into the excursion steamer Magali of Marseilles. There were no fatalities, which is considered remarkable, as the Magali was loaded down with passengers.

The excursion steamer was taking out a large party from Marseilles to witness the manoeuvres. A dense fog hung over the water, and when the two ships collided there was a wild panic among the excursionists. Many jumped into the water and were picked up by the numerous craft in the vicinity of the accident. Some twenty persons were injured in the wild, terrified rush of the panicstricken excursionists.

The Magali was badly stove in, but was able to reach a landing stage here and put her passengers ashore.

BLOW TO RAILWAY TAX PLAN.

Oregon Short Line Shows That Full Assessment Would Be Discriminatory.

Special to The New York Times.

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 4.—Agitators against railways have had a surprise in the retort made by the Oregon Short Line to the assessment levied on its property in Idaho under a resolution passed by the State Board of Equalization to tax railroad property at its full value, a project that has long been agitated by Gov. Hawley.

It has been generally expected that this Harriman line, the chief one in the State, would follow the example of other railroads and make a plea of poverty and inability to pay such taxes on its earnings in Idaho. Instead, J. B. Evans, the tax agent of the railway, appeared before the Board of Equalization at its hearing recently with some facts on taxation ways in Idaho that upset the anti-railroad men. He said that the company was perfectly willing to pay its share of the taxes and that he would assent to assessment of the full cash value of its property if the same rule was applied to other property.

He produced tables, which were the result of two months of thorough investigation, of assessments in the State and which showed that property on an average was taxed at only 30 per cent. of its value. Each county has a separate system; in some cases the assessment falls as low as 7 per cent. and in other cases goes up to full valuation. Real consternation was created, however, by the showing of the assessments on live stock. Mr. Evans had obtained full reports on the census returns on this industry in various counties and was able to show that the figures given to the Federal enumerators by the owners of flocks and herds were far below those made to the tax assessors. As cattle and sheep men have large influence with the State administration this showing was not at all welcome.

Should the board attempt to carry out its plan for full assessment of the railroads in the face of these figures a lively contest in the courts is promised.

TEMPERANCE RULES UNITED STATES ARMY

Gen. Grant Finds That Only Churchmen and Railroad Men Are More Abstemious.

RECORD OF SOLDIERS BETTER

Commander of the East Reports Achievements in the National Guard Work—Suggests a Change of Detail.

Temperance in the United States Army, among both officers and men, is not exceeded in any walk of life, except it be the church, and possibly among railroad employes, according to the observations made by Major Gen. F. D. Grant, U. S. A., Commander of the Department of the East, in his annual report.

Gen. Grant at the same time says that the principal cause of soldiers' troubles, which bring them before military courts, is strong drink, yet the decrease in the number of trials and the general good conduct of the men, as a whole, justified him in reaching the conclusion mentioned.

The report, which has just been issued from the department press on Governors Island, covers the entire field of activity in the department, for the fiscal year that ended June 30. Referring to the National Guard, Gen. Grant says that work, important and successful, has been accomplished by the officers detailed as instructors in the officers' schools. However, he adds, the work of instructing the National Guardsmen should, in his opinion, be left to those officers of the regular army who are detailed to the various States for duty with the National Guard, since, as he points out, the Spring and Summer field work of the National Guard inspections has fallen heavily upon the troops of the regular establishment and has interfered materially with the progressive instruction of those troops. That is why he thinks it would be wise to limit the instruction to the regular officers who are specially detailed to the National Guard.

The report shows that during the year covered by it the number of general court-martials in the department totalled 1,093, the offenders including nine officers, five of whom were convicted of the charges on which they were tried. Of the remainder, 1,054 of whom were enlisted men, all but 59 were convicted. These figures show a gratifying decrease, he says, from the general court-martial record of the previous year, when the number who faced the court was 1,538. The totals for trials before the summary courts also showed a decrease in the present year, when 8,405 summary trials, in which there were 258 acquittals, were held in the department, whereas last year the total was 11,183, with 337 acquittals. The garrison courts for the fiscal year were busied with only 39 cases, while last year the number was 116. Only 2 cases were tried by regimental courts, resulting in 1 acquittal and 1 conviction.

Gen. Grant refers to the above figures as indicating a "remarkable falling off," due in part, he believes, to the better and more thorough instruction given recruits at the training posts before they are assigned to field regiments or Coast Artillery commands. The higher standard of temperance is given as another cause of the improved conditions.

The medical part of the report keeps up the good record, and it is shown that the health of the troops in the department was never better than last year. Malaria, except at Fort Washington, was practically eliminated, and as a result of the improved health of the troops the equivalent of a company has been added to the effective force for every day of the year. Gen. Grant repeats in his report the suggestion of Col. John Van R. Hoff, the Chief Surgeon of the department, that the so-called "patching up" system be done away with, and that it would be better if every incapacitated person who gets into the army be got rid of.

The school of bakers comes in for praise, and its record of 558,565 pounds of good, clean bread turned out in its ovens is referred to.

There were 623 applications for discharge by purchase made by enlisted men in the department the past year.

"It seems incredible to me," Gen. Grant says, "that so many soldiers in times like the present, when industrial conditions in our country are not the best, should desire to leave the service, and are willing to pay a sum which to them is considerable for the privilege of doing so. When one thinks of the generous provision the Government makes for its soldiers this restlessness cannot be accounted for."

SMOKE NUISANCE ENDED.

Many Arrests in a Year of the New Law Cleans the City Up.

New York is soon to be free from the smoke nuisance, and it is also said to be the only city in the United States about which this can be said. One can stand on a housetop anywhere and see nothing but clean white smoke finding its way to the sky. The Department of Health has been vigorously enforcing the law since a year ago last July, when the old law, which was inadequate to give it power, was amended. No compromises are made. When black smoke goes up somebody is on the way to arrest and a penalty.

Since the law was amended there have been more than 2,000 arrests at the instigation of the health authorities. A lot of these arrests were for permitting smoke to go from automobiles. In nearly all cases convictions were obtained, and $6,000 has been collected in fines.

Other cities have a little harder problem than New York, being so far from the anthracite fields that they are unable to get this clean coal, but the large factories and power plants of this city are also obliged to burn soft coal, and their right to do so is not denied by the city officials; but the Health Department does deny their right to belch soft coal smoke, and they have compelled them all to use smoke consumers, some being automatic stokers and others a type which by the modification of the combustion chamber permits the introduction of a proper amount of heated air, or mixture of steam and air, so that combustion is entirely completed before the gases reach the stack and are discharged into the outer air.

RESUME FLEET MANOEUVRES.

Admiral Osterhaus Testing Officers in Sudden Emergency Orders.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 4.—Under skies of blue, but with the wind blowing twenty miles an hour from the northeast, and a rolling sea on, the vessels of the Atlantic Fleet resumed to-day their manoeuvres in the elaborate war game now in progress on the southern drill grounds after a suspension over Sunday of long distance range firing and other tactical practice.

A feature of the present war game is the number of sudden orders given by Rear Admiral Osterhaus, the fleet commander, carrying with them just such problems as emergencies of actual warfare might bring forth on the high seas.

AMERICAN MOTOR BOAT TRIUMPHS

Dixie IV. Wins First Contest for Harmsworth Trophy—Pioneer, English Entry, Second.

America scored first blood yesterday in the international motor trophy series when the Yankee boat Dixie IV. won the initial contest on Huntington Bay for the Harmsworth Prize, now held in this country.

The race was sailed over a triangular course of seven and a half miles in length, four times. Dixie's time was 51:15, Pioneer 52:14, Disturber 55:42, and Viva 1:04:22.

The Pioneer, a much-dreaded English boat, finished second, being beaten a second inside of one minute. Disturber II., an American entry, was third, and Viva, another of the defenders, was fourth.

Maple Leaf and Tyreless III., the other two challengers, broke down at different periods of the race, and through summoning help have thereby disqualified themselves from further competition.

Dixie averaged 35.01 knots an hour, Pioneer 34.45 knots, Disturber II. 32.31 knots, and Viva 29.27 knots.

The race was decidedly one-sided, and at no time was the Dixie asked to show her best speed, as, after getting a half-mile lead, her helmsman and part owner, Frederick K. Burnham, apparently never asked the question of the speedy Yankee craft, contenting himself with the advantage gained in the first lap.

Pioneer was always second best, and showed no semblance of the great speed promised in her initial showing. Her helmsman, Noel Robbins, who brought the Pioneer over for the Duke of Westminster, would vouchsafe no statement concerning the failure of his boat to live up to the reputation credited her.

"I never let her out," said Fred Burnham, when asked for an explanation concerning the work of Dixie. "At the end of the first round I saw that we were slowly leaving the others astern, and as Dixie's engines were behaving splendidly, never missing, I decided to take no chances by causing a strain on them unless absolutely necessary."

The greatly feared Maple Leaf III., with an accredited speed of fifty-seven miles, never showed a semblance of such pace, and after gradually being left in the wake of her opponents, broke her steering gear near the end of the second round, retiring, after which a tow was called and she was pulled to her anchorage.

Soon after this mishap to the most feared before the race of the challengers, Tyreless III., a mate, being almost hopelessly in the rear, dropped out at about eighteen miles.

The times by laps of the various boats were: Dixie, 12:46, 12:44, 12:53, 12:52; Pioneer 13:10, 13:08, 13:01, 13:00; Disturber II., 14:11; 14:26, 13:88, 13:27; Viva, 15:35, 14:59, 17:01, 16:47; Maple Leaf III., 13:84, 23:03, out; Tyreless III., 17:53, 16:36, out.

The vicinity of the start was a blaze of color, probably 400 pleasure craft, steam yachts, auxiliaries, and such gayly bedecked with National colors and club pennants, all helping to make the scene decidedly picturesque.

Dixie was the first in real action after the gun, and, as the water conditions and everything incidental to the contest were ideal for fast work, a keen contest was looked forward to.

As in the elimination event several days ago, America's chief defender stepped away from the starting line like a rubber ball, bouncing along with about fifteen feet of the forward part out of water.

Pioneer was always her closest attendant, although Maple Leaf put up quite an argument for the honor. The vaunted Tyreless was always last during the first round, being over five minutes to the bad of the leader at that stage.

Slipping by the end of the first lap in 12:46, Dixie had opened up a gap of probably 600 yards, and it was a matter of comment on the committee boat that while she was behaving beautifully, she was, apparently, being held in subjection by Mr. Burnham.

Still greater was the distance Dixie put between her and her opponents in the next lap. She was 46 seconds to the good of the Pioneer at this stage, with her other English opponents to all intents and purposes out of it, Tyreless being next to last and nearly 9 minutes astern.

To all the onlookers both Tyreless and Maple Leaf must have been lapped had they continued in the race, but both defeated as mentioned above.

With the steadiness she showed in the elimination, and under conditions favorable to her construction, Dixie continued her rounds, with never a murmur from the engines, one of which, by the way, was used last year in the Dixie of that vintage.

The Yankee craft never let down for an instant, and from the nonchalance of those aboard when she passed the Pioneer, they were in no way concerned, and to all intents and purposes were out for a pleasure jaunt.

The evenness of the pace was apparent with the return of the timer, but at all times Dixie kept the most feared—at this time—challenger always safe, eventually beating her under acclaim, at once bedlamlike and enthusiastic because of its variety.

Whistles tooted, flags were dipped, and the onlookers acted like they were beside themselves.

With this duel going on between the best of the American and English representatives, Disturber and Viva were going along famously, although in no way factors. As the race finished it was a distinct triumph for the Yankee boats, all passing the mark.

Route to Motor Boat Races.

In order to make motorists acquainted with routes which will warrant their foregoing the hardships of Hoffman Boulevard, the Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America announces the following, although in the first instance it necessitates the using of Thompson Avenue, which is in rather poor condition:

From Flushing, follow the regular route over good roads through Great Neck, 16.4; Roslyn, 21.0; East Norwich, 28.1; Cold Spring Harbor, 33.2, to Huntington, a total distance from New York of 35.9 miles.

For tourists wishing to go via Rye-Sea Cliff ferry it is advisable to take the Pelham Parkway to the Shore Road and then take the first left turn after passing Bartow Bridge over Prospect Hill Road to the Boston Post Road, then turn right and continue on the regular route to Rye. This is necessary owing to the extremely bad condition of the first part of the Boston Road and of the Shore Road beyond Bartow's Bridge.

The boats leave Rye for Sea Cliff 10 A. M., 12 noon, 2, 4, 6, and 8 P. M. Returning from Sea Cliff, boats leave 9 and 11 A. M. and 1, 3, 5, and 7 P. M.

Picked Teams Play Soccer.

Playing under the eyes of the International Selection Committee at Marquette Oval, in Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon two picked teams of the New York Amateur Association of Football League gave a capital exhibition of fast soccer, in spite of the warm weather and their lack of practice this season. The Blues, Captained by H. Hynd, defeated the Reds, under the Captaincy of E. Stewart, by the close score of 3 goals to 2. The latter shot a third goal, which was finally earned, but disallowed for off-side play. The showing of the players in this game will determine largely the committee's selection of the eleven to be played against the Corinthians of England at the Polo Grounds on Sept. 16. The lineup:

Blues	Positions.	Reds.
Wilson	Goal	Haughie
Hynd	Right back	McBride
Ross	Left back	Stewart
Kerr	Right half	Ellis
Gibb	Centre half	McCann
McLeod	Outside right	Bailey
Heath	Inside right	O'Halloran
Porter	Centre	Glen
Salmond	Inside left	Phillips

Referee—D. White, N. Y. A. A. F. L. Linesmen—C. Creighton and W. Williams. Goals—Salmond, Porter (2,) Blues; Phillips, Bailey, Reds. Substitutes in second half—Craig for Wilson; Garland for Ross; Thompson for Hampson, who was replaced by Salmond; Farekas for Ellis. Time—Halves of 45 minutes.

NEWPORT HORSE SHOW.

George Watson of New York Heavy Winner in Feature Events.

NEWPORT, Sept. 4.—The fifteenth exhibition of the Newport Horse Show opened at the Newport Casino this afternoon with perfect weather and a record-breaking gathering of society of Newport, Narragansett Pier, and elsewhere, besides the townspeople attending in large numbers. The whole surroundings never appeared more striking. The boxholders, with their guests, arrived in good season from the numerous luncheon parties, and visiting in the boxes was largely indulged in.

The novice class in pairs, saddle, and single horses were features in the ring, George Watson of New York, carrying away most of the honors. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, with Lord Brooke, the only entry he made, won a second ribbon for single harness horses of 15 hands 2 inches and over. This horse was a beauty and is a Sandy Point Farm product. In this class George Watson captured first with Novice Florham Top Notch. Mr. Watson's best winner in the show today was Novice Florham Bonnie. In the attractive jumping class the old horse David Gray, owned by Edwin H. Wetherbee of New York, carried away all the honors. The Newport horses shown included those of Mrs. Philip A. Clarke and Richard Gambrill. Miss Adele Smith Colgate of New York won second ribbon with Belle Rawlston, a novice horse in harness. Miss Colgate captured a first ribbon in the hunter class with Onspec. The summary:

Class 2.—Novice pairs and height, which have never won a prize previous to the opening of this show, shown in harness—Won by George Watson's ch. m. Florham Vanity and ch. m. Florham Bonnie; Mrs. H. SPORTS AT LONG BEACH.

Polo Ponies In Races Along Beach—Tug-of-War and Tennis Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I., Sept. 4.—Thousands of persons stretched along the Boardwalk and cheered a score of horsemen in a unique race along the beach here this morning. The course was laid along the hard sand near the splashing breakers, and the jockeys, in the colors of Meadow Brook Hunt Club and private stables, raced on polo ponies from Cedarhurst and the Rockaways. The steeplechase race, which was won by Guate Matizin, with Thomas White of the Meadow Brook Hunt Club, caused wild excitement. Wagers of several thousand dollars were made before the start, and as the horses galloped along the beach. The finish was close, Nester, ridden by Stewart Vass, being nosed out at the finish.

Jack O'Day, on Jumper, won the silver cup for polo ponies, and Paul Daily was second on Break o' Day. The tug-of-war between waiters of the drill room and the main dining room was won by the drill room attendants, who took two straight heats by 1 inch each. Patrons of the hotel backed their favorites heavily and considerable money changed hands on this event. A mile walking contest was won by Louis Campor.

In the tennis tournament the final and the singles for the Long Beach championship was won by Oscar M. Vonbermuth, who defeated C. Walter Randall three straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4. The finals and the doubles were won by Vonbermuth and Bierwith against Senator Reynolds and C. Walter Randall, 6—2, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1.

WORLD'S RECORDS AT I.-A. A. C. GAMES

Old Marks of Mile Relay, 56-Pound Weight and 5,000 Meters Events All Go at Celtic Park.

With the establishing of three world's records and one new mark for the track the annual games of the Irish-American Athletic Club, which were held on the home grounds of the association, at Celtic Park, L. I., yesterday, will go down in athletic history as one of the greatest days of amateur track and field sport witnessed in the metropolitan district.

A crowd which numbered close to 10,000 helped in every way possible toward the creation of the new figures.

What was probably the greatest mile relay race ever run was that won by the quartet of the Irish-American A. C. that covered the mile in whirlwind fashion and knocked the props from under a hard-earned mark of the same organization in 1900. The other old marks that were supplanted were the fifty-six-pound weight throwing and the 5,000-meter race.

The relay race was delayed for some time, owing to the failure of Melvin W. Sheppard, who was largely responsible for the new figure, to get to the grounds from Newark, where he also competed.

The entries for the event, which numbered about twenty of the fastest middle-distance runners of the day, were divided into three teams, with the Irish on the back mark. The other two teams had marks of 44 and 24 yards, respectively.

In the first relay Schaff of the home club was sent away from the back mark against Pepis and Archer. The trio raced around the oval in great fashion, and Schaff then touched off Sheppard. Sheppard was fully 100 yards behind the leader when he was sent away for his quarter, but from the first step he took it was seen that he was out to get the scalps of his two opponents. On the back straightaway he opened up a sprint which carried him up on the heels of the field, and before the turn was rounded he had worked into second place. The fight between the "peerless one" and Joe Bromilow in the last century was a thriller, but Sheppard went to the fore just about ten yards before the tape was reached and thereby stowed away the event and afforded the opportunity for the new mark. Harry Gissing, who for the first time since his European trip has been seen in competition and incidentally with the Irish-American colors, then came in for his share of the work, and took up the third quarter. Gissing outran his field and handed down a lead of fully ten yards to Jim Rosenberger.

"Rosie" then set sail and dashed over the final distance as he never did before, and with gigantic strides pulled away from the others and finished with a lead of thirty yards. Time, 3:18 1-5. The old mark for the same distance was made by the Irish-American team at the same place in 1909, when the four was made up of Cassasa, Robbins, Sheppard, and Rosenberger, which made the distance in 3:20 3-5.

Louis Scott, the South Paterson A. C. athlete who is steadily working to the top ranks of distance runners, was not to be denied yesterday, and in the 5,000-meter handicap run annexed a world's mark by covering the distance, which is about 180 yards over three miles, in 15:23 1-5. The old record was made by John Svanberg before he turned professional in the year of 1907 at Falun, Sweden.

George Bonhag was entered in the contest and placed on the mark of honor, conceding thirty yards to the Paterson runner, but as Bonhag did not start Scott was placed back on the back mark and started against six opponents.

While the record-breaking performances were being contested on the cinder path the more sturdy athletes holding forth in the centre of the oval were not overlooking the work of their colleagues.

The announcement of the new record for Scott was no sooner made than the result of the fifty-six-pound weight was ready for calling, and this event also carried with it a world's figure.

Matt McGrath, competing unattached, gained the new crown by hurling the weight over a distance of 39 feet 9⅝ inches. The old mark was held by John Flanagan, who was credited with a throw of 38 feet 8 inches.

Abel Kiviat of the Winged Fist organization and present National mile champion, which title he gained at Pittsburgh when he covered the distance in 4:19, gave a good account of himself, and after starting from the back mark in the one-mile handicap finished second to one of the distance men, W. Tapper of the West End A. C., and hung up a new mark for the Celtic Park track. His time was 4:20 1-5. Summary:

880-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by P. L. Jones, Yonkers Y. M. C. A., (53 yards;) J. Gallent, Flatbush A. C., (58 yards,) second; J. Bromilow, Irish-American A. C., (18 yards,) third. Time—1:54 3-5.

Mooney Beats Weston's Record?

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Seventy-nine walking days from where he started to lower Edward Payson Weston's record across the continent, John Henry Mooney, a member of the New York City Fire Department, arrived last night in Oakland, Cal., practically completing his task and winning the $10,000 prize contributed by as many thousand members of New York's Fire Department, each of whom paid a dollar to the fund. Mooney bears credentials from the Mayors of the cities through which he has passed. He said he suffered no ill effects by reason of his long tramp. Weston's record was 105 days.

Shrubb Defeats Longboat.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Alfred Shrubb, the English runner, defeated Tom Longboat, the Indian, in a close ten-mile race at Oak Island to-day. At no time was there more than eight yards between the contestants, and Shrubb crossed the finish line barely four yards ahead. The race was run on an eight-lap dirt track, and, considering conditions, the time, 53 minutes 28 2-5 seconds, is considered fast. The race was held in connection with an outing of the Progressive Athletic Association of Boston.

The 10,000 people who cut short a holiday snooze and grabbed a hurried breakfast to get to the Polo Grounds yesterday morning saw the Giants beat the Bostons by a score of 6 to 4. New York won with Red Ames pitching, too, mind you. In the afternoon a gathering of 30,000 swarmed into the stadium, and their emotions, hopes, and fancies got a hard jolt when Rube Marquard, after pitching a wonderful game for seven innings, all of a sudden blew up and let the Rustlers tie the score.

Worse and worse, they waded roughly into the Giants again in the tenth and got a three-run lead. Spunky to the last, New York made a sensational grab for the victory, which had so unexpectedly slipped away. They had Boston on the run, and got two runs and jammed up the bases with runners. Buster Brown was called in and saved the Bostons from defeat. The score was 8 to 7.

The morning game was made an easy plum for New York, because Tyler, the pitcher, was wild, and Kling, the catcher, was even wilder. The former Cub star was so bad that he was derricked from the game. Tyler settled down after he had given the Giants a margin large enough to win. Ames tottered several times, but the team fielded brilliantly behind him and helped over the rough spots.

Marquard equaled the season's record for strike-outs—made by himself—in the second game. He fanned 14 of the Rustlers, and the great speed of the ball and the prominent break had them churning the atmosphere for seven innings. Marquard pressed himself too hard. In the eighth he tired, and his shoots lacked the "smoke" that enveloped them early in the fray. Then Boston began to hit him. With the score 5 to 0 Boston fell on Rube savagely in the eighth, and five hits, Fletcher's error, and a base on balls gave Boston five runs, and all of Marquard's great pitching was piteously wasted. Rube wasn't taken from the box. McGraw left him in and he finally lost the game. Rube was confident that he had all the speed he showed early in the battle. He was mistaken. Two doubles and three singles in the tenth inning did the business for the Beantown troupe.

The unlooked-for rally of the Bostons, the immense crowd, and the wild excitement attending the whirlwind finish of the Giants in the tenth inning tended to make the scene at the Polo Grounds the liveliest of the season. The fact that there are so many familiar faces on the Boston team now helped to swell the size of yesterday's reception. There's Al Bridwell, who got a warm, hearty, glad hand, and Mike Donlin, who strutted to bat every time, keeping time with the applause. Old Cy Young was cheered when he appeared. Also our old Texas friend, Hank Gowdy. Before the game McGraw placed Dick Hennessy, the bat boy, at first base, and put him through his paces. Dick is as lively as a cricket, and when he grows up maybe you'll see a great player by the name of Hennessy. Manager Fred Tenney used to be a nice quiet sort of a man, but the strain of the campaign is weighing heavily on the warrior, and he is getting somewhat peevish. He behaved so badly yesterday, according to Mr. Klem's idea of decorum, that he was twice sent away from the coaching lines.

Tyler started the first game as wild as a cannibal. Devore and Doyle both got passes and worked a double steal. Snodgrass fanned and Murray sent Devore and Doyle home with a single. Murray stole second, Johnny Kling's arm seemed to be made of crockery. He pegged one to third, however, and got Murray trying to steal that sack. Merkle walked and he also stole second, the fourth steal of the inning. Herzog fouled to Kling.

Mike Donlin got a warm greeting from the crowd when he stepped to the bat in the second inning and responded by cracking out a double. Miller singled to right and Mike trotted home. McDonald hit a drive which Herzog knocked down and touched Miller at third. Manager Tenney objected to the decision, and he was asked to depart. He went to the bench, but Umpire Klem objected to his presence there and insisted on his retreat to the clubhouse.

The third inning was a disastrous affair for the Bostons. After Snodgrass had fanned, Jack Murray slammed a long home run into the right field stand. Ingerton threw Merkle out at first and Herzog doubled. Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball, and Meyers was also winged by Tyler, filling the bases. Tyler still had a trick up his sleeve which he sprung in the shape of a wild pitch, allowing Herzog and Fletcher to score. Ames received a pass, but Devore ended the inning by lining to Donlin.

While Red Ames pitched fairly good ball, in the pinches there was always that suspicion that his hoodoo was lurking somewhere in the neighborhood. Ingerton opened the sixth inning with a steaming double. Bridwell got away a short single and Ingerton scored on Jackson's safety. Miller singled and the bases were crowded. Ames cooled down and fanned McDonald. Gowdy grounded to Fletcher and expired at first. The Giants were still in a little danger, for in the seventh the Beaneaters came back for more. With two out, Ingerton walked, Bridwell singled and Jackson beat out an infield hit, filling the bases. Donlin hammered out a single which sent Ingerton and Bridwell home. Both Tyler and Ames had found their bearings, and there was no more scoring.

Hub Perdue was pitted against Marquard in the afternoon game, and kept the Giants in check until the fourth inning. Murray drew a pass in this chapter, and then Merkle drove the ball into the right field stand for a homer, sending Murray in before him. With two out in the sixth, Merkle hit through third, and Herzog was hit in the ribs. Fletcher singled, scoring Merkle. Meyers slammed a hit to centre, scoring Herzog and Fletcher.

The eighth inning is a painful thing to recall. It didn't seem possible that a pitcher who was showing so much "stuff" as Marquard could cave in suddenly. Every player on the Boston team faced him in this inning, and a good many of them found that all the mystery about his service was gone. Hank Gowdy started the downfall of Marquard with a single to left. Rariden singled, and Kling, batting for Perdue, drew a pass. Ingerton hit to left, scoring Gowdy and Rariden. Bridwell was safe on Fletcher's error. Jackson singled, scoring Kling. Donlin forced Ingerton at the plate, and Miller's double to left sent Bridwell and Jackson home, and the score was tied at 5 to 5.

With one out in the tenth, Jackson doubled, and went to third when Fletcher fumbled the relay. Kaiser, batting for Donlin, scored Jackson with a single. Miller singled and sent Kaiser to third. McDonald sent Kaiser through with a rap to left, and Gowdy made his third hit, a double, and sent Miller home. Rariden forced McDonald at the plate, and Hogg was an easy third out, Herzog to Merkle.

New York's attempt to get back the game in the last half of the tenth was the most exciting episode of the game. Josh Devore started it with a triple, and scored on Doyle's single to right. Here Hogg, who had succeeded Perdue, gave way to Brown. "Buster" walked Snodgrass. Murray singled, scoring Doyle. Merkle laid down a sacrifice. Herzog forced Snodgrass at the plate. With the bases loaded, McGraw whispered to Meyers, and the Indian faced Brown. He hammered a seething liner at Ingerton, who vaulted and drew the curtains.

ASCENSION OF THE REUBEN.

Mike Donlin fanned thrice. He ought to be valuable to Boston as a batting coach for the young players, like Cy Young and Johnny Kling.

Second inning, two out, bases full, and Rube Marquard at the bat. What did the crowd say? Correct.

Fletcher's poor fielding at short in the second game figured in the defeat. Rube's blowup, however, is the place to lay the blame.

Marquard wanted to establish a new strike-out record, and Boston looked like an easy place to do it. If his arm wasn't fastened securely he would have thrown it into the grand stand.

Little Toby, Knockout Brown's mascot, saw the fray, but didn't bring any more luck than he did to Brown last week.

When it comes to nestling the wood stoutly against the leather, Merkle is considerable nestler.

Fred Tenney was chased twice in one day for nagging the umpires. Let's see, didn't he play under McGraw?

Giants stole eight bases in two games. "At a rallopin'."

They deserve a day of rest.

New Baseball Ruling.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 4.—The National Baseball Commission to-day suspended that part of Rule 35 which forbids the asking of waivers by any major league club for purchased minor league players previous to Dec. 1 of the year following the purchase. The suspension of the rule is for one year, but the commission warns the major leagues it is the last time it will occur. The commission states that it realizes the difficulty experienced by major league clubs in observing special legislation of each league, limiting the number of players each of its clubs may carry on its reserve list, and has adopted the following new rule, to become effective at once:

"Rule 54.—From and after the promulgation of this rule, no major league club will be permitted to carry on its annual reserve list more than forty players exclusive of ineligible players."

SUPERBAS TWICE DEFEAT PHILLIES

Winners Drive Alexander and Moore from the Box—Knetzer and Rucker Strong.

Labor Day was a huge success from a Brooklyn baseball standpoint. The lowly Superbas have been struggling along a thorny path all season, and have generally found it difficult winning a single game. Yesterday they grabbed their first double-header of the season, the Dooinless Phillies taking the count in both morning and afternoon sessions, and each time the Dahlen brigade crossed the finish line with plenty to spare. In the morning clash the score was 6 to 2, and in the afternoon it was 6 to 0.

The great Alexander, whose work has been one of the sensations of the season, was rudely treated by the natives in the morning game, and was finally driven from the mound after his slants had been straightened out for enough runs to make victory easy for Dahlen's boys. For six innings he took such good care of the Brooklyn batsmen that only twenty-one Superbas faced him, and only one run had been crowded over the plate, that coming in the fourth inning on a pass, a fielder's choice and Hummel's triple. With the score 2 to 1 against them the Superbas got busy against Alexander in the seventh inning, and chalked up four hits and as many runs.

Hummel and Humphrey singled, Coulson advanced the pair with a sacrifice, and Zimmerman chased them home with a single. A pass to Erwin and an error by Madden on Knetzer's bunt filled the bases. Tooley forced Zimmerman at the plate, and Daubert scored Erwin and Knetzer with a single to left. A pass to Hummel, Lobert's error, and singles by Coulson and Erwin, scored Brooklyn's last run in the eighth inning.

Knetzer scattered six hits through six innings, and the visitors never threatened after the third inning. They scored in the second on Beck's double, a sacrifice and an out, and the second run arrived in the third inning on a pass to Knabe, an out and Lobert's double. During the remainder of the game only one of the visitors reached second base. A line drive from Luderus's bat hit Knetzer on the head in the fourth inning and bounded to safety without leaving any ill-effects. Knetzer was not knocked down, and after rubbing his head a few times continued on with his work of mowing down the Phillies. The Philadelphia outfielders went through the game without making a putout.

The afternoon game was all Rucker. The clever southpaw was in fine form and allowed his opponents but four hits, no more than one in any inning. Only two of the visitors succeeded in passing first base during the game. Earl Moore was pounded harder by the Superbas than Alexander had been hit in the morning game and retired after seven innings. During that time the Superbas had gathered ten hits and six runs. Catches by Zimmerman and Coulson and a stop by Doolan were the features. In the sixth inning Paskert was chased to the clubhouse for throwing his bat high into the air, following by giving his cap the same treatment, after he had been called out on strikes. The scores:

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 4.—The morning game was won by Pittsburgh from Cincinnati by a score of 4 to 3. Pinch hitting by F. Clarke and Wilson in the sixth inning was the cause of the victory. The game began in a rather listless manner, but ended in brilliant fielding. The score:

Reds Take Afternoon Game.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4.—Pittsburgh broke even to-day in a double-header with Cincinnati, taking the morning game by the score of 4 to 3 by a free use of pinch hitters, and losing the afternoon game, 3 to 1, when in the eighth inning Miller collided with Campbell in a scramble for a fly ball, letting in two runs. The afternoon game developed into a pitcher's battle after the first inning, both Leifield and Humphries being given errorless support. The score:

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The geographical centre of the wrestling world was more than ever fortified at Humboldt, Iowa, the home of Frank Gotch, to-day. Moreover, Referee Ed. Smith, who proclaimed the world's champion victor over George Hackenschmidt, declared that for the next ten years there would be no shift of the wrestling capital unless Gotch should choose to change his place of residence.

The Russian's showing was pitiful. The crowd decreed that he had "quit," but the defeated challenger, through copious tears, averred that he entered the arena with a wrenched knee, on which Gotch worked and speedily reduced him to a state of comparative helplessness.

The foreigner's nerves were on edge. He spent a sleepless night and was pale when he crawled through the ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared that though there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee, it was not evident during the examination.

"Hack" Cries for Mercy.

While it took Gotch 14 minutes 18 seconds to gain the first fall, the second fall required only 5 minutes 32 1-5 seconds, which Hackenschmidt's friends assert proved that his knee was in bad condition.

Referee Smith is authority for the statement that when Gotch secured the fatal toe lock which won him the match, Hackenschmidt cried out, "Don't hurt my toe," and a second later "Don't break my leg," and fell with his shoulders to the mat, frothing at the mouth.

The first fall resulted from a reverse body hold after the men had struggled 14 minutes 48⅘ seconds. That terrible toe hold for which Gotch is famous was responsible for the second fall. He clamped it upon the left foot of Hackenschmidt after the second bout had gone five minutes. Scarcely had be obtained the grip when Hackenschmidt acknowledged defeat. Hackenschmidt's own statement that it was the easiest world's championship ever won tells the story of the bout almost as well as it could be told. Gotch never was in serious difficulty at any time during the match. Neither was he forced to extend himself to win. The Iowan secured in all perhaps half a dozen dangerous holds on his antagonist.

Hackenschmidt had Gotch worried but once. During the first fall Hackenschmidt obtained a body hold on Gotch that brought him to the mat. But the champion was on the canvas for only a few seconds. Then he was only down as far as his knees. Almost before the lion realized that his antagonist was in a dangerous predictment Gotch had wriggled out of the hold and was bounding across the ring to safety.

For his defeat Hackenschmidt offers but the one excuse, that his left knee, which was injured in training two weeks ago, weakened under the pressure of the iron hands of Gotch, and it was useless to continue at the risk of being permanently injured. Hackenschmidt went into the ring with the member in a bandage.

But, regardless of whether there be any merit to Hackenschmidt's assertion that his knee was in bad shape, it cannot be denied that the challenger was in no state mentally to enter into a gruelling contest. Hackenschmidt was unnerved before he entered the arena.

Russian Mentally Unfit.

Whether it was from worry over his injured knee or his fretting over the match generally cannot be said. Like Jeffries, however, the Russian Lion spent a sleepless night before the battle, although his trainers tried every means to put him at ease. They had him room with John Koch, a German, and one of Koch's chief duties was to sing songs of the Fatherland to the Russian and try to soothe him. But Hackenschmidt would not be calmed. After trying vainly for several hours to go to sleep, he arose and pleaded with his trainers to give him drugs that would make him rest. They refused to do this and Hackenschmidt retired to fret the night away.

In the minds of the vast crowd that saw the match there was no doubt as to which was the better wrestler. Gotch outpointed, out-generaled, and out-gamed his opponent. The Iowan appeared faster than he had ever been before. His condition was perfect. He enterd the ring filled with confidence, and never once did he lose his nonchalance. At every stage of the bout he smiled as though he never had the slightest doubt as to the ultimate outcome.

On the other hand, Hackenschmidt seemed ill at ease. During the first fall he went about his work with his face set, anything but the glint of confidence in his eye. And after Gotch had gained the first fall the courage of the Russian appeared to have oozed out of him. With shoulders stooped and eyes downcast, he sat in his corner, awaiting the starting signal.

In a box in the centre of the grandstand sat Gotch's old mother and his young bride. Frequently while in the thickest of the fray Gotch found time to look toward the two women and smile. During the ten minutes' intermission between falls he did not go at once to his dressing room, but stood for a moment in his corner, smiling and waving at the two.

Hackenschmidt was heartbroken over the result of the bout. In his dressing room for half an hour he sat in his wrestling garb, crying and refusing the proferred attentions and cheering words of his trainers.

Gotch only smiled after the match was over. He said the result was exactly as he thought it would be.

The story of the actual wrestling that was done is soon told.

The Bout in Detail.

Time was called at 3:15 o'clock. The contestants immediately locked heads and began feeling each other out. For five minutes they tugged at each other's neck, wrists, and arms, but neither obtained a dangerous hold.

It was Gotch who first turned attention to the legs. He made several fake passes at Hackenschmidt's knees before he finally obtained a kneehold at the end of 8½ minutes. Once the Iowan's massive hands were fastened on Hackenschmidt's left leg the Russian went down. He struggled out of that, and a subsequent hold of the same kind, and then became the aggressor. At ten minutes Hackenschmidt secured a body hold and put Gotch to the mat. But he was down only an instant.

After fourteen minutes of wrestling Gotch started Hackenschmidt downward with a kneehold, taked a crotch, and then quickly worked the Russian into a half-Nelson. They struck the mat together, head to head. Then Gotch pivoted on his opponent's stomach, clamped on a reverse body hold, and the first fall was over.

The first five minutes of the second fall was a repetition of that period in the first. But suddenly Gotch reached down with his right hand, grasped Hackenschmidt's left ankle, and unbalanced the lion.

While Hackenschmidt was trying to regain his equilibrium Gotch struck the Lion's injured leg with his right knee and the Russian crumpled into a heap.

Directly Gotch was on him, his powerful right hand firmly locked upon the under man's left toe. Hackenschmidt screamed a couple of times, rolled over on his shoulders, and gave up.

STATEMENTS OF PRINCIPALS.

Gotch Surprised and "Hack" Wants Another Match.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Gotch, Hackenschmidt, and Referee Smith all made statements after the match, as follows:

BY FRANK GOTCH.

"Honestly I didn't think it would be so easy. Hackenschmidt gave me such a desperate struggle in our first meeting that I was prepared and expected to go through with a hard, drawn-out battle. The very minute we locked heads I felt confident that I would win, but I really did not think victory would come so quickly.

"Hackenschimdt did not display the nerve and strength he did in our first contest. He wasn't aggressive. He appeared to be afraid. When I saw that Hack did not break down my defense or squirm out of holds I became determined to end it as quickly as possible.

"I am sorry he laid his miserable showing to an injured knee, for I wanted to make the victory a clean one. When I defeated him three years ago it was charged that I won unfairly. To-day I hoped that Hackenschimdt would be at his best, for I wanted to prove that I was his master."

BY GEORGE HACKENSCHMIDT.

"It was the cheapest world's championship ever won. I entered the contest with an injured knee, and had my shoulders pinned to the mat for the first time in my wrestling career. I have no one to blame. I shouldn't have gone into the match, but I was advised that I could wrestle without further injuring my knee. But we scarcely had got to work when Gotch began to torture me with his toe grips. I then realized that I was in no condition to continue. I am not a quitter, neither do I desire to charge that I was not treated fairly.

"I am satisfied that my defeat was due entirely to the injury. I would like to meet Gotch again, for I feel deeper than words can tell the loss of this match. I did my best under the conditions. That is all I can say."

REFEREE EDWARD W. SMITH.

"Gotch won honestly and fairly. Hack did not show his usual gameness or aggressiveness. I do not doubt that he was in the best condition, but he looked worried and frightened when the match began. He begged Gotch to release his punishing toe hold, and evidently was in great pain when Gotch forced him to defeat.

"On cleverness alone Gotch should easily remain the champion for ten more years. His work in the first fall was marvelous and so fast that I could scarcely follow it.

"Gotch first faked a crotch hold, then suddenly he secured a half Nelson on Hackenschmidt. In the wink of an eye Gotch pivoted on Hackenschmidt's stomach, switched to a reverse body hold, and had downed his man. It was the speediest shift I have ever seen made on the mat.

"Hackenschmidt was in great pain during the period when Gotch had the toe hold on him. 'Don't hurt my toe,' he cried at first. But Gotch continued to put on the pressure. 'Don't break my leg,' was his next appeal. The end came a second later."

ENTHUSIASM AT HUMBOLDT.

Gotch's Fellow Townsmen Celebrate Champion's Victory.

HUMBOLDT, Iowa, Sept. 4.—The announcement that Frank Gotch had won his second victory from George Hackenschmidt at Chicago to-day was the signal for the most enthusiastic demonstration Humboldt has witnessed in many years. To-night the "home folks" are informally celebrating the event and it is doubtful if there is a single farmhouse within a radius of fifty miles to which the news has not traveled.

Friends and neighbors of Gotch gathered at the Post Office early this afternoon, where wire arrangements for receiving news of the bout had been made. It was not long before the crowd completely filled the small lobby of the building and had overflowed into the street. But the announcement that the contest had ended came so suddenly that for a moment it seemed to stun the crowd.

And so when the flash, "Gotch wins," come in less than 20 minutes the crowd gasped and then as the full significance of the message disclosed itself there was a yell of delight. For fully 20 minutes more there was wild cheering. Plans already are under way for a rousing reception to Gotch upon his return.

T. C., driven by Tom Murphy, in straight heats. The finishes in all three heats were close. In the first heat Gordon Todd, driven by Geers, lead until within 100 yards of the wire, when he stumbled and almost fell. R. T. C. passing him and winning by a length from Chatty Direct. The second heat was won by R. T. C., only after a hard drive and by a few feet. The final heat was neck and neck to the wire, Gordon Todd breaking just before the finish. The division of the purse gives R. T. C. $5,000; Chatty Direct, $2,500; Gordon Todd, $1,500, and Louis Forest, $1,000.

The 2:16 trot went into six heats and was not finished until after sunset. Peter Red, with Geers up, showed the greatest endurance and took three firsts after finishing fifth in the first heat. The best time was by the winner in the second heat, 2:11½. Sue D. and Eva Tanguay finished second and third.

There were only three entries in the 2:04 pace, The Abbe, driven by Geers, taking all three heats with 2:04¾ in the first heat the fastest.

The winning of the Charter Oak to-day by R. T. C. brings the winnings of Tom Murphy's stable for the season up to nearly $50,000. The summaries:

Fast Motor Cycle Policeman.

Mrs. L. F. Collins, 1,111 Woodlawn Avenue, Kansas City, Mo., knows why the motor cycle has suddenly become a warm favorite in the police departments of the United States. Just the other day she was robbed by two men who entered her kitchen where she was at work. They took her money and departed with her in pursuit. The chase was seen by a barber nearby, who, sizing up the situation, telephoned the police. Motor Cycle Policeman A. W. Mitchell of the Flora Avenue Police Station responded, and four minutes later he had arrested two men. The robbery occurred in daylight.

NEW YORK A.C. SENIOR EIGHT WINS RACE

Fuessel and Shepheard Capture Senior Doubles in Middle States Regatta.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 4.—The senior eight-oared shell race proved to be the premier event of the Middle States Regatta, which was decided over the one-mile Spring Garden course here this afternoon. The New York Athletic Club, rowing in superb form, won the race, with Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, Ariel Rowing Club of Baltimore, and Arundel Boat Club of Baltimore finishing in the order named. The New Yorkers' clock-like stroke carried them into the lead at the quarter mile, and they finished in the excellent time of 5:28 2-5.

The next best event of the day, the junior four-oared gig race, also took place in the afternoon. It was won by the Arundel Boat Club of Baltimore, with the Ariel Rowing Club of Baltimore second, and the Fairmount Club of Philadelphia third. The boats lapped each other at the finish line.

There were but two contestants in the intermediate eight-oared shell race, which was won by Stanley B. Furstenan of the Crescent Boat Club of Philadelphia in a brilliant finish. A promising start was made by George T. Lewis of the Ariel Rowing Club of this city, but the even stroke of the Philadelphia man in the final spurt made him the winner.

Another interesting forenoon event was the senior double scull, which was won by Fred Fuessel and Fred Shepheard of the Harlem Rowing Club of New York, former National champions, who crosed the finish line with a great spurt ahead of Howard and Kronberger of the Ariel Boat Club of Baltimore.

A protest in this morning's four-oared gig race entered by the Fairmount Boat Club of Philadelphia necessitated that that event be rerowed, as it was alleged a foul had been committed at the half-mile point. The judges upheld the protest and ordered the race rerowed from the half-way mark. The order of the finish was the same as in the first trial, with the Ariels of Baltimore first, Maltas of Philadelphia second, and the Fairmounts of Philadelphia third. The summaries:

RIVERS KNOCKED OUT.

Johnny Kilbane Finishes Mexican in the Sixteenth Round.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 4.—With a hard right swing to the jaw Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland knocked out Joe Rivers of Los Angeles in the sixteenth round of their scheduled twenty-round bout at Vernor, to-day. Rivers has been regarded as Attell's only rival for the featherweight championship since his victory over Joe Coster on July 4.

Immediately after the fight Kilbane was informed of the death of his grandmother, Mrs. Bridget Kilbane, at Cleveland to-day. After his mother's death his grandmother reared him. He was not notified until after the fight for fear the news might unnerve him.

With Rivers leading in almost every round up to the sixteenth, Kilbane scored the knockout thirty seconds after the gong had sent them together in that round. A blow on the jaw dazed Rivers, but did not knock him down. Another terrific right to the pit of the stomach doubled the Mexican in a knot on the floor. Rising groggily, he tried to rush into a clinch, but a right swing sent him sprawling to the canvas. It was fully five minutes before Rivers was able to leave the ring.

LANGFORD AND JEANNETTE.

Big Negro Boxers in Ten-Round Bout at Madison Square Garden To-night.

Sam Langford, the Boston "tar baby," and Joe Jeannette of New York, both hunters for the crown of Jack Johnson, are ready for their ten-round bout in Madison Square Garden to-night. Each is fit for what he considers the hardest bout of his career. For weeks they have worked like trojans for the battle, and it's the word of experts that no finer point of physical condition could be reached than they are now in. Each man is sure that he will "bring home the bacon," and, taking their word for it, it will be the most grueling contest New Yorkers have ever seen in the ring. Charley White, who will referee the match, says that he looks for a hard battle, basing his predicition on the sensational bouts the same pair have engaged in before.

Cross Defeats Dorman.

Leach Cross, the east side dentist, signalized his return to the ring last night after a long absence by defeating Jack Dorman, the west side lightweight, in a ten-round bout at the Olympic Athletic Club. The bout was marked by fast action from start to finish. Dorman did most of the leading, but Cross was too clever for the west sider, and besides evading the most of Dorman's damaging punches, was able to land with enough effect to gain the honors. At the close of the bout both were strong, but each gave evidence of the hard fighting.

The semi-final was a six-round contest between Young Reddy and Battling Mantell, in which the former was the winner.

Hogan Defeats Evans.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 4.—One-Round Hogan of California knocked out Young Evans in the fourth round of what was scheduled for a twelve-round bout here to-day. The match was held in the open air.

Bout in South for Tommy Kilbane.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—Tommy Kilbane has been matched here to fight Joe Mandot, Southern champion, at Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 18, eight rounds.

World's Record for Disbrow.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 4.—Louis Disbrow, driving a Pope-Hartford car, established a new world's record for a five-mile automobile beach race with a turn, in an exhibition run to-day. He covered the course in 3:08.

In a ten-mile match race over the same course, J. M. Rutherford, driving a National, was the winner in 6:15.

L. F. N. Baldwin, in a Stanley Steamer, did an exhibition mile in 0:42.

GRAYJACKET LEADS CLASS Q.

Atlantic Yacht Club Sails Forty-fifth Regatta on Lower Bay.

Yachtsmen of the Gravesend Bay District sailed the forty-fifth annual regatta of the Atlantic Yacht Club yesterday. Although the contest was open to all classes of schooners, sloops, and yawls, only the smaller divisions reported at the starting line off Sea Gate. The day was an ideal one for the sport. A glorious whole-sail breeze swept in from the southeast, and enabled the craft to make excellent time over the outside courses. Being the annual regatta of the club, the starting signals were set at 11 o'clock in the morning, and the courses took all the boats well down the Bay.

The Q Division and the handicap class were the first away, forming the third division of the regatta. The yachts sailed a fifteen and one-half mile race, which took them from the starting line to the Southwest Spit Buoys, Old Orchard Shoal Light, and back to Sea Gate. The boats had practically a reach for the entire course. It was a splendid day for the heavy weather craft, and Grayjacket had no difficulty in winning in the Q Division, while on both actual and corrected time the handicap class was taken by the yawl La Cubana.

Class S and the knockabouts of the lower bay made up the fourth and last division of the regatta. The boats went around Old Orchard Shoal Lighthouse, a distance of twelve nautical miles. To the surprise of all, the tiny knockabouts led home the larger S boats. Merry Widow was the first of the former craft to finish, covering the course in 1:57:31. Cyric led home the S boats in 1:59:53. The summary:

PETER PAN WINS ON HUDSON.

Two Boats Disqualified in Race for Power Boats.

The competition in the annual regatta day events of the Yonkers Yacht Club yesterday was keen and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, ashore and afloat. Chief interest centred in the power boat races, the feature of which was for the Ellicott Cup. Peter Pan IV. won the race, with Elmer L. II. of Albany second.

In the event for Class 1 boats, twenty miles, Elmer L. II. won, with Teddy of Poughkeepsie second. Peter Pan IV. captured the Class 2 race, also at twenty miles, from the Quo Vadis and the Josephine of Albany, which were, respectively, second and third.

In the free-for-all race the Elmer L. II. finished first and the Trazer of Poughkeepsie second. They were both disqualified, however, because of lack of equipment, and the race was given to Peter Pan IV., with Tiny Tad second.

In the one-design class boat No. 10, belonging to the Mitchell brothers of the Yonkers Yacht Club, won the first prize.

Papoose and Manhasset First.

RED BANK, N. J., Sept. 4.—The annual Labor Day regatta of the Red Bank Yacht Club was held to-day. There were two races embodied in one. The first was an open and handicap event for three cups, distance ten miles, and the second was for a cup presented by Commodore John S. Dickerson, distance twenty miles. The start was from the floating clubhouse, down the North Shrewsbury River, opposite Fair Haven, sailing twice over the course. There was a stiff northeast wind blowing and each yacht was heavily weighted with live ballast to hold it down, but at times it looked as if some of the yachts would turn over when struck by a heavy puff of wind. The start was made with a one gun signal, six yachts starting off close together with Widow first over the line. In going over the first leg the yachts had to tack, when they became scattered. Commodore Dickerson's Manhasset, the largest yacht of the fleet, which had to give big handicaps, took the lead early in the race and steadily widened the gap. The other yachts constantly changed positions and made a pretty and exciting race, witnessed by many ladies and members. Summary:

LARNED DEFENDS HIS TENNIS TITLE

Veteran Conquers Challenger M. E. McLoughlin on Newport Courts for National Honor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 4.—William A. Larned for the fifth time in his long career on the American lawn tennis courts again successfully conquered his challenger for the highest honors by defeating Maurice E. McLoughlin of California in the championship match of the thirty-first All-Comers' Tournament by the score 6—4, 6—4, 6—2. By his victory Larned wears the crown of the sport for the seventh time. In this respect he duplicates the record of the first of the American title holders, Richard D. Sears, who maintained his supremacy from 1881 to 1887, inclusive.

Once the defending champion had settled into his game—and this came after 3-all had been called in the first set—he outplayed his rival from the Pacific Coast at every turn. He met the impetuous rushes of the young player, twenty years his junior, at the net and turned the tide against him. He scored a total of 18 games to 10 and 103 points to 78 in the three sets. His placement was of a high order of accuracy, as Larned tallied 35 placements to McLoughlin's 29. He was always at his old trick of skirting the side lines or crossing the challenger as he came in to close range. Larned's outs were 21 to McLoughlin's 19, and this was the only point in which the challenger excelled with the exception of his twisting service, which netted McLoughlin 9 aces to Larned's 2. To the amazement of the experts McLoughlin was weak when handling the rapid-fire drives which the champion sent to him at the net. His nets were costly, and tallied 43 to Larned's 28.

Larned was always equal to bringing off a point when he most needed it. He pulled out any number of games after McLoughlin had led him on service at 40—love, adding exciting thrills for the gallery as he manoeuvred the young challenger out of position to speed a passing shot through his court. Altogether Larned scored six times against his opponent's service, while McLoughlin only scored on one occasion.

The superiority of Larned's work and his cleverness in handling the ball was also shown by his winning five games at love to two for the challenger.

The court and every condition was perfection when the two men came out shortly after the hour appointed. McLoughlin won the toss for service, and he led off with the service in every set. In the first game he caught Larned out of range several times, and although the points wavered at deuce the challenger scored. But Larned made his own service good up to 3—all despite the fact that the challenger was racing for the net and endeavoring to dislodge Larned by his smashing. On the seventh game the champion broke through for the first time. He had his range of the court by that time, and he swung the ball across from corner to corner, and then as McLoughlin swiftly attempted to come up the champion blocked the shot, and, seizing the opportunity, shot it past the challenger for the point. His work was not always successful, and he varied it somewhat by changes of pace, and by an occasional lob in the rallies, which kept the challenger on the move, and did not allow the younger player to settle into his stride. Many of the rallies were well fought, but Larned always found the openings and scored the set at 6—4.

By being alert to the openings and forcing his opponent wide of court Larned gained a lead of 2—1 in the second set. Then the Californian came up quickly, and by well-directed smashes won the only game he tallied against the champion's service. He could not forge to the front, however, for Larned was in masterful control, and he worked his drives for passes and wore down the backhand of McLoughlin so that he pulled ahead to 4—2. At the critical points of these games the challenger had many opportunities, but he bungled the shots into the net so that the defending champion again won at 6—4.

Larned took the net in the third set and held it despite a fusillade of shots which the challenger sent at him. He went ahead to 5—1, and then tossed a game rather than work himself out against McLoughlin's service in the ninth. The third game of the match contained a spectacular rally which set the crowd whooping and cheering as the two engaged in slambang exchanges until after a dozen shots Larned found the open spot at McLoughlin's feet and smashed through for the point. It saved the game for the champion, as McLoughlin held the vantage, and it returned the points to deuce. Larned outplayed the challenger at every department of the game in this set, finishing with a love game. McLoughlin sending the last ball into the net.

TENNIS MATCHES POSTPONED

Preliminary Matches for Davis Challenge Cup to be Played Saturday.

The preliminary tie matches in the international tennis tournament between the American and English teams for the Davis Challenge Cup, which were scheduled to be played Thursday, Friday, and Saturday next on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, were postponed until Saturday, Monday and Tuesday at the request of the English players. Owing to the recent strike in England the Adriatic, on which the English team came to this country, was delayed a few days and did not arrive until Sunday. This prevented the visitors from taking any preliminary practice and at the request of Capt. Lyon of the English team Dr. Dwight Davis of the American Tennis Association, under whose auspices the tournament is to be conducted, changed the dates for the matches. The Britishers engaged in several practice matches at the West Side courts yesterday.

The West Side Tennis Club has announced for the benefit of ticketholders that blue tickets will be accepted on Saturday, white on Monday, and yellow on Tuesday.

DUNCAN PLAYS FINE GOLF ON DEAL LINKS

Scotch Professional, Paired with W. V. Conover, Wins First Contest in America.

George Duncan, Scotch professional, who arrived in America late Sunday night, promptly got into golfing togs yesterday and made his first appearance at the Deal Golf and Country Club. Paired with W. V. Conover, Duncan took the measure of John F. Shanley, Jr., and Willie Norton, the home "pro" by 2 up and 1 to play, at 36 holes. The visitor made an excellent showing when it is considered that he had hardly become rid of his "sea legs."

Duncan's reputation for being the quickest player in the world had come over before him, and his apparent lack of care was a constant source of comment to the gallery. It was simply a case of walking up to the ball, a hasty glance down the course, then the drive. With the brassey, the approach, and the put, it was the same.

Off the tee Duncan is long, longer than most professionals, and remarkably straight. On rare occasions yesterday he was off the course. If he displayed a weakness it was at the short game. The approaches were generally on the green, but usually a trifle short and to the right, while the putting failed to rise above mediocrity. The long puts, those from 15 feet all the way to the edge of the green, Duncan invariably missed.

In Conover he had a fine partner, who made exceptional recoveries, thereby winning and halving holes where Duncan was unable to rise to the occasion. Shanley also played well, helping Norton frequently when the "pro" would be temporarily out of the fray. One of the most spectacular shots of the day was Duncan's opening drive. He arrived at the course late with Col. George Harvey, and after hurrying into his golfing outfit stepped to the first tee and hit a beautiful ball fully 250 yards straight down the course.

The winners had a best ball of 75 and 151 for the day as against 77 and 153 for the other side. Individually they were all going at about an 80 pace. The best ball scores were as follows:

Duncan and Conover—
Out .....4 4 5 5 6 4 3 5 3 5—40
Norton and Shanley—

There will be another four-ball affair there to-day. Jerome D. Travers, the metropolitan champion, will be paired with Duncan against Norton and P. W. Kendall.

Seney Plummer won the thirty-six hole handicap at the Apawamis Club yesterday with 175, 14—161. His rounds were 87 and 88. QUEAL 3-TIME WINNER.

Captures One, Three and Five Mile Events in Caledonian Games.

The fifty-fifth annual professional athletic games of the New York Caledonian Club were held yesterday at Washington Park, Maspeth, L. I., in which William Queal of Alexandria Bay, America's champion distance runner, pulled down the lion's share of the cash prizes. Queal captured first honors in the one, three, and five mile runs, which netted him the sum of $170. In each of the three events Queal easily outclassed his opponents and won as he pleased after once getting started.

Although not a speedy miler, the Alexandria Bay runner made a creditable showing in the mile run and won by fully 25 yards after leading from the half-mile post. Jimmie Lee of Boston, who a few years ago was the best man in the East at his mark, was forced to take defeat in the contest after Queal had opened his sprint.

With only six starters, the three-mile journey was quickly captured by Queal. Jim Crowley, former Marathon runner, was the only man to force the pace in the latter part of the contest, but before the end was reached Queal had opened up a good gap and romped home easily.

With a rest of two hours Queal was finally seen on the starting line of the five-mile run. This was more to the liking of the one and three-mile victor and at this style of pace he easily defeated his class and carried off his third victory. Qucal passed Lee two laps from the finish, and without a letup in his work romped home in front by fully 375 yards. Nieminen, who finished third, was 60 yards in the rear of Lee.

Louis Mang, formerly a member of the Mohawk A. C., came in for the second largest winners by annexing four first places, one second and a tie which netted him $50.33. He took first place in the running hop, step and jump; putting the heavy stone; pole vault, and running broad jump.

Part Freeman, an old member of the Xavier A. C., showed the way to the tape in the century and furlong dashes and finished second in the hurdles. The summaries:

SEELIG HORSES BEST.

Carry Off Principal Honors at the Staten Island Fair Show.

By his clean sweep of the harness classes Emil Seelig of Manhattan annexed the largest number of blue ribbons in the closing day's horse show at the Staten Island Fair, Dongan Hills, S. I. The calibre of the Seelig stable was most notable in the class for four-in-hands, and the four bays, which were driven by Eugene Von Bach, and acted far superior to the other three entries, carried off the blue amid the applause of the entire crowd.

In the class for single harness horses Seelig's bay gelding Little Knickerbocker was given plenty of competition and forced to show his best before the judges finally agreed upon it for the rosette.

In the Corinthian class for hunters Edmund A. Stirn, who was the most successful exhibitor of hunters, scored a double victory in taking first and second places with Sequin and Cock Robin. Lion Heart of the Donnybrook Farms, of which much was expected, did not come up to the standard, and only received third honors.

In the hunters' class for the President's Cup the Stirn entry, Cock Robin, again triumphed over that of the Donnybrook Farm, Lion Heart, which was the only other contender. Although none of the entry lists for the various classes was very large, the competition was good and brought out many show horses in the vicinity. The awards:

Class 21, Saddle Horses, ladies' saddle horses, 15.2 hands and under, ladies to ride.—Won by Miss Randall's b. g. Attention; G. A. E. Irving's b. m. Lassie, second; I. L. Hage's br. m. Lady Ossington, third.

Class 14, Four-in-Hands, horses to be any height, shown before a coach, drag, or break.—Won by E. Seelig's entry; Price and Brown's entry, second; J. H. Alexander's entry, third.

Class 32, Hunters, best performance over six successive jumps, two at 4 feet, two at 4 feet 6 inches, and two at 5 feet.—Won by E. A. Stirn's rn. g. Cock Robin; Donnybrook Farm's br. g. Lion Heart, second.

Class 18, Saddle Horses, to be judged for their quality, manners, paces, and conformation; horse over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.2 hands.—Won by Miss C. Hollis's b. g. Attention; D. S. Hage's b. g. Ken, second; J. D. Hage's br. m. Lady Ossington, third.

Tennis Tourney Favorites.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Charles Benton of Cleveland and Fred Harris of Dartmouth are to-night thought to be the strongest contenders for the so-called international championship in the tennis tournament begun here to-day. After the first day's play it is thought that one of them shortly will face Nat Niles, the present title-holder. Benton is champion of Michigan. The greatest interest to-day centred in the exhibition matches in which there participated T. C. Bundy of California, who will play in the International tournament between the American and Canadian teams at New York City; Armstrong, the University of Minnesota champion; Harris and Kirkover. the latter of Buffalo. Bundy and Kirkover won from Harris and Armstrong, 6—4 and 6—4. In a mixed doubles Bundy and May Sutton defeated Harris and Florence Sutton, 6—3 and 6—4.

DANIELS'S RECORD PASSED BY RITTER

City Athletic Club Swimmer Covers Quarter Mile in 5 Minutes 52 3-5 Seconds.

A new American outdoor record for the quarter-mile swim was made by R. M. Ritter of the City Athletic Club in the championship contest held yesterday afternoon at Travers Island, the Summer home of the New York Athletic Club. Ritter's time was 5:52 3-5, clipping 1 3-5 seconds from C. M. Daniels's record of 5:54 1-5 for the distance, made over the same course, and 7 1-5 seconds from Daniels's time which won the championship in 1910.

The race yesterday was one of the finest contests that has been seen in aquatic sports this Summer. Since N. F. Nerich was cheated out of his record in the half-mile in the championship swim held in that event at Travers Island some weeks ago because of a short course, the whole course has been remeasured and restaked, and it was said that there would be no doubt of Ritter's new mark being accepted. Individual watches were kept on the five contestants, besides the regular timers, and Ritter's time was unchallenged.

As the five entrants on the programme lined up on the float for the start they made up as fine a field for the swim as could well be furnished. Besides Ritter, N. F. Nerich, L. B. Goodwin, and J. H. Reilly of the Winged Foot Club and R. F. Frizell of Missouri, unattached, were all prepared to make a strong bid for the honors, and it was predicted that the winner would have to establish a new record. The pace set from the crack of the pistol bore out this prophecy, for the speed hardly slackened throughout the distance. At the very end of the race Ritter had his own way, Nerich weakening in the last twenty yards, losing by a full ten yards. His second place was in great jeopardy, as Reilly, Frizell, and Goodwin crowded up, all fighting for second or third place. Nerich had about a yard to spare, while the other three, bunched together, finished in the above order.

In the first lap, Nerich, Frizell, and Ritter took the lead, leaving Goodwin and Reilly some ten yards behind. On the turn and along the lap to the finish of the 220 yards, the three leaders swam neck and neck, digging furiously in the water in the struggle to draw away. But no advantage was gained until after the turn of the 220 yards. Then Ritter slowly began to swim away from Nerich, and the latter from Frizell. Nerich hung on well until at the very end, when he suddenly slowed up. Reilly forged ahead of Frizell in the last five yards.

Besides the championship quarter-mile swim there was the National A. A. U. fancy diving contest. In this, with but a few points to spare, George W. Gaidzik of the Chicago A. C. successfully defended his title, held since 1907. The event demanded Gaidzik's best form and generalship, for K. E. Behrens of the City A. C., who defeated Gaidzik in the Olympic championships, and holder of the German title, led up to the last specialty of each.

It was at this stage of the struggle between the two that Gaidzik used his head, and by taking a long chance in a difficult dive, which he perfectly negotiated, forged ahead of Behrens. Behrens tried but a 9-point dive, and Gaidzik a 12-point dive. Behind these two star performers trailed F. A. Mullen and W. R. Lee of the New York A. C., and J. F. Dunn, West Side Y. M. C. A., formerly of Yale University. Summary:

Fancy High Diving.—National Amateur Athletic Union Championship—Won by George W. Gaidzik, Chicago A. C., with a total of 73 points; K. E. Behrens, City A. C., second, with a total of 69 1-6 points; Frank A. Mullen, New York A. C., third, with 57 1-3 points; J. G. Dunn, West Side Y. M. C. A., fourth, with 57 1-6 points; W. R. Lee, New York A. C., fifth, with 51 6-6 points.

200-Yard Swim, Handicap.—First Heat—Won by G. Hager, City A. C. (30 seconds;) J. F. Manley, New York A. C., (20 seconds,) second. Time—2:33 3-5. Second Heat—Won by J. J. Curren, City A. SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 4.—The first team of Company C, Fourth New Jersey, the tyro team of the same New York regiment, Lieut. H. E. A feature of the day was the Nevada trophy match, arranged especially by the Association of American International Riflemen. It was a squad competition open to officers and enlisted men of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and National Guard at 600, 900, and 1,200 yards, ten shots at each distance. The service rifle was used. First prize was the Nevada trophy made of Nevada gold and silver, given by citizens of Nevada. The winner also received a bronze medallion, while eight other cash prizes were offered.

Bureau of Tours Report.

The agency for the issuance of New Jersey licenses, situated at the Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America, Fifty-fourth street, west of Broadway, will be open on Labor Day, Sept. 4, from 10 A. M. to 12 noon. As this is now the only agency in New York State, this action has been decided upon for the convenience of those who have neglected to procure the necessary New Jersey licenses.

On and after Sept. 1 the fee for registering a car in New Jersey is cut in half, thus reducing the cost to $2.50 for cars under 30 horse power and $5 for cars 30 horse power or over. This does not apply to the driving licenses, which remain the same, i. e., $2 for licenses to operate a car under 30 horse power and $4 to operate those of 30 horse power or over. SHEEPSHEAD BAY SWIMMING.

One New Record Made in U. S. V. Life-Saving Corps Competition.

Hundreds of persons, some on foot and others in automobiles, lined both sides of the swimming course at Sheepshead Bay yesterday afternoon to watch the aquatic events, the fifth annual of its kind, of the Sheepshead Bay Division of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps. Representatives of eight stations of the United States Life Saving Corps participated in the different events run off, some of the contestants coming from as far as Bath Beach and Far Rockaway, and the competition was keen throughout.

The winning of the first event, the 50-yard swim, closed to the boys under 15 years of age, proved an easy task for T. O'Brien, who finished about ten yards ahead of his nearest competitors, R. Hanfort and H. Miller, who were having a neck-and-neck fight for second position. These two swimmers fought hard for the leadership up to within about two yards of the finish line, when Hanfort quickened his stroke and finally won out, with about a foot separating him and Miller at the finish line.

There were four teams entered for the canoe tilting contest, the second event on the programme, and as it was impossible for this number to be out on the water at once trying to upset each other the officials decided to pick the contestants for the final event by running off heats. The first heat was won by I. Day. The second heat was won by the N. McBurney and Frank Russell team after five minutes of jabbing. W. Allgeier, McBurney's opponent, put too much strength into one of his jabs, missed, and fell into the water, tipping the boat. In the final heat Day, the winner of the first heat, apparently became excited and indulged in foul tactics. The judges, considering the foul work indulged in by Day, awarded the event to the McBurney and Russell team.

C. Allen showed fine form in the 100-yard handicap event. Starting from the scratch mark, he took the lead at the very beginning of the race and maintained his advantage throughout, finishing in the fast time of 1:05 4-5.

The feature event of the afternoon was the one-mile championship race, closed to members of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps, in which event a record was broken. The former record for the distance was made by E. Spielberger, who did the distance in 20:54 2-5 in 1908. Schmelke, a member of the Far Rockaway station, clipped 1:35 3-5 off this record when he swam the distance in the fast time of 28:18 4-5. Six contestants started in this event and five finished. The other quit at the end of the first lap.

Burke of the Bath Beach station took the lead at the beginning of the race, but he did not hold his advantage very long, Schmelke displacing him. Schmelke held the leading position until the beginning of the last lap, when Sheridan, a member of the Bath Beach station, started in to gain on him. When the contestants were about 30 yards away from the finish line it was easily seen that Schmelke and Sheridan were in a neck-and-neck struggle for the lead. Directly opposite the judges' stand and about three yards above the finish line was situated a buoy. Sheridan was beginning to draw away from his opponent and was swimming at a fast clip when he bumped, head on, into the buoy. He slowed up and looked around to see where his nearest opponent was, and seeing him about fifty yards away and knowing that he could not lose second place, and also that he could not gain first place, as Schmelke had already crossed the finish line the winner, he slowed up and took things easy for the rest of the race. MANY CARS NAMED FOR LONG TOUR

American Automobile Association Announces Entrants for Glidden Trophy.

Now that owners of motor cars and manufacturers have had an opportunity to clearly understand the simplicity of the rules covering the grade IV. reliability tour of the American Automobile Association for the Glidden Trophy, New York to Atlanta to Jacksonville, Oct. 14 to 25, entries are rapidly being received by the Contest Board.

Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia has entered one of the new 1912 36-horsepower Maxwell Special models and will ride the entire 1,360 miles over the National highway. Mr. Smith is the first Governor to enter an automobile contest, and he will undoubtedly be the most distinguished entrant in the tour. No contest held heretofore has received such official recognition, and the importance of his entry is indicated by plans which hold much promise for the automobile industry and for highway development.

The Governor writes that he is "looking forward with pleasure to the trip and believes the American Automobile Association in planning such a tour will give great impetus to the road building movement, which he regards as almost paramount in the United States to-day."

Furthermore, he will invite the Governor of each State through which the tour passes to be his guest on the trip, riding from one State boundary to the other. With ten Eastern and Southern States in the proposed route and several of the Governors practically certain of accepting the invitation, the Glidden Tour takes on a new and more important character.

Other recent entries are those of J. R. Sandlin of Jasper and R. D. Drysdale of Jacksonville, Fla., and C. J. Hood, cashier of the Northeastern Bank of Commerce, Atlanta, Ga., of a Columbia, and the entries of three E. M. F. cars by the Studebaker corporation. Assurances are also given that the Metz Company of Waltham, Mass., makers of the little Metz runabout, which covered nine States in a single day and also climbed Mount Washington, will enter a team of three cars to represent their home town. The W. H. McIntyre Company of Auburn, Ind., will also be represented, as will several private owners of Case cars.

The almost unprecedented rainy spell which has visited the Eastern section of the country the past week will probably delay for a few days the start of the E. M. F. pathfinding car, which it had been hoped would leave New York during the past week. As this absolutely correct mapping of the entire route of the National highway in such form as to be of particular interest to the thousands of motor tourists wo will travel these roads from this time on is of so much importance, it is necessary that the work be done under advantageous weather conditions.

The Pathfinder will leave New York Sept. 8, and will be in charge of A. L. Westgard of the A. A. A. Touring Information Bureau, who will follow out the system which is being developed by the American Automobile Association's Touring Information Board in covering the trunk line routes of the country, the route to the Southland being the second of a series, the first being what is known as the "Sunset Transcontinental Route" to California.

President Robert P. Hooper of the A. A. A. will drive the car in the tour, and Charles J. Glidden, donor of the famous trophy, will also accompany the caravan.

The complete list of entries to date is:

Owing to a misunderstanding of the action of the Manufacturers' Contest Association, taken at the Detroit meeting, held last month in reference to the registration of stock cars of private owners in the 1911 Glidden tour, the "Supplementary Regulations," heretofore issued, waiving the registration requirements, are hereby canceled, and registered stock cars only will be eligible to compete for the Glidden Trophy and for the cash or plate prizes in the seven price divisions.

ON THE CRICKET CREASES.

Close and exciting finishes characterized nearly all the cricket matches played yesterday. In many of the games the tail of the team gave indifferent support to the leaders, with the result that several of the contests proved interesting that otherwise might have been one-sided.

The Brooklyns gained a victory over the Bensonhurst eleven at Ulmer Park, winning by 10 runs, although there was every prospect of the home team emerging victorious until the last few minutes of play. The visitors batted first and ran up 115 runs. A. Lovell was top scorer in a good innings of 30. C. Wood played well for 20, S. Butterfield was not out for 19, and H. Rushton added 13. The score was 115 to 105.

The Spartans were defeated by the Prospect Park team at the Parade Grounds by the narrow margin of 2 runs. Some remarkable bowling was accomplished in the game, J. Farris getting 5 wickets to the cost of a couple of runs apiece, and W. B. Ellis and H. Clarke taking 4 for 12 and 3 for 18 respectively. The score: Spartans, 96; Prospect Park, 98.

The second defeat of the season in the second section of the Metropolitan League championship series was a serious set-back to the Brooklyns, who up to last Saturday had gone through the Summer without loss. They succumbed yesterday to Bensonhurst at Prospect Park by 2 runs in an exciting finish, and the winning of the pennant is therefore postponed until next Saturday, when Bensonhurst is pitted against Prospect Park. The totals: Brooklyn, 68 and 70 for 3 wickets; Bensonhurst, 70 and 130.

The West Indians routed an eleven of the Spartans at Prospect Park, declaring their innings closed with the total at 188 for 8 wickets, and then disposing of their adversaries for the meagre total of 23.

The Colonials beat the West Indian B team at Prospect Park by 6 runs in totals of 89 and 81. Bird was not out for 39 on the losing side, while C. Foster, C. Dash, J. Odell, and G. Marshall got into double figures for the winners.

The West Indian Veteran A team defeated the West Indian Veterans B team by a single tally, the totals being 86 against 85. Pomcio, West, and Lavis were the leading batsmen for the winners, while B. Hopper, A. Arthur, and Dessalon did the better batting on the losing side.

Kings County won the championship of the Metropolitan League for the season by defeating Paterson rather easily at Paterson. Only one reverse was sustained by them during the year, while they twice were returned victorious over Brooklyn, who are their nearest competitors. The locals were disposed of for 80 runs, thanks to some good bowling on the part of C. Hoyle, who took 4 wickets for 4 runs and R. Crook, who had a record of 2 wickets for 9 runs. The margin of victory was 117 runs and the totals were: Paterson, 80; Kings County, 197.

FUGITIVE POSTMASTER HELD.

Sabow's Accusers Mistook His Bank for a Postal Savings Institution.

Louis Sabow, for seven years Postmaster of the New Jersey town which once was Roosevelt and is now Chrome, was held for extradition yesterday by Magistrate Krotel on charges of swindling Hungarian depositors in his private bank.

A big smelting plant at Chrome employs many Hungarians. These men have had discouraging experiences with private bankers, and when they heard of the plan of the Government to establish postal savings banks they were greatly interested. So far as known the Government had no immediate intention of selecting Chrome, N. J., for a postal bank, but Postmaster Sabow, the complainants say, announced that a bank would be opened and they understood that it was a Government affair. Furthermore, said Postmaster Sabow, it would pay 10 per cent. interest. The Hungarians flocked to Sabow with their savings and the total deposits reached between $25,000 and $40,000.

All went well with Sabow's bank until about five months ago, when he was removed as Postmaster. His fellow-countrymen could not understand how he could continue to run a postal bank when he was out of the Post Office. An investigation was begun by the county authorities and complaints were also made to the Department of Justice at Washington. On Aug. 25 Nicolas Majos made affidavit that he had drawn $700 from a National bank and deposited it with the "United States Postal Bank." When he went to get his interest he found that Sabow was gone from the Post Office. Things began to look dark for Sabow and he left Chrome. He was arrested in this city on Saturday.

Assistant Public Prosecutor Russell E. Watson of Middlesex County appeared in the West Side Court yesterday and told Magistrate Krotel that the Grand Jury would meet to-day and that Sabow would be indicted on many charges of swindling his fellow-countrymen. Majos was on hand and identified Sabow.

According to the police Sabow had about $3,000 when arrested. The New Jersey officials say he lived quietly, and apparently had no bad habits. While he had a good deal of real estate in Chrome, it was heavily incumbered, and they could not understand what had become of the money deposited with him.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,278. STEEL AND CEMENT FOR RAILWAY SLEEPERS.—An American Consul in a Latin-American country reports that a railroad company operating about one hundred miles of railway in the country in which he is located intends to replace the wooden sleepers on its lines by reinforced concrete sleepers. The management will be glad to receive proposals for the sale of the steel and concrete.

7,279. MACHINERY, STOVES, HARDWARE, AND NOVELTIES.—A business firm in the United Kingdom writes that it would like to get in touch with American manufacturers of the following articles: Washing machines for household use with small turbine wheels attached, base burners, (stoves,) laundry machinery, and hardware.

7,280. ELECTRIC APPARATUS.—A report from an American Consul in a European country states that a business firm in his district wishes to represent American factories for the sale of electric apparatus.

7,281. PRESS CLIPPING AND ADVERTISING BUREAUS AND AGENCIES.—A business man in a Canadian city informs an American Consular officer that he desires as complete a list as possible of the press clipping and advertising bureaus and agencies in the United States, and would like to hear from such concerns.

7,282. TENDERS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF GOVERNMENT PALACE.—Consul Frederick W. Goding of Montevideo reports that an international call for plans and tenders is being published by the Secretary of the Ministry of Public Works for building the Government Palace in Montevideo. He has forwarded a copy of the general conditions governing the same, which may be obtained from the Bureau of Manufactures. Plans and tenders will be received at the Uruguay Legation, Washington, D. C., until Jan. 16, 1912, and at Montevideo until Jan. 30, 1912.

7,283. AMERICAN GOODS FOR GREAT BRITAIN AND COLONIES.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a business firm in Great Britain stating that it would like to hear from manufacturers of articles suitable for sale in Great Britain and the colonies.

7,284. GASOLINE CARS FOR RAILWAYS.—The manager of a railway operating in a Central American country informs an American Consular officer that the company is considering the purchase of two gasoline cars, capable of seating twenty persons each, for use on its lines, and would like to receive catalogues and proposals from American manufacturers. The gauge of the railway is 3 feet, the maximum gradient is 3 per cent., compensated for curvature, and the roadbed is very good.

7,285. TENDERS FOR MACHINERY.—An American Consul reports that a recent issue of the British Iron and Steel Trades Journal called attention to the fact that tenders would be received until Oct. 4, 1911, by the Chairman, Gaya Municipality, Gaya, India, for furnishing horizontal triple expansion steam pumps and engines, Lancashire boilers, and all accessories. Specifications may be obtained from the Municipal Office, Gaya, or Sanitary Engineer for Bengal, 1-2 Old Court House Corner, Calcutta, India.

7,286. SAND DREDGES.—An American Consul in the West Indies reports that the local Government in its campaign against malaria has considered the filling in of certain marshes thought to be injurious, but it has found that prices of sand dredging equipment were too high compared with the value of the works. He suggests that it might be well for American manufacturers of sand dredges to address the official in charge of such matters if they can offer good machines at reasonable prices. Correspondence may be in English.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Natural Skins of Sparrows Mounted on Bellows or Squeakers Are "Toys."

The Board of United States General Appraisers has overruled a claim filed by Butler Brothers regarding the classification of articles composed of the natural skin of the sparrow mounted on a small bellows or squeaker, decorated with a small cotton bird and feathers. Judge Sharretts says in his decision that the article is clearly a toy, and should stand duty at 35 per cent. on the value as returned by the Collector. He remarks that there is nothing in the official record to warrant disturbing the classification made by the customs officials.

Davies, Turner & Co. was unsuccessful in obtaining lower duty on parasols made of paper. They were held by the customs to be dutiable at 35 per cent. under the present law. The importers asked for a reduction, but the board denies the request. Another firm, H. Buss & Co., won a tariff victory when the board decided that necklaces, chains, bracelets, armlets, brooches, and pins are not to be deemed jewelry under the terms of the act of 1909, but are to be admitted at 35 per cent. under the toy schedule. Collector Loeb's classification at the rate of 60 per cent. is reversed.

W. A. Crocker failed to convince the tribunal that boxes and ornaments for chandeliers of glass, cut and ground, and of bottles of glass, cut, should enter this country at 45 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of glass." Instead the board sustains the Collector's assessment at 60 per cent. as "glass, decorated or cut." Several importers of glass articles failed to submit their cases on evidence, with the result that the contentions for a reduction in the assessment is denied and the Collector affirmed. The firms concerned include Burley & Tyroll Company, the International Forwarding Company, C. D. Stone & Co., Gallagher & Ascher, Butler Brothers, and the J. P. Daleiden Company.

Exemption of Bonds
Under New Tax Law
The new law now in effect relating to the exemption of bonds from the personal property tax in New York State removes the disadvantages in this respect which formerly attached to bonds as investments as compared to tax-exempt real estate mortgages.
We have prepared a circular giving the provisions of the new law and comparing the relative merits of bonds and real estate mortgages as investments. The outlook for the investment market is also considered.
"Tax Day" in New York City will be October 1st, and action must be taken prior to that date to obtain exemption from the next assessment.
Copy of this circular and of the new law will be furnished on request.

Its Specialties
Do you know that experts say Public Utility Bonds are the most desirable investment in the market to-day? Why? Because both the companies behind these issues and the investor in them benefit by the regulation of supervisory commissions, and because the companies supply public necessities and therefore are not subject to industrial changes and depressions.
Such features place them in regard to safety, in the class with Municipal and Railroad bonds, but because this fact is not yet widely appreciated, they yield a higher income.

ARMY OF 50,000 WORKERS PARADE

Demonstration Made to Increase the McNamara Defense Fund Brings a Coin Harvest.

500 WOMEN IN THE LINE

Brigade of Seamen Turn Out for the March Down Fifth Avenue to Washington Square.

The annual Labor Day celebration here yesterday brought out 50,000 organized workers, who paraded down Fifth Avenue from Central Park Plaza to Washington Square. Of this number about 500 were women. The parade started at 10 o'clock, and it was almost 2 o'clock when the last of the ranks reached Washington Square.

Along the line of march great crowds gathered. Traffic in Fifth Avenue was suspended, and the crosstown car lines were allowed to keep up only an irregular schedule. Through the district of the loft buildings in lower Fifth Avenue the windows were filled with girls who had failed to get a holiday.

Along the upper part of the avenue decorations had been hung out in many places. The wooden platforms put up where the widening of the street is in progress became so many temporary reviewing stands and offered fine points of vantage for seeing the marchers. Labor leaders endeavored to make the celebration this year a demonstration in favor of the McNamara brothers, now under arrest on the charge that they blew up the Los Angeles Times Building.

Near the head of the procession a large banner was carried with the inscription: "We Demand Justice for J. J. McNamara," with a picture of the accused labor leader. Behind this eight men carried a large American flag, into which contributions were expected to be thrown for the McNamara defense fund. When the flag reached Fourteenth Street the silver in it would have filled a gallon measure.

A man who did not give his name threw a coin into the flag and came running after the bearers a moment later saying that his diamond ring had slipped off his finger when he threw in the coin. He had not intended to contribute the ring, he explained, and wanted it back. The flag was set down on the pavement and the money it contained was hastily raked over till the ring came into view. It was restored to its relieved owner and he hurried off.

Small pennants were carried by the marchers in great numbers, bearing the same legend: "We Demand Justice for McNamara," and others bore inscriptions recalling the McNamara incident. One read: "Otis is a Labor Hater, Burns is a Labor Baiter." The McNamara Defense Committee of about fifty members marched in the middle of the procession and were cheered all along the line of march.

The Socialists Out.

The Socialist Party displayed banners calling on workmen to put the union label on their ballots by voting the Socialist ticket. Other banners suggested that capitalists were robbing the workers to get more luxuries for themselves.

"We will make chains, but we will not be chained," said the jewelry workers. But where these emblems were the most militant the band was usually playing: "Kiss Me, Mah Honey, Kiss Me," or "All Alone," and the manner of the marchers was not militant. Some of the unions rode in carriages and the marshals all rode fine horses. Silk sashes were worn by some of them, and many smoked big cigars.

The women of the Trades Union League were conspicuous in white and yellow. A float marked "Life and Labor" formed a part of their display. Two young women bearing shields inscribed as Life and Labor rode on a high dais, and below them sat six others carrying shields with mottoes pertaining to the dignity and necessity of toil.

The seamen in the line of march were numerous, and had fine banners. Their language differs from that of the other unions. "Down with the Crimps," said one banner, where the others talked about scabs. "Seamen are the Poorest Paid of All Workers, Yet We are Men," was another. "We Man the Ships of the Sea; Don't We Deserve a Decent Livelihood?" asked a third.

With the American seamen the British delegation carried a banner declaring their late victory in England. "The seamen of Great Britain have beaten the Shipping Federation. What could the seamen of the world do?" said their banner. Behind them marched a great number of foreign seamen who happened to be in port.

The union largest in number of representatives was the garment workers' organization. With the strike of last year still in mind and the Triangle shirtwaist fire, they bore banners demanding better working conditions and recalling the tragedy of the fire.

The number of the Tunnel and Subway Constructors was impressive, and the question was asked more than once what they had found to do while the Board of Estimate and the Mayor have been wrangling over the work that concerns them.

Inspector Schmitthberger was in command of the police arrangements, and had 150 policemen under him. Forty of them marched at the head of the parade. Then came the Grand Marshal, Matthew McConville, and his aids, and then the Central Federated Union Band. The divisions formed on the side streets below the Plaza, and fell in as the parade passed down the avenue.

NO PARADE IN CHICAGO.

Leaders Say Demonstration Is a Useless Expense.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Organized labor of Chicago did not hold a parade to-day. When the proposition of parading was presented to the Chicago Federation of Labor recently its delegates decided that a pageant incurred too much expense.

John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation, said last night that organized labor in Chicago had decided that Labor Day parades entailed useless expense of thousands of dollars. He said that organized labor would not parade again soon, if ever in the present generation.

"These demonstrations cost labor unions more than the game is worth," he said.

Capital joined with labor to-day in observing the legal holiday set aside for toilers. All the banks, Stock Exchange, Board of Trade, wholesale stores, manufacturing plants and public buildings were closed to business.

Union labor men and their friends attended two picnics given under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Labor and other organizations, where a large defense fund for the McNamara brothers was raised by the sale of souvenir buttons.

NOT SEEN BY McNAMARAS.

Los Angeles Mayor Ordered Change in Route of Parade.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 4.—With bands playing the "Marseillaise" nearly 15,000 union men and women marched in the Labor Day parade here to-day.

Under orders from Mayor Alexander the original route was changed so that the marchers did not pass the county jail, where the McNamara brothers, the alleged dynamiters, are confined pending trial next month. But when the marchers reached the intersection of Temple and Main Streets, the nearest point to the prison, they doffed their hats and marched bareheaded past the corner.

Conductor Whose Discharge Caused Previous Strike Again Dismissed.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 4.—Conductor B. L. Hiatt of the Des Moines City Railway Company, whose discharge a few weeks ago, following the report of an Inspector, resulted in a strike of all the union employes of the company, was discharged again Sunday, together with two other conductors.

The men were dismissed for alleged violation of the company's rules. W. T. Roberts, member of the Executive Board of the local Street Car Men's Union, also was discharged Sunday. Street car officials claim he violated the company's rules. A conference between the company and the Street Car Men's Union will be held Tuesday, at which time the Roberts case will be taken up.

The provisions of the injunction issued by Judge De Graff, which put an end to the recent strike of the employes and ordered the reinstatement of Conductor Hiatt, have not been violated, according to court officials.

THREE BATTLE WITH A DEER.

Vicious Buck Seriously Injures One Man Before It's Stabbed to Death.

John Buckley, Capt. Frederick Wood, and Lemuel Ackerly, all of Patchogue, L. I., engaged in a stirring battle in Patchogue yesterday with a buck deer. It gave all the men a hard struggle, and seriously injured one of them before it was stabbed to death. The fight was on the large estate of Mrs. Kate L. Gilbert of Manhattan, whose Summer place fronts upon the Patchogue River.

A few days ago Mrs. Gilbert had a notice printed in a Patchogue newspaper saying that a fine buck deer upon her grounds would be given to any one who would come and take it away. The deer was well known in Patchogue as a ferocious beast, and only one man answered the advertisement—John Buckley. He took with him a bottle of chloroform, some cotton that he intended to saturate, and a stout burlap bag in which he intended to place the cotton and throw it over the deer's head.

As soon as Buckley came upon the deer it immediately charged him, and, with its antlers, knocked out of Buckley's hand the chloroform bottle, bag, and cotton. At the same time Buckley was knocked down the deer commenced to gore him. Buckley clung to the animal's branching antlers, shouting for help at the top of his voice.

Capt. Wood, commander of Frank Guttridge's yacht, the Ethel, and Ackerly were passing along the road on their way home from the South Bay Yacht Club. They went to Buckley's assistance. Capt. Wood, who stands 6 feet 2, grasped the buck's antlers, and Buckley sank senseless to the ground. Ackerly, who used to be a football player, made a flying leap and tackled the buck's hind legs, hanging on for his life as the enraged beast plunged about. Wood, clinging to the antlers, was dashed about as he had never been in his boat in the roughest of weather. A vicious jerk of the deer's head caused him to lose his hold. Springing to his feet, he ran for the woods, the buck in close pursuit, with Ackerly still clinging to one of its hind legs.

Just as the deer was about to strike Capt. Wood he dodged behind a tree, drew a knife, and, as the deer made for him, jumped aside and stabbed the deer behind the shoulder. The deer charged about aimlessly after that, and Capt. Wood stabbed it again and again.

Buckley was assisted to his home. He was covered with bruises. His condition is serious.

The deer that caused all the trouble was found wandering about Islip two years ago, when it was about two months old. Where it came from was never learned. Game Protector Ferguson asked Mrs. Gilbert's permission to turn it loose on her property, a wooded park of several acres, where there were several other deer belonging to Mrs. Gilbert. As it grew older the buck became so wild and vicious that Mrs. Gilbert determined to get rid of it.

WOMEN HIT BY MOTOR CYCLE.

Sisters Run Down and Seriously Injured in Broadway.

Louis Stilton of 148 West Sixty-fourth Street was coming down Broadway on his motor cycle yesterday afternoon when, at Thirty-eighth street, his machine skidded and ran into two sisters who were crossing the street at the time. Both were seriously injured. Leona Lesser of 556 West 140th Street had her hip broken and sustained internal injuries, while Rose Lesser, her sister, received internal injuries and severe lacerations about the face and hands. Both were taken to the New York Hospital.

Stilton was one of 150 motor cyclists en route to the City Hall to lodge a protest with the Mayor against the condition of the cinder path from Prospect Park, Brooklyn, to Coney Island. A crowd quickly surrounded the cyclist when he knocked down the woman. Stilton explained that his wheel had caught in the car track and when it skidded he lost control of it. He was not injured.

CONCERT IN DEATH HOUSE.

Condemned Men in Sing Sing Heartily Applaud Performers.

OSSINING, N. Y., Sept. 4.—A concert in the death house was a new holiday feature introduced by Warden John S. Kennedy at Sing Sing Prison to-day. Fourteen condemned men applauded the performers heartily.

No work was done at the prison to-day. Warden Kennedy engaged a quartet of singers and a violinist, and concerts were given at four different places in the corridors. The musicians afterward repeated their performance in the dormitory, and then proceeded to the death house, where the programme was again given in full. The Warden says that the condemned men were evidently delighted by the innovation and that their repeated encores were responded to again and again.

BRIDGE DYNAMITING LAID TO LABOR WAR

Railroad Inspectors Suspect Union Workers, Police Chief Non-Union Men.

NO WOMAN CONCERNED IN IT

Apparently an Attempt Was Made to Destroy Property Without Endangering Life—No Sign of Arrests.

The men responsible for the partial wrecking of a part of the steel structure of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad over Columbus Avenue, Mount Vernon, on Sunday night, were not caught yesterday by the Mount Vernon police or by the special policemen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which is building the line of which the partially wrecked bridge is a part.

Railroad engineers and Inspectors who investigated the explosion inclined to the opinion that the wrecking may have been the work of union men who had it in for the bridge contractors because the work is being done on the open-shop plan. On the other hand, the Mount Vernon police, among them Chief of Police Foley, put forward the theory that it might have been the work of disgruntled non-union men, many of whom, Chief Foley understood, had been discharged in the last few weeks. None of the investigators found any reason to believe that a woman had anything to do with the explosion.

Whether the explosion was the work of union or non-union men, the fact remains that whoever did it made a pretty good job of it so far as it went. The explosive, believed by the railroad inspectors to have been nitroglycerin, was placed against the base of the supporting beam that stood third in the column that begins at Columbus Avenue. One of the engineers of the American Bridge Company, the concern putting up the ironwork of the new railroad, referring to the selection of the third supporting beam, said that it indicated to him that those responsible for the outrage had carefully planned their work beforehand.

He came to this way of thinking because, had the wreckers desired to, they could have done more damage by wrecking the beam nearest to Columbus Avenue, in which case the explosion would have wrecked not only the structure, but also barricaded the street with debris, and might have injured persons passing under the steel arch. The wreckers, the engineer said, apparently did not wish to cause any damage except to railroad property, and they did not wish to run the risk of hurting anybody, and that was the reason they selected the third beam, which was far enough from the road to make reasonably sure that nobody would be hurt.

The railroad men as a rule did not care to answer questions concerning the explosion. Those that did talk did so with the understanding that their names would not be used. Some even refused to give their names in confidence. Even the Mount Vernon police said they had not been taken into the confidence of the railroad. One man, who went to Yonkers, however, and said that the reason of his visit was to look into the explosion, said he was William Hillhouse, Chief of Police of the Erie Railroad. Hillhouse talked with Policeman Day, and, according to Day, he said he believed the work to be that of union men. Hillhouse told Day that he was one of the men responsible for the arrest of the McNamaras, and added that Sunday night's explosion was the twentieth affair of the kind in the last few months.

A great crowd gathered at the scene of the wreck, and employes of the company stretched ropes in a circle around the damaged part of the bridge structure, but even this was not sufficient to keep the sightseers back. Those who got past the ropes saw a completely wrecked supporting beam made of half-inch steel. The supports of the beam were also wrecked, and around the concrete where the beam had stood were several piles of steel that had been torn from the structure by the explosion and twisted into all sorts of fantastic shapes. Other supporting steel work, not connected with the wrecked beam, at the base of which the nitroglycerin was exploded, showed holes made by hurtling pieces of steel.

An idea of the force of the explosion was gained by an inspection of some of the buildings in the vicinity of the explosion. The police said their reports showed that the glass in seventy-three windows of the Mauser Silver Plating Company's works, more than 200 yards away, had been shattered, while a piece of steel that weighed more than a pound was hurled through a window in the home of Mrs. Knoblock, on Glen Avenue, several blocks distant. The roar of the explosion was heard for a mile on all sides.

Immediately after the explosion the police got a great variety of possible clues. One woman said she had seen two men run up Hartford Avenue, and that as they passed her place one of them remarked, "We will get them the next time." One of these men, the woman said, wore a long coat that came down below his knees. The sighting of this long-coated individual gave rise to the report that a woman was concerned in the explosion. Chief Foley, however, did not take kindly to this clue.

"That remark about getting them the next time did not sound right," he said, "for they passed her house, according to the woman who tells this story, immediately after the explosion, and at that time had they been connected with the affair, they would have had no way of knowing whether they had accomplished their purpose or not. For all they would have known then, the bridge was blown to smithereens, and there would have been no excuse for the remark about getting them some other time.

"We are not in possession of any clues that I can dignify as valuable. The best information, however, and it does not look very promising at this time, leads us to believe that three men were concerned in the job. This clue indicates that one of the three men got in under the structure from the Haven Street side, where it was dark. This man is supposed to have been one who was seen in the neighborhood shortly before the explosion, carrying a satchel in which he probably had the explosive. The two other men are believed to have remained in Hartford Avenue, which starts at Columbus Avenue, near the bridge, watching while the first placed the explosive and fired the fuse. After the explosion the man who set the explosive is supposed to have made his getaway by Haven Avenue, while the two confederates escaped along Hartford Avenue. Several persons tell of seeing two men running along Hartford Avenue. Now, this clue may not be worth anything at all, but it is the best we have so far. As for descriptions of the three men, we have none that would aid us in running them down."

A story that the wreck was the work of five men is credited to one of the employes of the American Bridge Company. According to the story of this man, one man placed the explosive, another fired the fuse, while the other three acted as sentinels on Hartford and Columbus Avenues. One of the two men who were on duty in Columbus Avenue, it was said, had a white dog. The last seen of the man and the white dog was when they disappeared up Hartford Avenue immediately following the explosion.

In the afternoon, after most of the theories that cropped out in such rapid fashion had been more or less discredited, a TIMES reporter hunted up one of the men connected with the bridge contracting company. This man, an engineer, who was on duty at the scene of the explosion, said he did not care to accuse union men of being responsible for the explosion, but the evidence seemed to cast suspicion on that class of workers. The company, he added, was working the contract on the open-shop principle, and both union and non-union men were employed. The wages paid the men range from $4 to $5 a day. He admitted that a number of men had been discharged by the company, but was not inclined to believe the discharging of them had anything to do with the explosion.

Sunday night's explosion was the third which the New York, New Haven & Hartford has experienced in this vicinity in the last three years. An attempt was made on the night of May 21, 1908, to destroy a drawbridge over the Bronx River. A watchman was assaulted, and his cries for help caused the men who were trying to wreck the bridge to flee and throw away a suitcase containing 103 sticks of dynamite and two coils of fuse. Early the following morning a bridge of the same company at Baychester was damaged by an explosion to the extent of $1,500.

HAD DR. MARCE ARRESTED.

Edward Kahn Accused Him of Assault in Atlantic City—Case Dropped.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—As the result of a midnight brawl in the Hotel Rudolf, Edward Kahn of 142 West Twenty-third Street, New York, appeared to-day before Justice of the Peace Jagmetty and had a warrant issued for the arrest of Dr. R. Barrymore Marce, a New York physician, on the charge of assault and battery. Dr. Marce furnished bail for his appearance later in the day, but because of the fact that several young women called as witnesses to the alleged assault were unwilling to appear, the proceedings were dropped, and Dr. Marce left the city late to-day for New York, where he was called to perform an operation.

According to the story told by Dr. Marce, Kahn and a number of his friends were at a wine party in a room adjoining that of the physician's mother, who has been ill, and when he asked Kahn to desist, the latter made for him with an uplifted bottle. Obliged to defend himself, the physician admitted that he struck Kahn, whose eye bore mute testimony to the strength of Dr. Marce's punch. Kahn, on the other hand, asserts that Dr. Marce insulted him and the members of his party, and this was the direct cause of the assault that followed.

EMPTY TRAIN RUNS AWAY.

Dashes Down Grade from Montclair and Piles Up Against Telegraph Pole.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 4.—A train of five passenger coaches, with no locomotive attached, started down the grade on the Lackawanna Railroad toward Glen Ridge shortly after 8 o'clock this morning while a big holiday crowd was waiting in the station to leave for New York. The train had been on a siding near Pine Street at the top of the grade, and somehow had started off on its own hook.

No trainman was aboard. The train narrowly missed a yardman as it left the yards, and further down, at the Bay Street crossing, a pedestrian got across the track just in time. Before the train reached the Bloomfield Avenue trolley crossing the forward car ran into an open switch and off the track, falling over an embankment and against a telegraph pole.

The Lackawanna operates on this grade between Montclair and Bloomfield on but a single track, over which sixty-four passenger trains pass daily. Traffic was blocked for more than two hours, and passengers were obliged to go to Bloomfield, where trains were in waiting, or travel on the Erie Railroad.

HELD FOR CAUSING COLLISION

Four Youths Charged with Putting Cart in Path of Trolley Car.

Four Brooklyn youths were held in $500 bail each for examination by Magistrate Connolly in the Jamaica Court yesterday on the charge of deliberately pulling a dirt cart in the path of a trolley car, causing a collision that resulted in injury to several persons.

The prisoners were Thomas Gorman of 115 Penn Street, Isador Balter of 318 Suydam Street, Joseph Paltizer of 11 Ainslee Street, and Stephen Kelmer of 55 South First Street, Brooklyn. The four attended an outing on Sunday night at Schuetzen Park, Glendale, Queens. Seeing an old dirt cart under a shed, it is alleged, they pulled it in the path of a Myrtle Avenue trolley car. The motorman was unable to stop in time, and his car struck the cart, demolishing it. Three persons sitting on the front seat of the car were thrown to the street. Two of them were bruised and shaken up. The third, Maurice Skiffington, 18 years old, of 173 Marion Street, Brooklyn, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, with four of his toes fractured.

WOMAN OF 80 GRABS NEGRO.

Holds Him in Her Bedroom in Spite of His Struggles Until Help Comes.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 4.—Grappling with a negro, whom she discovered early to-day in her bedroom, Mrs. Mary Smith, a medium-sized, slender woman about 80 years old, held him a prisoner until the moment when help was coming. At that instant the negro managed to break away and dove head first through a window seven feet above the ground.

He was later arrested in bed in a house not far away. When taken to the police station he nearly collapsed and appeared to be in fear of bodily harm. He gave his name as John Henry Thomas and said he came from New Orleans about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Smith was awakened when Thomas's hand touched her head as he was feeling about in the dark. She discovered him lying flat on the floor close to her bed, and at once seized him by the shirt and an ear. Later in the struggle she got hold of his arm. Mrs. Smith's cries for help brought her son to the room. It was then that the negro broke from his captor.

BLEW OUT THE GAS.

Alaskan Found Dead in a Jersey City Hotel Room.

John Shost, a miner of Fairbanks, Alaska, was found dead in bed in the Arlington Hotel, Montgomery and Greene Streets, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, with the gas turned on in his room. It is supposed that he blew out the gas.

In his clothes were found papers and cards that disclosed his identity. He had $385 in United States currency, $35 in Canadian money, and several pieces of jewelry in his pockets. Mina Johnson, a chambermaid, opened the door of his room and discovered his body on the floor. She notified the hotel authorities and a physician was called, who pronounced the man dead. The body was taken to the Morgue.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—An army of 6,000 labor unionists, including girls and women, marched through the streets of Newark yesterday in demonstration of their devotion to organized labor. Every trade was represented in line, and the recently organized "White Wings" Union, consisting of street cleaners, was out in force.

EAST ORANGE.—Eight persons were killed by automobiles on New Jersey highways in August and four by runaways, according to figures compiled by Col. Edward S. Cornell, Secretary of the National Highways Protective Association. Neither trolley cars, wagons, bicycles, nor motor cycles were responsible for fatalities to pedestrians during the month just past.

BAYONNE.—William Murphy, 24 years old, an engineer of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, whose home was at 19 West Twenty-sixth Street, Bayonne, was killed by his own engine yesterday. He slipped and fell from the cab while the engine was moving slowly.

SOUTH ORANGE.—Four-year-old Alice Magee, daughter of George Magee, was badly bitten about the face yesterday by a dog that had been used in the village Police Department, but which had strayed away from headquarters to the Magee yard, where it was tied up. The little one tried to pet the dog while it was gnawing a bone in front of the kennel before which her father had tied it.

VINELAND.—William Eastburn, an employe of the lighting company, lowered an arc lamp here to inspect it yesterday. The current caught him and held him fast in the middle of Main Street, with sparks shooting from him. William Hauser, who was partly disabled by rheumatism, went to his aid and received a shock. A linesman, who was out hunting trouble, cut the wire. Eastburn is in the hospital suffering from shock and burns, but will recover. Hauser has not had an ache or pain since, and declares he has not been so free from rheumatism for months. He thinks the shock cured him.

BRIDGETON.—For the second time in two weeks the safe at the Fairton Post Office was blown open and robbed yesterday. Following the robbery of two weeks ago, two men were arrested on suspicion, and are still locked up.

TRENTON.—Announcement was made by the State Civil Service Commission yesterday of fourteen examinations between Sept. 7 and Oct. 20. An Inspector of School Buildings and an Inspector of School Accounts are to be chosen, each with an annual salary of $2,000. An examination will be held for deputy chief of the Newark Fire Department, and also for assistant engineer in the Engineers' Department, Newark.

TRENTON.—Election of officers featured yesterday afternoon's session of the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Knights and Ladies of the Golden Eagle of New Jersey. Grand Vice Chief Peter L. Alderse of Paterson was raised to the post of Grand Chief.

BAIL JUMPERS BROUGHT BACK

The Goldbergs, Who Fled to Europe, Are on the Liner Martha Washington.

On the Austro-American liner Martha Washington, which arrived in Quarantine last night, are Joseph and Jacob Goldberg, who are wanted in Boston for robbery. The pair are brought back from Limberg, Austria, where they were arrested, by Inspectors Hugh J. Lee and M. H. Cronin of the Boston police force. When arrested the Goldbergs had just completed a sentence for the robbery of the Clerk's office in Limberg.

The Goldbergs are wanted by the Boston authorities for a $15,000 jewel robbery. They were captured in this city soon after the robbery, but escaped by forfeiting their cash bail. It was this case that caused District Attorney Whitman to call the attention of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to the action of Magistrate Barlow, who had reduced the bail of the prisoners. The pair, with Harris Rothstein, alias "Kovak the Smith," were arrested here March 27, 1910. The trio were brought before Magistrate Barlow, who held them under $10,000 bail each to await the arrival of the Boston police. A few hours later the Magistrate reduced the bail to $5,000 each, and they promptly put up the required sum and fled. The action of Magistrate Barlow aroused much criticism, but the Appellate Division exonerated him, as it was shown he had acted within his rights.

Arrested abroad, the trio fought extradition. Rothstein has already been brought back. The prisoners enlivened the departure of the Martha Washington from Trieste by an attempt to escape upon the pier. They fought so vigorously that the Boston police had to call upon the local police to get them on the liner.

The Martha Washington was held over night at Quarantine by the health officials, though no sickness was reported on board. She will be released this morning.

TAFT RETURNS TO BEVERLY.

Visits Myopia Hunt Club, Plays Golf, and Writes Speeches.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 4.—Booming guns announced the departure of President Taft from the U. S. S. Mayflower a few minutes after the craft had dropped anchor off West Beach this morning, after coming from Islesboro, Me., where the President and Mrs. Taft, Miss Helen Taft, Charlie Taft, Horace D. Taft, and Miss Mabel Boardman were the guests of Mrs. Thomas McK. Laughlin at her Summer home.

The President and his party had pleasant weather on their stay, and found the rarest of September days on their return. Coming ashore the President and Major Butt motored up to Myopia, where they played the usual round of the 18-hole course. The President was the luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Wallingford of Pittsburgh, who are spending the Summer with Mrs. Wallingford's mother, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, at the Cove.

After luncheon the President motored over to the Myopia Hunt Club. When he appeared on the field the band played "Hail to the chief." The President stopped an hour, chatted with Judge W. H. Moore of New York, who drove over to the field. When the President left he circled inside the fringe of spectators and the crowd cheered while the band played the "Star Spangled Banner."

Miss Helen Taft, who has been at Islesboro for a week, returned to-day, and was at the Horse Show as the guest of the Misses Alice and Julia Meyer, daughters of Secretary of the Navy G. Von L. Meyer.

The President began work to-day on his Western speeches, and expects to have most of the important efforts completed before he leaves Beverly a week from Friday.
